JOHN MCINTOSH, PROPRIETOR. ... Please give me a call when you next visit the [Jan'y 16, 1866-6m.] A Senatorial Rebuke.

In a recent debate upon the civil rights bill in the Senate, Mr. Wade, of Ohio, opposed the postponement of the vote which was asked for in order to enable the Senators who were ill to be in attendance when the vote should be taken, and said : ,

I am very frank to say that when gentlemen tell us that if we persist here with all the physical power the Almighty has put into our hands we may probably prevail, it is not an argument against my staying here, stand-ing by the Constitution, standing by these powers that the Constitution has armed me with, and which I have no right or authority to give up. No Senator on this floor has any right to surrender the authority with which we are clothed. The moment a President can rise and interpose his interference with a question purely congressional and legislative, your Constitution is not worth the paper upon which it is written. That is the reason that I urge, and beg of my friends on this floor to take every advantage that the Almighty has put into your hands to maintain, uphold, and sustain that Constitution that we have sworn

Mr. McDougall, of California, administered the following severe and dignified rebuke to

Mr. McDougall .- Mr. President, the Senator from Ohio is in the habit of appealing to valuable recipes, take pleasure in presenting to the world articles which now stand second to none conduct; it is a common thing for him to do so; but in view of the present demonstration, it may be well to ask who and what is his God. In the old Persian mythology there was an Oromasdes and an Ahriman—a god of light and beauty, and a god of darkness and death. The god of light sent the sun to shine and gentle showers to fructify the fields; the god of darkness sent the tornado and the tempest and the thunder scathing with pestilence the nations. And in old Chaldean times men came to worship Ahriman, the god of darkness, the god of pestilence and famine; and his priests became multitudinous, they swarmed the land, and when men prayed then their offerings were, "We will not sow a field of grain, we will not dig a well, we will not plant a tree." These were the offerings to the dark spirit of evil until a prophet came. who redeemed that ancient land; but he did

> The followers of Ahriman always appealed to the same spirit manifested by the Senator from Ohio. Death is to be one of his angels WORM MIXTURE. | now to redeem the Constitution and the laws and to establish liberty. Sickness, suffering, evil, are to be his angels; and he thanks the Almighty, his Almighty, that sickness, danger and evil are about! It may be a good god for him in this world; but if there is any truth in what we learn about the orders of religion in this Christian world, his faith will not help him when he shall ascend up and ask entrance at the crystal doors. If there can be evil expressed in high places that communicates evil thoughts, that communicates evil teachings; that demoralizes the youth who receive impressions as does the wax, it is by such lessons as the Senator from Ohio now teaches by word of mouth as Senator in this

Sir, the President of the United States is a constitutional officer, clothed with high power, and clothed with the very power which he has exercised in this instance, and those who conferred upon him these powers were men such as Madison and Jay and Hamilton and Morris and Washington and a host of worthies, men who, I think, knew as much about the laws of government, and how they should be rightly balanced, as any of the wisest who now sit here in council. It is the duty of the President of the United States to stand as defender of the Constitution in his place, as the conservator of the rights of the people, as it was in old Rome when the people did choose their tribunes to go. into the Senate Chamber among the aristocracy of Rome, and when they passed laws injurious to the Rochasing of every kind of MERCHANDISE. We invite orders for the best PERUVIAN GUANO AND FERTILIZERS of the most approved brands. man people, to stand and say, "I forbill it." That is the veto power, incorporated wisely by our fathers in the Constitution, conferred upon the President of the United States, and to be treated with consideration; and no appeal of the Senator to his God can change the Constitution of the rights of the President of the United States, or can prevent a just consideration of the dignity of this Senate body by persons who have just considera-tion; who feel that they are Senators.

It is a strange thing, an exceedingly strange thing, that when a few Senators in the city of Washington, ill at their houses, give assurance that they can be here to act upon a great public question on the day following this, we should hear a piece of declamation, the Senator appealing to his God, and saying with an Io triomphe air, "Well or ill, God has made them ill." Sir, the god of desolation, the god of darkness, the god of evil is his god. I never expected to hear such objections raised among honorable men; and men to be Senators should be honorable men. I never expected to hear such things in this Hall; and I rose simply to say that such sens timents were to be condemned, and must receive my condemnation, now and here, and if it amounts to a rebuke, I trust it may be a rebuke.

THE LARGEST MAN IN THE WORLD .- A number of years ago the Nashville Dispatch published a statement which was not generally credited at the time. The editor in a late number of the paper revives the story, and claims that he can substantiate it by hundreds of responsible citizens in Henderson county, Tennessee. The substance of the original article is given as follows:

"Miles Darden was, beyond all question, the largest man in the world, at least since the days when there were giants in the land. His height was seven feet and six inches two inches higher than Porter, the Kentucky, giant. His weight was a fraction over one thousand pounds. He measured around the waist six feet and four inches; and it took one hundred feet of plank to make his coffin. No. 172, West Pratt St., near Maltby House,

Forney's Opinion of Jefferson Davis in | The Hanging of Shields at the Libby

In September, 1861, some weeks after the battle of Bull Run, it was reported that Jefferson Davis had died in Richmond, and Mr Forney (D. D.), who professed to have known him long and well, wrote the following obituary notice of him, which appeared in The

The intelligence of the death of Jefferso Davis seems to be confirmed. When Ste A. Douglas was called away, a fiendish ultation was exhibited in many of the sec sion papers. The malignity with which the punished his independenc ed over the eternal bar. He was an positive public man. He rarely surrendered an opinion once formed until he degraded himself by throwing behind him his volun-ry professions in favor of the Union. He was a close student, a chivalric opponent, a steadfast friend, a gentleman in all his relations, and in his own family singularly kind and genial. Although undoubtedly the head and heart of the Southern Rebellion, he went into it reluctantly, as all who heard his last speech in the Senate will remember, when with broken accents and tearful eyes he bid farewell at once to that body and to all his real greatness. Jefferson Davis was blessed with many accomplishments. He was alike a soldier and a statesman. No public man of my acquain-tance was more devoted to scientific pursuits and more familiar with the abstruse teachings of political philosophy. No branch of hu-man knowledge seemed to be unworthy of his investigation. He was equally attentive to classical literature, to the details of military life, to the doctrines of political parties, to the study of men; and if Professor Bache, of the Coast Survey could speak, he would say of the fine work of which he is the accomplished head, and which has latterly proved its unconquerable usefulness, that Jefferson Davis was as conersant with the smallest minutize of that noble institution as any other man not directly connected with it. He was passionately devoted to the Smithsonian Institution, of which he was a regent in former times.

He devoted himself to the decoration of this capital, and stood by Captain (now General) Meigs in all his efforts to construct the water works, to finish the Capitol building on the grandest scale, and to push forward the extensions of the Interior and Treasury Departments. He was undoubtedly a great Secretary of War, and in this high office nothing so much delighted hill as to take young men by the hand, and when worthy, to advance them. If he educated Beauregard to destroy the Republic, he conferred many advantages upon McClellan to save it. If he assisted Lee and Johnston, and thus strengthened their hands for injury against the flag, he greatly favored Meigs, to uphold it.

[From the Philadelphia Ledger, Friday.] Antoine Probsti

There has not been any change in the conduct of Antoine Probst, indicted for the murder of the Deering family and others, within the past few days. He manifests the same indifference to his fate, speaks mildly when spoken to, but does not incline to converse; eats his rations with an apparently good appetite, sleeps well, (as - well as his handcuffs and manacles will admit of,) and reads such religious books as are furnished him by his spiritual adviser. Quite a number of persons have visited the prison in the hope of being able to see him, but few have had their curiosity gratified

For the first few days of his incarceration. a request, made by the chief of the detective force, that he should not be permitted to be seen by visitors, was carried out; and since the assignment of counsel by the Court, a similar request by them is complied with. Probst still adheres to the story first told by fully behind the ear, and death was instaneous. him, in respect to an accomplice. Not only to his counsel, but to the priest who visited him yesterday, did he declare that he had a confederate in the murder; yet the police have not been able to obtain any trace of such a person as is described by him. They have not, however, abandoned the pursuit, but are using every means to test the truth or falsity of his story. The weight of the evidence and circumstances thus far developed is against his oft-repeated and solemnly asserted declarations.

Probst is willing, and his counsel will consent, to enter a plea of guilty of killing the boy Cornelius Carey, upon the condition that he is not to be tried on the other bills. It is questionable, however, if the District Attorney agree to this. And inasmuch as it is essential to bring out all the testimony bearing upon the important question whether he was or was not the only ac scene, it will be well if he or in the bloody to it. Actuated alone by a mercenary spirit, he deserted at the first opportunity, and several times in the course of the rebellion enlisted and deserted; in other words, he was a "bounty-jumper." He has relatives in good circum-stances in Germany, and from a brother he received enough money a short time ago to pay his passage back to the Old Country, which money he spent in the haunts of vice.

A bashful youth was paying his addresses to a gay lass of the country, who had long despaired of bringing things to a crisis. He called one day when she was at home alone. After settling the merits of the weather, the girl said, looking slyly into his face:

"I dreamed of you last night"

"Did you? why—how?"

"Yes, I dreamed that you kissed me."

"Why, now? what did you dream your mother said?"

Prison for Murder-The Scenc at-the Scaffold, Etc.

MAY 1, 1866.

Yesterday, shortly after noon, Thomas hields, a soldier of the United States service, was hung at the Libby Prison, for the murder of Taylor, in conjunction with a man named Clarke, on the Williamsburg road.

Sergeant Clarker, of the Eleventh infantry, entered the cell of the condemned man at twenty-five minutes past twelve o'clock. Fathers Andrews and Becker were with the accused. Shields occoupied No. 14 of the Libby cells. Richard Turner and a deserter of his official life—he felt assured that he was act. named Hartley, and a garroter, had an interview with Shields. They were each conducted out of their cells. Shields wept freely in these interviews, but was very uncommunicahis handkerchief in his bosom, and kept continually remarking that he had done his best.

When Sergeant Clacker took the key and unlocked the cell door. Shields was enjoying a siesta. He arose to his feet at once, and asked them if they were ready; if they want-ed to carry him to the scaffold. This remark tion, the frank confidence of their adversaries, was accompanied by a most horrid oath. Fa-thers Andrews and Becker put up the cruiffx, which they had been forced to capitulate. and asked him to recognize Jesus Christ as These were no new sentiments of his. A few the Saviour of mankind. Shields, with a terrible oath, said he defied Jesus Christ and all of them. The saintly priest put up the cruci-

At last, at twenty min-utes to one o'clock, Sargeant Clacker notified Shields that his time was at up. In the meantime the time guard had supplied Shields with whiskey, and at his last moments he was drunk in his cell. The sergeant, at one o'clock, entered his cell and opened the door, throwing ken root. [Loud and enthusiastic applause.] down the penderous bolt. The floods, says the Lansing Journal, in this part of Iowa, in strength, volume and destructiveness, which lately visited us, have never had a parallel in the memory of any one. The Northwestern portion of our country is very rough and broken. Hills and hollows are on every hand, the former towering into respectable mountains, the latter sinking into speech in which he strongly commended the feet, and this characteristic is particularly marked along the Ohio river and vicinity for many miles from its mouth, The rapid deas he had done—acting as he was d to act to the last chapter of his e—he felt assured that he was actconcurrence with the just, gennoble apirit that inspired the Chief scent of the river in places near the Mississip-pi, into which the Iowa River enirties, affords many valuable water-powers, as well as do the smaller tributaries to the latter stream. On one of these, Bear Creek, near the Iowa, is a mill, or rather was, and near by, on ground a trifle more elevated, but above all previous high-water marks, stood a dwelling. These were the property of John McLaughlin, who occupied them. They stood in a large ravine at the confluence of two smaller ones.

On Sunday evening, the 1st instant, the sky was overcast with black and threatening clouds, and angry flashes of lightning darted in every direction around the horizon, and at nine or ten o'clock, the floodgates of heaven was rent asunder, apprrently by the fierce ar-tillery which roared incessantly on every hand, and the water descended in torrents. The entire family perished in that flood under cir-custances of the most heartrending nature. As no one of the seven souls lived to tell the horrid tale of their death, almost all we know is from conjecture. The famity had retired. The rushing of the water and terrible noise of the thunder probably awakened them in time to find the mill battered into fragments by the winds, the floating ice, and the floods meeting above and leaping down in great force.

McLaughlin, supposing the valley would soon be submerged, including the house, in his shirt and pants, and naked feet, ran to the stable, harnessed his horses and hastily putting his family, in their night dresses, in the wagon, started by the road to higher ground. Between his dwelling and the bluff was a depression of the ground.

He probably reached this, when the current vent the horses, wagon, and the precious load of human lives into the surging flood, among floating trees and cakes of ice, leaping and dashing towards the river, and there, amidst the merciless storm, terrified, bruised and bleeding, the thunder crashing in deafening peals overhead, the sky now a glare of dazzling brightness, and against a bank of pitchy gloom, these seven souls were forever freed from the agonies of a death which embodies the whole meaning of the word "terrible." The body of the father was found near the horses, about a mile and a half from the house; the horses lodged against some trees close by. The body of Mrs. McLaughlin and the two younger children had not been found at last ecounts. Russian Courtesy.

Last November, Col. Julian Allen of New York requested the United States to use its good offices with the Russian Government to obtain for the exile, Sir Michael Meyendorff, permission to join his family in this country. The latter is quite a young man, who took part in the Polish revolution of 1862, and for this was banished to Siberia. The Russian Government, in its sincere friendship for the United States Government, granted the application, making this an exceptional case, and extended to the released exile marked attention. AMENDMENT. At the election to be held in the State of West Virginia, on the 4th Thursday of this month, the people, or such of them as Goy. Boreman and his many Boards of Supervisors and the "test oath," will permit, will be called upon to vote on the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State-a proposition which will affect the State, for good or evil, according to the result of the vote, for many years, if not for all time. FURTHER DISMEMBERMENT. .

Not satisfied with robbing the State of Virginia of the counties of Berkeley and Jefferson, and the people generally of their rights, Virginia, which arrived in New York harbor the radicals in Congress propose a further dismemberment of the Old Dominion. In the Senate of the United States, on the 24th ult., Mr. Wade of Ohio, introduced a bill to repeal the act to retrocede the county of Alexandria, in the District of Columbia; to the Returned, State of Virginia. The preamble of the bill sets forth that the rebellion has demonstrated the wisdom of preserving the ten miles square under the exclusive control of Congress, both for civil and military purposes, and for the defense of the Capital, and that the act of retrocession to Virginia is declared null and void, and that the jurisdiction of Congress and the laws provided for the District of Columbia are again put in force; private and personal property not to be affected by this act so far as the rights of private parties are concerned. All civil offices in the said retroceded portion of the District in the city and county of Alexandria, are declared vacant, the vacancies to be filled by new appointments or elections to be held under the laws governing elections in the District of

The bill was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

COLORADO.

On Wednesday last, the Senate of the United States; by a vote of 19 to 13, passed the bill providing for the admission of Colorado, and we presume no serious objections will be offered to its adoption in the House of Representatives, as no important influence will be exercised on the composition of that body by the admission of a single member. Although the population of Colorado is comparatively small, it may now be considered stable, and is probably destined to a rapid and regular increase hereafter.

The Freedmen.

General Steedman's Mission in the South-The Freedmen's Bureau-The Labor Question in Virginia. By order of the War Department, a commission of inquiry has been issued into the working of the Freedmen's Bureau in the South. The commissioners appointed are Major General J. B. Steedman, of Ohio, and Brigadier General J. S. Fullerton, of Missouri, two officers said to be eminently qualified to discharge the duties assigned them. The correspondent of the Herald who accompanies the commission, thus writes from Charlottesville, Va., under date of the 6th instant :

Everywhere I have been I have found the nost kindly relations subsisting between blacks and whites. I have seen tormer slaves orking cheerfully for their old masters, still ling them "massa" as of old; former is supporting the aged and infirm of eir former slaves, perfect confidence existing on the one side, perfect reliance on the other. THE CIRCUIT COURT .- This court termi- Outrages, such as have been described in the northern papers, committed by white men negroes, have undoubtedly occurred; but they have been exceptional cases, and are no more indicative of the general sentiment of the population than are stray porterffrays indicative of t large colored population engaged exclusively in agricultural pursuits. About forty of the principal planters waited this morning upon deneral Steedman and discussed with freedom their position and prospects. One of the number, Mr. W. P. Farish, a leading Virginian, who served as colonel in the rebel army, related his experience, which may be taken as a fair example of the general feeling of the people. He stated that at the end of the war e had one hundred and eleven negroes, most of whom he still retained in his service, as well as several house servants who pleaded poverty and begged to be allowed to remain on the plantation. Only last week he sent his wagons over to Buckingham to bring over another set who had no other claim upon him but that they were the father and mother, brothers and sisters of his shoemaker. All county, held at Shepherdstown on Wednesday of these negroes were now working for him at monthly wages, without written contracts; and were working contentedly and well, "I have changed my opinion entirely," said Col. Farish; "regarding the negroes, I used to think they would never make valuable members of society. But they have behaved so admirably during the war, they have shown so much good feeling towards the white pepulation, so much good feeling has been exhibit ed by the whites towards them, and the new well, that I have changed my views entirely The presence of the Freedmen's Bureau, though it is well administered here, only tends to promote bad feeling among the vicious." In these views all of those present concurred. One or two gentlemen acknwledged that the bureau had been considerable service in the past, but considered that its continuance longer than another six months would tend to introduce elements of discord where none now existed. I conversed subsequently with a number of colored people, and found that they were every whit as satisfied with their former masters as their employers were with them, and were no more anxious for the perpetua tion of the freedmen's court.

TEACHING A COLORED SUNDAY SCHOOL. One of the most remarkable illustratious of the good feeling prevailing in the community I witnessed on Sunday afternoon. In a large school room under the Baptist church. about three hundred colored children, of all assembled, and thirty or forty white persons, many of them belonging to the first families in the country, and most of them the sons and the Shepherdstown and Smithfield turnpike daughters of former slavcowners, were engaged in teaching them. The superintendent of the school was Mr. A. P. Abell, of the National Bank. Among the teachers were Miss Ann Gilmore, sister of Gov. Gilmore; Mrs. Thompson Brown, wife of a colonel in the rebel army, and Mrs. H. P. Loutham, widow of the late professor of Richmond College, and a number of ladies connected with the Albemarle Female Institute. Clear away in one corner of the room a distinguished and learned law prefessor of the Virginia University (Professor Minor) was laboriously engaged in teaching one bright-eyed little darkey his letters, and quite a number of the students of the University were pursuing similar avocations. Shooting affair in Richmond

On Thursday afternoon week, a shooting affair occurred on Broad street, Richmond, between Dr. T. Clay Maddux, and a Mr. Vernon. From the examination before the Mayor, we gather the following facts :

Policeman J. B. Angle testified that while standing on Broad street near the corner of Fifth, his attention was called from the middle of the street to Vernon to come out into the street and fight like a man. Vernion, who was standing on the pavement, replied with an oath and called upon Maddux to disarm himself. Some other language took place between the parties, whereupon they each drew pistels and nmerced firing. Witness thought Vernon fired two shots and Maddux one. After the firing, witness ascertained that Maddux was Governors. He is a monstrosity. He is a wounded, and assisted him to the Station house. As soon as the witness heard the firing he seized Dr. Maddux, and while holding him, he thought Vernon made other attempts to fire. The parties, witness thought, occupied their respective positions from the commence-ment of the difficulty to its close.

D. D. Mott was in the neighborhood of the firing when it commenced. Saw policeman Angle take hold of Dr. Maddux, and just as he did so Vernon fired from across the street. Henry C. Smith testified that on Thursday afternoon, while passing through Capitol Sauare, he was overtaken by Vernon, who informed him that he expected a difficulty with Dr. Maddax, and asked witness if he would not go with him and see fair play. Witness agreed to do so, and they proceeded up Broad street, and while on the way Vernon remarked that he did not wish to meet Dr. Maddux, but if they did meet one or the other would be a dead man. This remark was heard by Dr. Maddux's wife, who was passing along, and she went over to the Dector's office (as witness supposed) to inform him of what she had heard. Witness and Vernon shortly afterwards saw Dr. Maddux come out of his office. in company with Mr. Magwire, and approach in the direction of Broad and Sixth streets. Vernon and witness walked down Fifth street to Franklin, in order to avoid a crowd, should a fight take place. After proceeding a short distance, witness looked back, and finding that the Doctor was not following behind they turned back and walked to Broad.

Upon reaching the corner of Fifth street Maddux came into the middle of the street. thay are released to sue Mayor Latham for and asked Vernon to come out into the street. at the same time calling him (Vernon) a -"d n coward and scoundrel." Vernon said to Maddux, "disarm yourself." The firing soon after commenced; but witness could not say who fired first. About three shots were fired; but witness could not say who fired first. Witness thought Vernon displayed a due share of reckless fortitude, and he himself was afraid to interfere while the Gen. Grant, who has been spending shooting was going on. After Maddux had venom, and distils venom from his nose. Not his hring again. The last shot fired by from the sooty throat of the Devil, were ever Vernon was discharged in the air, as witness, sceing the pistol aimed at Maddux, struck the arm of Vernon and it was discharged in Dr. Maddux's office, on Thursday, Mrs. Maddux called and desired the Doctor to come did so, and was informed by Mrs. Maddux - The Washington correspondent of the that she had heard Vernon remark, as she passed him on the street, "There she comes now; I'll kill him or he shall kill me." Dr. Maddux requested his wife to go home, and he would attend to the matter. In a short while Maddux left his office, in company with the witness, and as they did so, the doctor remarked that it was best to meat the issue with Vernon openly and in the day time, forhe did not wish to be surprised behind, as he had been in the case of Major Dixon, at Alexandria. The parties subsequently met and exchanged a few words; closely followed

Mr. James Young and other witnesses testified substantially as above reported, after which his Honor remanded Dr. Maddux for indictment by the grand jury, and sent Vernon on for examination before the Hustings Court. Both parties were bailed in the sum

Prentice on Brownlow

Prentice is after the miserable old sinner Browlow with a whip of scorpions. He da guerreotypes him in the following withering nanage, which is as true as it is severe:

It is most extraordinary and most disgraceful that any portion of the people of Tennessee, knowing this man as they all did, voted to make him Governor of that State Their only excuse must be, that they were under military law, and so not really free agents in his election. No other State was ever afflicted and disgraced and cursed with such an unmitigated and unmitigable, such an unredeemed and irredeemable blackguard as her Chief Magistrate. He is a parody, a caricature, a broad burlesque on all possible thing as much out of nature as Barnum's woolly horse or his giants and dwarfs or his calf with two heads and eight legs-four of the legs pointing toward the zenith. His blood is hell-broth, which Satan will one day sup up with a long spoon. They say there is fire in him, but it is hell-fire, every particle of it. Though he is but a single swine, there are as many devils in him as there were in the whole herd that "ran violently down a steep place into the sea." His heart is nothing but a hissing knot of vipers, rattlesnakes; cobra, and cotton-mouths. He never argued a question in his life, approaching no subject but with fierce, bitter, coarse, low, and valgar objurgations. His tongue should be bored through and through with his own steel-pen, heated red-hot. This man, as we have said, calls himself a clergyman. He holds forth in the pulpit. He preaches, prays, and exhorts, draws down his face drops the corners of his mouth, and undertakes to look sanctimonious. And yet he seems always trying in his pulpit discourses to see under how thin a guise he can venture to curse and swear and blaspheme. He can't offer up a prayer in the house of God without telling the Lord what an infernal scoundrel, damned thief, or cursed vagnbond, this, that, or the other neighbour is From his youth up to his old age, he has had no personal controversies without attacking the wives, fathers, mothers, grand-fathers. grand-mothers, brothers, sisters, children, uncles, aunts, and nephews of his opponents. He has sought to strew his whole path of life with the dark wrecks of wantonly-ruined reputations. He has never had an hour's happiness except in the unhappiness of others: He has ever said to Evil, "be thou my good!" He has always carefully hunted down all that he heard unfavorable to gentlemen while professing to be their friend, so as to be ready for the day of alienation. He howls venom, talks venom, breathes venom, belches venom, coughs venom, sneezes venom, spits venom, sweats venom, stinks less pit, not the fire-and-brimstone fumes more blighting and blasting than his accursed serpent-breath. He never had a friend on earth, outside of his own family. No doubt there are those who fear him for his fiendish ferocity, but no human being not of his own household ever loved or respected him. He will yet have his reward. Sowing in wrath. he will reap in agony. Fury and hate may stifle in his heart the feeling of remorse for a time, but Nemesis, with her horrid whip, will yet scourge him around the whole orb of being. All the hairs upon his head will seem to him to be snakes like the hissing and fork tongued locks of the Eumenides .-When he shall retire, as he soon must, from the noisy and tumultuous strifes that have ever engaged and still engage all his thoughts; he will not have a solitary pleasant and serene memory of the past. On the contrary, a store of bitter, desclate and torturing recollections will corrode and eat up his very heart, until; cut off from the pale of all the beautiful genialities of life, having no friends or companions around him to soothe him in his physi-'cal' and moral solitude, deserted by mankind whose enemy he has been and loathed by God whose holy temples he has sacriligiously des-ecrated by his horrid mockeries of religion; festering from head to foot with the polluted and poisonous puddle-water in his veins, stand ing as an outcast and paria on the lone desert of despair, shrinking from the past, agonized by the present, and not during to gaze into the future; beholding in facey upon the door of his own soul the words "Hope comes not here that comes to all," shut out by murkiest cioud; from every star that to others lights the path to the tomb, and writhing under myriad curses and exectations piled like mountains of living coals upon his head, he shall long at last to make his escape from earthscarcely asking to what more dreadful destiny:

The Gold Captured by Sherman.

It will be remembered (says a Washington dispatch) that, after the surrender of General Lee, the military in Georgia captured $100; 000 in gold, which was claimed by the Farmers, the Exchange and the Bank of Virginia, at Richmond. Recent investigations of the fact, however, show that a few weeks before the evacuation of Richmond, the Legislature of Virginia passed a law authorizing said banks to loan the Confederate Covernment, upon the faith of the State, $300,000 in gold to purchase supplies for General Lee's army. This sum was placed by the respective banks to the credit of the rebel government, and before the surrender of Lee, $90,000 was paid. leaving $240,000 belonging to the rebel gov-ernment with those banks at the time of the evacuation. The government, therefore, claims not only the $100,000 captured in Georgia, but also the $340,000 additional in the custody of the banks. This is the present condition of the question. The notes of these banks have been bought up with the expectation that the government would relinquish its title to the $200,000 of gold.

HOPEFUL -A firm in Wheeling ordered, the other day, some envelopes bearing its address from the Post-Office Department .-When they came to hand, the word "West" was found to have been omitted, and the firm made to hail from Wheeling, Va. We wel-Washington; and our pleasure would be more unalloyed but for our having seen, in some government advertisements printed in juxta-'Va.' and 'West Va.' The red-tape mind is obviously unsettled as to what, of where, West Virginia is or its rightful existence at all. Ere long, we trust, it may revert to the rules of interpertation and action which pre-vailed among all our publicists down to 1861; and discover that the 'so-called' new State has no more legal existence than the Fenian Republic.—Winchester News.

and two men, while ploughing, suddenly disappeared. As additional evidence it is said that an eyeless catfish is found in the waters of the Conestoga, which flows past the city, and very propably is connected with the subterranean cavity. These are curious stories, which are given for what they are worth.

— A brisk recruitment for Maximilian's army in Mexico is going on in Austria.

— The Richmond Dispatch says that if the State of West Virginia be ever merged again into Virginia, the union will be the result of a judicial decision, and not the voluntary act of the blinded, bigoted ignoramuses who control the destinies of the new State. The erection of that State was an acconstitutional act; and a wrong of that nature cannot be corrected into a right by the mere lapse of time.

The Democratic Association of Washington City have united on Mayor Wallach for fe election. The Intelligencer hails it as a sigh that the people, Trespective of the feelings of former leaders, desire to determine matters at the polls upon the new and paramount issue of Andrew Johnson and his policy. In this aspect they are Johnson men, and by that designation they can sweep the country as did the Jackson men of 1828 and 1832."

It is understood that the President has resolved speedily to clear the public offices of all Disdbionists, otherwise called Radicals, and has indeed already commenced the work. This has set the dominant party in Congress upon expedients to thwart him; and the conflict is likely to be exceedingly acrimonious. The admission of Colorado, will, it is supposed, give to the Radicals in the senate, a reliable working majority of two-thirds.

INCENDIARY FIRE IN WINCHESTER .-About half-past eight o'clock on Sunday 'evening the store room lately occupied by German Smith, but more recently by John, Loder, on Main street, Winchester, was discovered to be on fire. The flames were soon extinguished. It appears that Mr. Loder had bribed two youths, named Fisher Spillman and Charles Thayer, with $1200 to set fire to his own store, in order that he might secure the insurance policy of $20,000 transferred to him by German Smith, from whom he purchased the goods. The stock on hand at the time amounted to about $4000. The counters and floor were covered with tar and the goods saturated with coal oil. Loder has left for parts unknown.

-It is believed, says the New York News, that the President will soon issue another prolamation in regard to the status of the Southern States, including Texas, and stating explicitiv that martial law is at an end and the writ of habeas corpus restored.

The following is an Act by which the Senate is trying to shut off the President's patronage lever: That no person exercising or performing the duties of any office, which by law is required to be filled by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. shall until he is confirmed by the Senate, receive any salary or compensation for his services, puless he be commissioned by the President to fill a vacancy which began to exist during the recess of the Sensie, and since its last adjourment.

LAMB CARRIED OFF BY AN EAGLE. -- On Friday ! lest some farmers engaged in plowing on the farm. of 'Squire Shadnon, in Fallowfield township, Washington county, witnessed a scene somewhat strange to that neck of woods. In an adjoining field some ewes and lambs were quietly grazing, and while the attention of the playman was directed to them by remarks of some one in the crowd, a large Amera ican eagle was seen to swoop down, and seizing a week old lamb, with a loud scream flew off far above the tree tops, bearing the bleating lamb in its talons. This sudden rise in mutton so astonished the far-mers that for a while they maintained a silence not minized with admiration, but recovering themselves set up a shout and halloo which seemingly fright. ened the proud bird, for it let go us hold and the lamb fell to the ground with a force which reduced it to a state of mutton chors and sheep skin in a very short space of time .- Pittsburg Gaz.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

RAY'S REAPER AND MOWER. MOWER, ever offered to the citizens of the Valley of Virginia, is now on exhibition at Berryville at the Old Tavern, by Mu. JAMES E. NORRIS Baltimore, formerly a resident of Clarke county. The Machine is a Southern invention, and is offered for sale by Southern gentlemen. The advantages of this Machine consist in its simplicity and durability-having no Cog Wheels, and therefore notas liable to get out of repair as the other Reancrs and Mowers which have been formerly sold in this section of Virginia. This Machine has been tested by a large nun ber of Farmers, throughout Maryland and Pennsylvania, all of whom testify to its superiority over all others. Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Light NOW on exhibition at the store of LEISENRING SON & CO., in Charlestown. Artificial light of some sort is a universal neces-Artificial light of some sort is a universal necessity; a safe, cheap and brilliant one, is a luxury; a uxurytoo, only enjoyed heretofore by those living in large towns or cities where Gas is used. Years of study and thousands of dollars annually have been spent by experiments of different kinds, in trying to invert and perfect a Burneror Lamp by which Coal Oil could be burned practically without the expense and trouble of chimneys, this long looked for and much desired object has at last been obtained, and is styled the ATMOSPHERIC ... m COAL OIL GAS LAMP. Its adaptation to Dwellings, Churches, Railroads Steamboats, Hotels, Stores, &c., is unsurpassed; in short, this invention brings the luxerius and brilliant Gas light within the reach of all, whether in city or country. It gives the light of a six foot Gas Burner for less than one cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of the ordinary chimney lamp, with one-third less oil; will burn, when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for one sent, is free from snoke or smell; can be carried from room to room, the wind will not blow it out.

This light, is destined to supersede all portable artificial light or chimney lamps now in use; thou artificial light or chimney lamps now in use; thou; sands of them will find ready sale in every county; no family that uses this light one evening will again be annoyed with the chimney-lamps. Thousands of them will be used in cities, as this light is one-lialf cheaper than Coal Gas, and much more pleasant to the eye. The exclusive agency for the sale of this Lamp can be secured in every county through out the United States, and parties purchasing will be supplied with the Goods at reasonable rates.

Cloves, Mace, Allspice, Nut-megs, Cincamon Bark, Ground Cinnemon, White and Black Mustard Seed, Celery Seed, Papper, Ja-maina Ginger, Race Ginger and Ground Ginger or sale by CAMPBELL & MASON

I listen to the n urmur of the river,
Forever flowing on;
I think of many a hope and high endeavor,
Waves—past and gone! My soul is holding spiritual communing

Too deep for words;
I feel some mastery to itself attuning

The answering chords,

Cold on my brow the heavy dews are clinging,
By night-winds fanned;
The mystic winds in viewless flight are winging
To some far land.

Where do their wanderings cease, or rest they never On shore or sea? Roam they on thus forever and forever, With mournful melody?

Have they no place to which they are returning 'Neath Heaven's wide dome?'
Or are they banished spirits—vainly yearning.
For a lost home?

Is it lament, when they are softly sighing
Amidst spring's earliest leaves?
Or when their music-breath seems faint and dying
In summer's golden eves?

Is it despair, when they are wildly raving
O'er stormy midnight sea?
And ships go down that are too madly braving
Such dreadful misery! I joy to hear them through the forest crashing,

Like giants in their might!

While the bright arrows of the storm are flashing

Upon the dazzled sight!

And when, through midnight skies, they're wildly with deep and solemn wail,
My spirit's chords a unison are keeping
With the fierce northern gale.

I love to meet them through the greenwood straying,
Or on the heath-clad hill;
To see them the long meadow-grasses swaying,
Or roughening the rill.

To catch the tendercst, faintest tone that lingers Amld section strings,
As if the chords were swept by fairy fingers,
Or fanned by angels' wings!

Yet ever then is sadness o'er me stealing,
Dreary and undefined;
Thou wakest oft the strange, wild harp of feeling,
Oh! spiritual wind!

Miscellaneous.

Made 'em Laugh.

At a temperance meeting recently held near the city, an amusing incident took place. A strong exhortation had just been delivered by a speaker present, and the President requested the Secretary to pass around the pledge for signatures, and taking from his pocket what he supposed was the document, he, with-out looking at it, gave it to the Secretary for that purpose. A large number of names were enrolled, of both gentlemen and ladies present, and the document returned. It was observed by the Secretary while passing the paper around, that considerable tittering prevailed among the ladies who took the precaution to table, were about leaving, when the judge contents of the paper, whilst those who did not read it, and designed to sign, did so. After going through the congregation, the Secretary, on his way back, looked at the paper to see what was cause of the amusement, when it was revealed to him, that, instead of the Temperance Pledge, he had passed around and received signatures to a document setting forth the pedigree of a celebrated stallion. A number of the young ladies who signed it, now claim that they are not members of the Society as they have not signed the Pledge.-Norfolk Day Book.

LAUGHABLE .- An ebony colored female of the African persuasion entered a store in Pearl street yesterday, and asked a polite clerk to show her some "flesh colored hose." Taking a second glance at the shade, the young man went in search of the article, returning with a lot of black stockings whereat the sable customer frowned indignantly, turned suddenly upon the "middle of her foot," and "jerked" herself out of the store, remarking as she went that he "couldn't fool her wid dem ole black stockings;' she wanted flesh color or none at all .- Albany Times.

-A very learned and compassionate Judge in Texas, on passing sentence upon John Jones, who had been convicted of murder, concluded his remarks as follows:

"The fact is, Jones, that the Court did not intend to order you to be executed before next spring; but the weather is very cold, and our jail, unfortunately, is in a very bad condition; much of the glass in the windows is broken; the chimneys are in such a dilapidated state that no fire can be made to render your apartments comfortable; besides, owing to the great number of prisoners, not more than one blanket can be allowed to each; to sleep sound and comfortable, therefore, it is out of the question. In consideration of these circumstances, and wishing to lessen your sufferings as much as ossible, the court, in the exercise of its humane compassion, hereby orders you to be executed tomorrow morning, as soon after breakfast as may be convenient to the Sheriff and agreeable to you."

CUT AND THRUST .- In Chicago, the general agent of a well known firm of reaper manufacturers is not noted for wearing clothes above his business, which amounts to some hundreds of thousands; and, having a draft of a thousand dollars to collect of one of the banks, he was desired by the well dressed and polite teller to bring some one who was known to both parties to identify him. Said the general agent,—
"Do I look like a rogue?"

"No," said the teller; "but your clothes don't look as if you were much." "But they are paid for; are yours?" was

An Accommodating Judge.

The following story—only the concluding portion of which we give—is told by Judge J—, of Jackson, Texas, and John Rolfe, a backwoodsman. Rolfe-a tall hunter, dressed in deerskin, and armed with a revolver, rifle and bowie knife-visits Juckson, calls on the Judge at his residence (with the narrator,) and thus relieves his mind:

"You see, judge, early day before yester-day morning, I started for this place, and, as I wouldn't chisel, I went without eating the whole day. I slept in the woods, and yesterday morning I got up as hungry as a panther; and as I walked along, thinks I, what am I to do? I never see game so scarce; there wasn't so much as a squirrel to be found. I'm above cheating any man out of his din-ner; but I felt that a dinner I must have. Just then a fellow comes riding al road. I talked to him, and tried swearing to pay, at any place name, in a week; but the critter paid his way out of his own pocket too little to divide.

"How much have you got?" says I. "Two fifty," says he. "Now, thinks I, that is too little to divide.

So, while he is looking another way, I shoots him through the head, and gin him as decent a burial as I could under an old log and took the two dollars and a half. But it won't do; my conscience misgives me. I'm sorry for it, and I wish the fellar had his money back, if he could be alive. Between you and me, as it is late for that, I think that I ought to be hung."

The judge called his little black boy, ordered three papers of tobacco, and we smoked

"Then you really think you ought to be hung?" he said with compassion, as he whiffed a cloud of smoke toward the ceiling. "I do, in fact," answered Rolfe, emitting similar volume of vapor.

The judge smoked, and considered again. "Well, we'll try to hang you," he added. There was an expression of gratitude in Rolfe's eye as he replied. "Thank you. That will ease my con-

The judge again knocked the ashes from his pipe, and spoke:
"Well, come here in half an hour. I'll try to get a jury."

Rolfe and myself laying our pipes on the asked us to take a drink, which having done we bade him good morning.

At the expiration of half an hour, we returned, when we found some twelve men drinking and smoking with the magistrate, awaiting us. We were politely requested to

"Now," said the judge, addressing him. self to Rolfe, "tell these gentlemen what you have already told me." -Whereupon Rolfe repeated the statement

he had before made. "Now, gentlemen," continued the first speaker, "I wish to say, if this gentleman-Mr. Rolfe your name is eh? well, there's some fine old brandy; make yourself perfectly at home, gentlemen, you find John Rolfe guilty, or not guilty, of murder. In addition to what he said, I will observe for your information, that I have sent out and found the body just where he stated it to be."

The jury smoked, rose up, took a little brandy and water, and then sat down again. and smoked in silence for some time. At last one of them, who appeared to be the foreman, said:

"The case is tolerably clear, and rather we think he's guilty."
"There's more tobacco on the table," said the judge to Rolfe, "the best you can find anywhere. You have heard what these gentlemen have said. Well," he continued, a little uneasily, "I don't like to tell you in my own house ; - but-" "Let that be no hindrance," said Rolfe, filling and lighting his pipe.

"Well, then," continued the judge, "come here at ten o'clock to morrow morning, and I'll have you hung."

Rolfe looked discontented, and appeared mortified at the idea of asking a favor. "You-you have been so kind to me," he said, hesitatingly, "that I hardly like to ask you for anything more."

"Not at all," replied the judge. "Out with it; you are welcome to it before you "Well," said Rolfe, "I wish-to-morrow

BY THE BARD OF MARBLE HALL; In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen bair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roseate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in love by dozens, Frierds and acquaintances, strangers and cousins; But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed,

Until she loved a handsome youth: Who would grant all her requests in truth; And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake.

The young men stood aghast with fear; Some whacked their boots, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funny. Among them there was a fine young man;

Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now!"Il make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be." The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all,

To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL: No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine."
Says Johnny, a laughing, "You dear little elf,
. If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself."
