the life of Barlow .- NAT. INTEL. [Translated for the Philadelphia Gazette.] From a French paper of the 10th March. Biographical notice of Mr. Joel Barlow, Mi. nister Plenipotentiary of the U. States of

in this and other matters connected with America near the French government. Mr. Barlow was born in 1755, in the town of Reading, in the state of Connecticut. He received an excellent education, and shewed at an early age a decided preference for the belles lettres, which he has since cultivated with great success, and to which he owes a share of that glory which will descend with his name to posterity. He was still engaged in his studies at the period of the rupture between England and her colonies. Young Barlow possessed too much elevation of soul to remain an indifferent spectator of an event which involved the dearest interest of his country. He appeared several times as a vo. lunteer in the field of honour, and his companions in arms, umong whom were four of his brothers, did justice to his patriotic zeal and In 1778, he took the degree of bachelor of arts, and applied himself to the study of the law, in the leisure moments which the events left at his disposal; however he engaged in a different career from that of the bar. He accepted the place of chaplain of brigade, that was offered to him by the state of Massachusetts. It may be observed, that among the Presbyterians of New-England, the priest-hood is only a kind of civil ordination. He who receives it may engage in other avocations, and it is not uncommon to see young men preach the gospel, in order to procure the time and means necessary to qualify them

In his new capacity of Chaplain, Mr. Barlow followed the army until the conclusion of peace in 1783. It was during this tempestuous period, that he sketched, and, in a manner, finished his beautiful poem of the Columbiad, which secured him an honorable station amongst the eminent poets.

He had married in 1781, Miss Baldwin of name; a woman, as distinguished for the su-periority of her mind as for her amiable quali-ties, and who was worthy of the husband she

When the independence of the U. States was acknowledged, Mr. Barlow went to Hartford, where he recommenced the study of the law. In 1786, he was admitted to the bar, where he distinguished himself in such a man-ner as to attract the notice of his fellow-citi-

In 1787, he published the vision of Columbus, or the Columbiad, of which we have already spoken. The merited reputation of this poem soon spread from America to Europe, and it was even re-printed in London a few months after its first publication.

At this time, a company of very respectable men, with the greatest part of whom he had been acquainted in the army, bought from Congress an immense tract of land, situate on the banks of the Ohio. It was proposed to sel a part of these lands to foreigners, and to divide the rest among the members of the com-pany. Mr. Barlow was requested to assist in the execution of this project, and to proceed for that purpose to Europe. He consented to it the more willingly, as the voyage was in perfect consonance with the liberality of his taste and with the desire which he had long cherished of seeing and studying the long celebrated countries of the old continent, whose genius had brought all the arts to perfection Soon after his arrival in England, he went to France, where he attended with success to the interest of his employers. The establishment, of which he became one of the first proprietors, was begun in 1788, and increased so rapidly through the influence of the America colonists, that in 1812 it contained a population of 280,760 souls. The state of Ohio, admitted among the members of the federal union, now forms the seventeenth province of the Ame-

During the first years of the French revolution, Mr. B. resided in London, where he published different works, remarkable for the depth of his views and the merit of their style, which procured for their author the applause of statesmen and of men of taste. Mr. Fox himself gave testimony to the talents of Mr Berlow, and pronounced his eulogium in the House of Commons.

A special mission to the French government carried Mr. Barlow back to Paris in 1792 : it was at that time he had the henor of being made a French citizen, together with his countrymen, Washington and Hamilton. Political and commercial affairs caused his presence for some time in the north of Europe, and he soon after received from the American government a most important mission to the coast of Africa. After surmounting many obstacles, he succeeded in concluding advanta-geous treaties with the states of Algiers, of Tunis, and of Tripoli, and in delivering his fellow citizens who had long groaned in captivity. This was one of the periods of his life, the recollection of which was always most agreeable to him.

These negociations being ended, he returned to France, where he resided from 1797 until 1805; he then quitted France and went to England, where he embarked for the United States. On his return to his native country, he was occupied in projects of public utility, and published the last edition of the Columbiad, the most magnificent specimen of typogra-phy which has ever issued from the Ameri-

Mr. Barlow was destined to revisit Europe and there to finish his honorable career. In 1 1811, the present President of the U. States. Mr. Madison, appointed him Minister Pleni-potentiary near the French government. Molungs carried him off suddenly, at Zarnow, near Cracow. His loss will be severely fel by his fellow-citizens, and by all those who are capable of appreciating the union of genius As a statesman, Mr. Barlow has rendered essential service s to his country; as a man o genius, and a friend to humanity, he does ho nour to his age; as a man of deep research he has left works which will always be sough after by true philosophers; as a poet, he has signalized by a great work the rising literature of his country; his glory will exist as long as the language which served to illustrate his qualities which could contribute to his own happiness and that of the persons by whom he was surrounded. Having attained by his merit the exercise of high offices, he was free from the ridiculous weakness of some men, who affect to despise literary success, without which they would still have remained in impenetrable obscurity. He spoke of his works without pride and without false modesty. The strokes of his wit flowed frequently from a sprightly disposition. His judgment was always correct and just. Under a grave and perhaps austere exterior, he concealed an ardent and feeling mind. His openness invited confidence. Unshaken in his attachments sincerely beloved by all those whom he admit ted to his society, he has left universal regrets and it would be utterly impossible to describe the grief of his wife and family. She has los the object in which all her affections centred. There are losses for which no earthly consolation exists. If any thing could assuage such piercing sorrow, it would be the thought, that the memory of Mr. Barlow is dear to all good men, and that the remembrance of his virtues and talents will never perish.

LAND FOR SALE.

T WILL sell the farm on which I reside on Bullskin, containing 350 acres-at least one third of the land is in wood, and the cleared land in a high state of cultivation, 80 acres of which is now in clover, and a sufficiency of meadow. This farm may be laid off in fields of 30 acres, and every field with very little trouble may have water. The improvements are a good dwelling house, barn, stables, and every necessary out building; a large garden, and a peach and apple orchard of choice fruit, just beginning to bear. If convenient to the purchaser 250 acres of this land with all the improvements will be sold separate from the other part; there will be on it about 18 acres of very valuable meadow land, and a sufficiency of wood. To a person wishing to purchase a small farm, it would be a very

There are letters in town from Generais Dearborn and Lewis, and Commodore Chauncey. They state that General Pike was killed by a stone, and not blown up as mentioned above. Although the intelligence from the frontiers is gratifying, inasmuch as our troops have been successful, yet the destruction of the gallant Pike and two hundred of his brave compatriots, cast a shade of deep melancholy over the affair.

> FROM THE WHIG. CORRECT ESTIMATE.

It appears from the following letter of brigadier general MILLER, tosir J. B. Warren; that he considers one American citizen, worth two English su jects. This is a correct calculation. It must be highly gratifying to the American people to see their government taking such decisive and manly steps for their protection. Naturalized citizens need not be under apprehensions of the Prince Regent's crael orders being carried into effect, when they find the government of their adoption so ready to enforce their power of retaliation. The readiness with which O'Neale was delivered up on the representation of the people of Havre-de Grace, shews very plainly, notwithstanding admiral Warren's pretended ignodare not carry their threats into execution. If our government was to seize and put to hard labour, two Englishmen for every impressed American, we should soon bring Great Britain to her senses. Such a retaliation would perience make his loss a national one.

Extract of a letter from Mr. John O'neill, who was taken at Havre de Grace, bravely fighting alone in the cause of his adopted country, to a gentleman in this city, dated Havre de Grace, May 10. "No doubt before this, you have heard of my defeat. On the 31 instant, we were attacked by 15 English barges at break of day. They were not discovered by the sentry until they were close to the town. We had a small breast work creekgel, with two 6 and one 9 pounder in it; and I was stationed at one of the guns. When the alarm was given I run to the battery, and found but one man there, and two or three came afterwards .-me a'one in the battery. The grape shot flew very thick about me. I loaded the gun myself, without any one to serve the vent, which you know was very dangerous, and fired her, when she recoiled and ran over my thigh. "I retreated down town, & joined Mr. BARNES at the nail manufactory, with a musket and fired on the barges while we had ammunition, and then retreated to the commons, where I kept waving my hat to the militia, who had run-away, to come to our assistance: they, however proved cowardand would not come back. At the same me, an English officer on horseback, followed y the marines, rode up, and took me with two muskets in my hand. I was carried an board the Maidstone frigate, where I remained until released, three days since."-Balt. Pat.

Council-Chamber, May 17, 1813. The Senate and House of Delegates.

It has become my duty to communicate. to you the circumstances which made necessary an extraordinary meeting of the Legislature. It is known to you, that your predecessors at their last session passed a law entitheir wishes, and thereby greatly extendproceeded to make the necessary appointments; of which they gave information ness, letters were received from the Secretary of War, and of State, which, in the estimation of the Executive, gave an By on board the Asia man of war, and aspect to our situation entirely different passed. These letters, as well as mine to those officers of the general governly exposed. To forbear to execute it, was not without its difficulties. For the Executive to take upon itself the high responsi-bility of not executing the law of the land, was so hostile to the constitution, and a precedent of a nature so dangerous, as to be entirely inadmissible. The convention of the Legislature was exposed to two objections-the inconvenience to the members, & an expense to the Commonwealth. The known patriotism of the Re-presentatives of the People, which counts as nothing personal inconvenience, made ernor, yesterday convened at the Capitol | necessary by the public service, removed in this City-and a quorum of both Hous- the first; the last, when opposed to the
