MR. LOGAN.—By publishing the following in your paper, you will oblige a number of your subscribers:

To improve corn.

Having read in the Pittsburgh Almanac for the year 1808, the following method to select seed corn. I have taken the best ear of two, that grows on a single stock of corn, and found it to improve, to an astonishing degree.—After pursuing the experiment for three years, and establishing the fact in my own mind, I communicated it to a near neighbor, who laughed at me. I invited him to a thorough experiment. We took each of our fields adjoining and of equal quality of soil—planted and tilled them at the same time, and in the same manner, and the result was, mine produced about 60 bushels to the acre (from selected seed) and his only 40, from common seed.

Upon reading the above I was determined to try the experiment—accordingly I selected a quantity of seed as above directed, and planted therewith, and a part with common seed, and the difference was great in favor of the selected seed—I continued to try it for several years, until I was completely satisfied of its utility, as each stock generally has two ears—I shall never neglect in future, to select my seed corn—and as the time of gathering corn is at hand, the diligent farmer who will thus select his seed corn, will be well rewarded for his trouble.

Come and pay off your Debts.

ALL those indebted to John Carlile & Co. are requested to come forward and pay off their bonds, notes and accounts immediately. The necessity of this request must be obvious to every person interested. It is well known that business of this kind cannot be done without money; it is actually necessary that every person owing us should discharge their accounts now. Should they neglect doing so, they will find their notes and accounts in the officer's hands in a very short time—but we hope no person will compel us to resort to that unpleasant and unprofitable means of collecting.

Wheat, Flour and Rye will be taken at a fair market price—therefore, no person can have any excuse hereafter for not paying his debts.

FOR SALE,

A part of the tract of land called Willis' place, on the east side of the Shenandoah river, containing till the 15th of Dec. the act of last session, enforcing specie payments.

Fifty-four Acres,

Mr. Scott moved a joint committee to enquire into the state of the Banks which motion was lost and the bill referred to the select committee.

Mr. Hay from the Bank committee reported the bill without amendment, and moved that it be engrossed and read at this time.

Mr. Banks moved to strike out the 15th Dec. and insert the 1st of July which motion, after considerable debate was lost.

The bill was then ordered to be engrossed and read a third time.

The House came to a resolution to proceed on the second of December to the sittings of the Judge of the General Court for the first circuit.

Mr. Mercer, from the Committee, reported a bill, suspending the law of the 24th February, 1816, (with the exception of the 10th section,) so as to the banks of Waterford and Martinsburg.

The engrossed bill, about the Virginia banks, was then taken up, passed and sent to the Senate.

Thursday, November 14.

UNCHARTERED BANKS.

Mr. Mercer (of L.) from the committee to whom was re-committed the bill to suspend in part the law of the last session prohibiting the circulation of notes of unchartered banks, reported the Bill with one amendment: viz. to add the words, "Bank of Winchester in Virginia," so as to entitle that bank to the same exemption with those of Waterford and Martinsburg.

Mr. Wilson (of Monongalia) moved to amend the amendment by adding also the "Monongalia Farmers' Bank of Virginia." He stated, that after the law was passed at the last session, this bank began to curtail its discounts, and had continued to curtail from 5 to 10 percent, for every 60 days—that they were endeavoring to wind up their affairs as soon as possible—they did not intend to make any new discounts, but such as were payable on the 15th of this month—He hoped this institution would have the same indulgence as others—He had no statement, but expected one, to shew the state of the bank; but he knew they had attempted to draw in their paper, without ruining their dealers.

Mr. Mercer suggested to the gentleman, that he had better make his motion by way of a distinct amendment to the bill itself—as each of the banks ought to stand on its own proper basis.—He wished that the gentleman from Frederick, who could give information about the Bank of Winchester, would rise and satisfy the house, that this bank had attempted to comply with the law.—Mr. Wilson withdrew his amendment.—Mr. Saxon rose in consequence of Mr. Mercer's appeal, and stated that he had evidence, that the bank meant to curtail its discounts and wind up its affairs.—They had curtailed ten per cent, though they had not advanced so rapidly in their object as the bank of Loudoun.—The amendment reported by the Committee was then adopted.

Mr. Wilson moved to add "The Monongalia Farmers' Company of Virginia" after the word "Winchester" just added—Agreed to.

Mr. Marshall moved to add "The Warrenon Company" in the county of Fauquier.—He had no interest or connection with that bank—and therefore he could not positively state its situation—but he had been told by its President, that they were endeavoring to comply with the requisition of the law.—His colleague informed him, they had curtailed so largely, their dealers could not comply with their demands—it has so happened, that he has no documents with him; but the Bank meant to have sent them on—if he had the least suspicion that they meant not to comply with the law; he would not have made this application.—But if this indulgence be granted to one Bank, that is striving to obey the law, why not all?—The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. Jackson (of Harrison) moved to add "The Saline Bank"—Though he had received no communication from that bank, he could say that they had negotiated no new paper since the last summer—that they had curtailed 20 percent every 60 days—and intended to wind up their affairs.

Mr. Mercer said that he had heard of certain reports in relation to the Saline Bank, injurious to the credit of the institution, and derogatory to the character of the gentlemen who conduct it, and that it gave him pleasure to have it in his power, by calling on the gentlemen from Harrison to explain them, to give him an opportunity to vindicate the institution, and the reputation of those concerned.

Mr. Jackson requested the member from Loudoun to state the nature of the reports alleged to.

Mr. Mercer replied that one report was, that the Directors, or a majority of them, had determined to divide the stock among themselves.

Mr. Jackson answered that that report was utterly untrue.

Mr. Mercer then stated, that he had been further informed, that they had made an attempt to take the funds from the possession of the cashier, who was under the necessity of defending them by force, and that an injunction had been applied for by some of the parties concerned, to the Chancellor, which had been granted.

Mr. Jackson said, that report was also untrue—but it was true, however, that the Directors had resolved to make some considerable loans, such as would have had the effect of increasing their discounts to the amount of forty thousand dollars, or upwards. But that they re-considered the subject and reversed their order, and came to a determination to make no further loans, and had commenced an effort in order to comply with the law.—He admitted that an injunction had been granted, principally, as believed, from an apprehension that the Banks would continue to discount, and disobey the law—And that the principal object of the bill, as he understood it, was to restrain discounts and dissolve the partnership.

Mr. Doddridge said, that he had been applied to as Counsel for the Directors in that injunction—and supposed that on that occasion he had made himself acquainted with all the facts; and so, the statements made by the member from Harrison were strictly correct.

The proposed amendment was then agreed to.

Mr. Mercer next moved to add the "Leesburg Union Company"—stating, that no banking company was perhaps better entitled to indulgence—that their curtailments constituted a moiety of the debt due to them—and that they were going on, to the last moment he had heard from them. He knew, that a new bank had been agitated there—but he wished the two to stand on different grounds.—He disclaimed any sort of connection with either of these institutions. He had originally wished to discourage their establishment; confessed that they were imprudently established; but stated that they had entangled in their destinies the wealth, comfort and independence of that country—which might suffer materially, if the Legislature compelled the banks to descend with rapidity—that if very heavy curtailments were made, or if all their debts were called in at once, the pressure upon their customers must be distressing.—What would be the effect of winding up at once, two banks in one county, which had loaned out 2, 3, or 400,000 dollars? He was the last to countenance any violation of the law; but he did sincerely believe, they were attempting bond fide to wind up their concerns. All that they asked, was a short time to get in the operations demanded of them with the charted Banks of Virginia. Both laws had been passed in the same session—both had gone into effect about the same time. But the operations required of the Uncharted Banks were much greater than those demanded of the old Banks. The old Banks had only to pay Specie on the 15th of November—they had to prepare for this event only. But the uncharted institutions were called upon to wind up their affairs altogether. All their paper was to be drawn in; all their debts collected. While the dealers of the unincorporated banks then were called upon to pay up their whole debt, those of Richmond were only required to pay as much as would permit the Banks to resume specie payments, which by the operation of the war they had ceased to do. Mr. D. said that he did not know that any measure like the bill proposed last winter, for aiding the banks would be asked for during the present session; it was possible that after this bill passed, the whole matter would lay over 'till the next session, when a banking system might be brought forward for the west, similar to the existing system of the Virginia banks. This law then was perhaps sufficient for the present.—The Charlestown Manufacturing and Exporting Company might perhaps wind up their concerns sooner than the 15th of August.—Is it not a very bad ## THE GRAVE.

Of man, that is of woman born,
Lives but a day, and lives to mourn!
Life is a stormy sea at best:
The GRAVE the haven of his rest!

O, many a sea I've cross'd to find
A balm to heal a troubled mind;
But I'll roam no more by land or wave
For there's no rest but in the Grave!

I met a beggar-by the way,
With sunken cheek and tresses grey—
"Cold blows the wind," he said and said,
"And thin and tattered is my plaid:
The rain beats hard, the north winds rave:
But there's a shelter in the Grave."

I saw a mother who sat and cried,
And wrung her hands by the highway side—
"Hush! hush, my babes! no bread I have,
But there's no hunger in the Grave!

I saw in his field an aged man,
The sweat down his wrinkled visage ran;
O'er come with toil, he laid him down,
I saw him weep, and heard him groan,
"O this is a life of toil, at best,
But in the silent Grave there's rest!"

A widow sat by her husband's tomb;
Her eyes rained tears, and she wail'd her doom:
I heard her sob and I heard her rave—
There is no mourning in the Grave!

An old man stood by a willow tree,
And wept and wail'd most bitterly—
"My heart is broke, and my peace is gone,
For in that grave lies my only son:
God justly took what he kindly gave;
But there is comfort in the Grave!"

I went to the Lazar house to see.
The sick man's wo and agony;
There, some were scorched by the fever's fire;
And some were racked by convulsions dire;
By pale consumption some were blasted;
By bloated dropsy some were wasted;
Some groaned aloud, some shrieked aghast,
And cried, "this life's a life of pain;
"They aid, Death thy aid I crave—
"For there's no sickness in the Grave!"

I walk'd on the shore of the Ocean's flood,
When the waves were high, and the winds were loud.
And I saw a ship on the tossing main,
She sunk with her crew, ne'er to rise again!
But the waves may roar, the winds may rave—
There is no tempest in the Grave!

I wandered forth in a lonesome grove
And heard a youth bewail his love—
"O sad is the hopeless lover's doom;
But there is a quiet in the Tomb!"

If life is a stormy sea at best,
And the grave the haven of our rest,
Shall man the waves and tempest bear
When the port is nigh, and safety there!
