McINTOSH'S HOWARD HOUSE, HOWARD STREET,

BALTIMORE. JOHN McINTOSH, PROPRIETOR. .... Please give me a call when you next visit the [Jan'y 16, 1866-6m.] General Leslie Combs.

To those who know anything of Gen. Leslie Combs-and who is there that does not?-we commend the reading of the following article:

GENERAL LESLIE COMBS. [From The Paris (Kentucky) Kentuckian ] I regard Kentucky as the most unfortunate State in the Union. I think her people the unhappiest of any on the continent of North America. Nay, I would not hesitate to compare their wretchedness with that of the Hottentots, the Patagonians, the Digger Indians, or, to exhaust the matter, the poor, contemptible patch of Radicals in the State who have just vitality enough to stink, and consciousness sufficient to know their helpless condition. I sometimes think that, as an ndividual, I have been the recipient of more unsolicited confidence, have listened wearily, O, so wearily, to more unwritten autobiographies than any man living. To have poured into the unresisting ear all the real and unreal cares and grief of a long life-time, the disappointments, the failures, the wrongs of many years, the things hoped for, but never realized, the things realized, but never satisfying expectations-to listen, I say, to all this, and never murmur, requires an amount of patience that, in my humble opinion, Job in his saddest days never dreamed of. But when to this affliction as a private man and a friend is added the unutterable misery to which Kentuckians are doomed, what pity can be too profound, what sympathy too earnest and heartfelt, what prayer to heaven too devout over our condition. General Combs is to the poor people of this State—what shall I say? The plagues of Egypt were hard to bear, I doubt not. To have the corn and fruit of the country swept away, to have the leaves of the trees. the grass of the fields and the plants and flowers all devoured; to have bugs and flies CHERRY EXPECTORANT, crawling into our ears and eyes, and swarming over our food at the table; to have toads in our bed and hopping across our lap, would to a certain extent, be troublesome and perhaps disgusting, but in thinking of those sad days for the Egyptians, it would be well, for our sins, to bear in mind that they had Captain" is now nearly one hundred years old, and for fifty years at least he has af-WORM MIXTURE, flicted our people. I am not prepared at present to say why the war of 1812 was fought, or what we gained in glory and conquest, and, therefore, as an American, I may or may not approve of it; but as a Kentuckian. I do say I wished it had never been waged. The battle of the River Raisin is to me the most melancholy event in all history. The "adventures by flood and field" of General Combs during that war have weighed upon my spirits, from earliest recollections, like some horrible nightmare. That trip of his across a boundless waste and through snows, God knows how deep, has been dinned into our ears, as the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end of heroic suffering and fortitude. Many a time, as a school boy, have I attempted to conceive of any instance of sublime devotion to country-of something outside the hackneved cases in classic or modern story, but that dreary adventure of the General's would force itself upon my mind in spite of all I could do, and I would fairly give over in sheer despair. Who fought for Kentucky? Who upheld her name and her honor on the well contested field? Who braved the horrors of the scalping knife and the burning faggot? I do not know; I cannot tell. My memory is strangely affected; my historical readings all broken down. Others may have done so, but I can think of none now save General

Leslie Combs. The general is a candidate for re-election to the Clerkship of the Court of Appeals. He has had the office for six years, with a realization of $5,000 a year, and now he wants it for six years more, and he comes out in a card to that effect. If anything on effects that this old incubus has had upon my mind and to vote for him, it is the perfect gush of joy I felt when I read his card and saw that he was not to canvass the State again. But the effection is too serious. The poor "boy" tells us that he has ruined himself in building up the internal improve-ments of the State; that in his philanthropic attempts to enrich his fellow-citizens he has impoverished himself. Now, is not this too bad? That General Combs should take stock in a railroad company, along with hundreds of others, not because he thought with them that the shares would prove profitable and yield him a fat per centage, but simply and solely because the road would be a convenience and a benefit to the State at large, and redound to the interest, the welfare, and the happiness of his fellow-citizens. Too enfeebled with age and the wounds of a hundred battles to longer stand in the front of war and guard Kentucky from the red man, the British, the devil, or, if need be, all combined, he enlists in the Philanthropic Corps, and the State rings with the self-sacrifices he has made. But I put it to the good people of Kentucky if we have not had enough of General Combs. Enough? Ye Gods of Satiety! We have had Combs for breakfast, dinner and supper for years and years. We have had Combs fried, stewed, roasted and in the shell. We have had Combs drunk and Combs sober. Combs, the Indian fighter, and Combs, the railroad philanthropist; and now, if the good Lord will forgive us and not put upon us more than poor, frail human nature can bear, we will have Combs no longer. If he is poor-and who believes it?—pension him off, give him an annuity, anything that will get him out of the way, provided, always, that in the donation of such pension or annuity, it shall be expressly stipulated that he shall keep quiet for the next two hundred years—for die he will not—and never breathe a word of the River Raisin again as long as he Sterling King, known throughout the war as a rebel spy and bearer of dispatches, with the rank of Colonel, was born in England in 1834, and while yet a boy came with his parents to this country, and found a permanent home near Richmond, Va. Influence of Female Society.

It is better, says Thackery, for you to pass

an evening once or twice in a lady's drawing-

One of the great benefits a man may derive from woman's society is, that he is boundto be respectful to them. The habit is of great good to your moral man, depend upon Our education makes of us the most eminently selfish men in the world. We fight for ourselves, we push for ourselves, we vawn for ourselves, we light our pipes, and say we won't go out; we prefer ourselves, and our ease; and the greatest good that comes to a man from a woman's society is, that he has to think for somebody besides be constantly attentive and respectful.

About seventeen years ago, there was a fair girl, so pure, so lovely, so refined, that she rises to my mind, as almost akin to the angels She was wooed and ultimately won by a handsome young man of considerable wealth. The husband had no business capacity. He was a gentleman of education, of refinement, of noble impulse; but when his money was gone he could get no employment, simply because he did not know how to do anything. For awhile he floundered about-first trying one thing, then another; failure was written on them all.

He, however, finally obtained a situation; the labor was great, th'e compensation was small-it was that or starvation. In his heroic efforts to discharge his duties acceptably, he over-worked himself and died, leaving his widow and six little children in utter destitution. In seventeen years, the sweet and joyous and beautiful girl had become a brokenhearted, care worn, poverty-stricken widow, with a house full of children.

Young woman! if a rich young man asks you to marry him, and has no occupation, or trade, or calling by which he can make a living if he were thrown upon his own resources. you may give him your respects, but give him the mitten.—Dr. Hall.

> "ONLY A LITTLE BROOK."-A simple but very touching incident has been related to us, says the Maine Press, in connection with the last moments of a beautiful little girl in Bath, who lately died at the age of nine years and eleven months. A very little while before she died, as the sorrowing friends stood around her, watching the last faint mov-ings of the gentle breath, the last faint fluttering of the little pulse, they became aware, from her broken words, that she shrank with natural dread from the unknown way that was opened before her. She had come to the borders of the mysterious river which sep-erates us from the hereafter, and her timid feet seemed to hesitate and fear to stem the flood. But after a time, her fear subsided, she grew calm, and ceased to talk about the long, dark way, till at the very last, she bright-ened suddenly, a smile of confidence and cour-age lighted up her sweet face: "Oh, it is only a litt'e brook?" she cried, and passed over to the heavenly shore.

Tuesday Morning, May 22, 1866

The Conservative Voters of Charlestown Township are requested to meet this afternoon (TUESDAY) at 4 o'clock, at J. F. Blessing's, for the purpose of nominating Township officers to be voted for at the ensuing election on Thursday next. A full attendance is desirable

Township Meeting.

CETTING READY FOR THE ELECTION. The supreme board of registrars, sitting at Shepherdstown, have performed wondrous deeds during the last week. They have done thoroughly the business assigned them by Gov. Boreman and his underlings of the legsislature. Their rule of action seems to have been to admit no one to registry, and consequently no one to vote at the election day after to-morrow, except those whom they regarded as quite certain to vote radicalism in all its various phases of rascality-especially in the matter of the constitutional amendment Even the stringent test oath, taken by men of undoubted loyalty—the only test set up by the infamous registry act, and by which the registrars were sworn to perform their duty. has been set aside, whenever it suited the purposes of the corrupt creatures of the Gov-

We have heard of one case, that of a citizen of Smithfield, an honest and upright christian, who could and did take the required oath with a clear conscience, and was registered accordingly before the sub-registrar of that township. But his name was stricken from the list by these radical ignoramuses who constitute the supreme board, and he was summoned to the august presence of these men to shew a reason why his name should not continue off the list of voters. He cited his known lovalty, and the fact of his having taken the test oath. This would not do .-He was asked if he had not spoken disre spectfully of Gov. Boreman, and if he had not voted the conservative ticket last fall, and had not signed the petition to Congress against the transfer of this county to West Virginia. He had done all three of these things: and therefore, in the judgment of these sworn officers, he was a disloyalist, and a copperhead, and not entitled to registry.-He was a Johnson man and conservative, and opposed to the amendment, and that was sufficient for the grand inquisitors to set him aside-to deprive him of that right of voting which he has held for some thirty years.

We have heard of many other cases which have been decided upon terms equally corrupt, and for reasons equally shallow; and the victims, men who before, during and since the war, were as loyal and true to the Union as Gen. Grant himself, have had their eves opened wide enough at last to see clearly that the State of West Virginia is in the hands of a set of officials who are as false and wicked, and depraved as it is in the power of men to be; and they are expressing their opinions in earnest and hearty language.— What the upshot of all this base tampering with the plain rights of our conservative loyal citizens is to be, we know not; but, from the way these gentlemen talk, we are inclined to think that a spirit is aroused that will only be quieted by the downfall of the house of Boreman, and the complete destruction of the entire radical policy .for the honor and prosperity of the State.

The sooner it is done the better will it be MARYLAND RADICALS. The disunionists of Maryland-the followers of Stevens and Sumner, are getting into a pretty snarl over their efforts to fatten at the public crib, and are fast splitting their party. That most pompous and empty-headed individual who is styled Gov. Swan has left the ranks of the obstructionists headed by the poor little Thomas, of Baltimore, and gone over to those who have been of the tolerably moderate class, and as he takes with him from the sinking boat all the baggage belonging to the State, his defection is seriously felt-in the case of the American, has acted as an emetic. The Thomasites may be very sorry to part with their Governor, but surely there can be no rejoicing among those whose company he seeks. - The Governor is not a great man outside the State house and the imposing mansion on Franklin street, and as there is a very great difference of opinion on this score between him and every body else, his aid will not be valuable to his new allies. Ex-Gov. Bradford, who is noted for having once in a long political life made a good speech, (how Swann envies him!) has gone over too. Mr. Price, the ablest man of the party, and the truest gentleman of them all, was the first to turn away from the miserable concern, and give his aid to the party of the President, and a squad of lesser lights are also shining on the same path; hence a wail is heard all over the State, and the radical leaders are mourning for their followers, because they are not .-What is the meaning of this? The answer is given by the people, who are everywhere rushing to the side of the President, and are announcing with their potent voice that the Union is restored, that peace has returned to the land, and that the government must be again given into the keeping of white men. and such as believe that the white man is

CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION. According to previous notice the Conservative Voters of this County met in Convention in Charlestown on Saturday last. THE BOARD OF REGISTRATION. Every movement made by the radicals of this county-whether of a political or religious character-seems to be inspired by the devil, and executed by his most accomplished emissaries. They do nothing right, and outrage decency in all their undertakings. The prominent actors have carried things to such an extent recently, that the few decent men who remained in the party are hauling off for more congenial companionship; and very soon we hope to record the complete extinction and inhospitable burial of this political and proscriptive monstrosity, and the consignment of its malignant adherents to that oblivion which the hand of forty resurrections will fail

Politically, they are worse in their inflic tions upon the community, than were the lo custs which destroyed the substance of the Egyptians, or the potatoe rot which produced the famine in Ireland. In fact, there is nothing between the vault of Heaven and the charred gates of Satan's kingdom, that is the equal of this party, except itself-and we very much doubt if the Plutonian regions were surveyed whether anything worse could be found within their confines.

The wire-pullers and bell-wethers of this party are either knaves themselves, or think the people are fools-and it matters little which horn of the dilemma they seize. Flesh and blood may tolerate a great deal, but there is a point beyond which "endurance ceases to be a virtue," and that point the radicals of Jefferson have long since reached and are now setting their pegs far beyond. The board of registration of this county, we presume, has completed its labors. What has it done ?-Disfranchised fully two-fifths of the legal loyal voters of the county, for the sole purpose of carrying the odious constitutional amendment. And who are the members of this board upon whose shoulders the mantle of the devil has fallen in such ample folds? Butt.

Fleming, McKevitt.

The first of this trio should stand for th whole, for surely this board of registration should be made the butt of the community generally, if the matter was not one too se rious for ridicule. Zadoc never had any fixed principles; could neither be regarded as "fish flesh or fowl." Of Fleming we know very little, except that we learn from reliable sources that, in his capacity of shoe maker, he furnished our Confederate soldiers with most excellent cavalry boots while the war was in progress. McKevitt is less known us-we never have seen him to our knowledge. and if his appearance corresponds with hi acts we shall not weep for a sight at him.-He is a new-comer-a northern man-vomit ed up, we suppose, from the sur-charged stomach of "loval" Massachusetts or some other radical locality.

In their little brief reign, so far as their power extended, they evinced a greater degree of tyranny than was ever displayed by Nero or Henry VIII, of England. We can not think there are three other men in this county who could have perpetrated the outrages, they did without at once imitating the example of Judas by hanging themselves. Fleming and McKevitt, if they have any selfrespect, may do so vet, but we have no such fair hopes of Butt.

WHO BROKE THE LOCK? In the neighborhood of Wiltshire's schoolhouse in this county, there is a little nest of radicals, who are not far behind Thad. Stevens in their meanness. Chief among this little coterie is Anderson the late registrar of this township, and Sam. Lindsey, a kind of nondescript, who aspires to the dignity of School Commissioner in that neighborhood, although it is questionable whether he can write his own name legibly or whether he has ever paid ten cents of school tax since he was christened. But Sam, is a radical, and this atones for all other of his many defects-if not with white people generally-with his party at least. Sam is a loud-mouthed religious professorapparently zealous as a christian-but good judges have always regarded him rather as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbol," and as possessed of no great depth of religious feeling. On Sunday night week, not satisfied with the regular ministrations of the gospel at that appointment, Sam determined to have a radical preacher to blow and strike for the people of that locality. The minister invited, we have learned, was the Rev. Mr. Richardson, Methodist, of Harpers Ferry, a man who is said to be possessed of some amiable traits of character. (but by way of parenthesis we advise him to be a little more select in his company.) Anderson went for the key of the house, but before his return Sam or some of his party, forced the door and gained an entrance. The facility with which this was done has led to the supposi tion that this is perhaps not the first lock forced by these parties. Who knows to the contrary? THE COLORADO VETO.

President Johnson has given another check to Congressional radicalism by his veto of the bill admitting Colorado into the family of States, and it will be seen that he uses the same reasons for this interposition as was given in both his former negativing messages. The attempt to make a State out of this Territory, having some six or seven thousand voters, was such a bold dodge on the part of the rad- | uted by moonlight alone. The ch icals to secure a sufficient vote for impeachment and other party purposes, that no one other, render it exceedingly difficult for our could mistake it, and all the true friends of citizens to preserve their porkers. The smoke the Union will rejoice in the action of the house of Mr. Funguson, near Porter's Fac-President. As the bill passed the Senate by less than two thirds, we suppose that the veto

The boldness, firmness and statesmanship of Mr Johnson is making him the most popular man the country has known since the days of Andrew Jackson; and the people, educated and uneducated, are acknowledging his unfailing devotion to the Union, and the value of his policy, with a unanimity rarely if ever before exhibited, and bless God that Schools is one every way qualified and we he has been placed at the head of the Gov- nience to the people and the most moderate

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

CORPORATION ELECTION.—Our effizens generally participated in the corporation election held on Thursday last, and quite a spirited contest was manifester as between the friends of the respective candidates, and their name was legion. Capt. JOHN AVIS was selected as Mayor, R. H. LEE, Esq., Recorder, Thomas Rutherford, Benjamin Tomlinson, Hierome O'Bannon, Wm. N. Craighill, H. N. Gallaher, John C. Weller and William Kimes, Councilmen. All good men, who will, we are sure, have the best interests of the people and the good of the corporation,

HAIL STORM .- The storm of Sunday evening a week, was in many portions of the county, the severest and most destructive of the season. In addition to hail of the largest size and great profusion, a perfect tornado followed in the line of the storm, destroying as we have learned, one or more barns, stabling and innumerable fences and trees. In the neighborhood of Unionville a gentleman informed us that he witnessed trees of the largest size twisted off at the bottom as though they were straw, whilst plank 20 feet in length was taken off, and by the time they fell to the ground, were fit culy for kindling

PASTORAL ELECTION .- The members and friends of the Presbyterian Church, Charlestown, convened according to notice on Saturday last, for the purpose of selecting a Pastor in the place of Rev. Dr. DUTTON, resigned, but after quite an animated and full discussion, determined to postpone the matter to some future day. The pulpit is expected to be supplied, however, on every Sunday, by some one of the ministers attached to the Win chester Presbytery. Ou Sabbath the Rev. Mr. LUPTON, of Frederick county, delivered a very excellent discourse to a crowded con-

SQUIRREL FEAST .- It is said that the Squirrel is more abundant in our county now, than was ever before known, and the neighboring woods are made vocal by the report of the huntsman's rifle. On Saturday an old fashioned Squirrel Feast came off at "Washington's Springs," which was largely attended by citizens of town and the neighborhood, ourself not included, as we feared the beverage of this delightful resort might have a debilitating effect on our frail constitution .-As to how it affected others, the deponent about sixty squirrels were barbecued in fine style, mutton and other meats, substantials and delicacies, in abundance. There has been so long a lapse in these social country feasts. that we hope a reunion of old friends and neighbors through the summer and fall may be of frequent occurrence, and when the squirrels are exterminated, let us remember that our beautiful Shenandoah contains as good fish in its waters as ever floated in it, the Bass of the epicurean not excepted.

SUDDEN DEATH .- We are pained to announce the death of Mr. T. C. SIGAFOOSE. which occurred at Sharpsburg, Md., on Thursday or Friday of last week. He fell on the street of that town, where he had been engaged in merchandizing since the commencement of the war, from apoplexy; and died in the course of an hour after. Poor "SIG," as a proficient in the routine of his business, he had never a superior among our merchants, and as a "good tellow of infinite humor and jest," there are scores of old friends who will long revere his memory, as being intimately blended with many happy recollections of the past.

LOOK OUT .- The young lads of our town have a wonderful penchant for throwing stones at any conceivable object, to the annoyance and danger of every family in the village -It is to be hoped the bad practice will be stopped, as we see that Mr. A. G. Davis, Superintendent of the Telegraph line from Harper's Ferry to Winchester, offers $10 reward for the detection of any one found throwing stones at the glass insulators, not only in town but anywhere on the line. The poor birds nestling in the trees surrounding the Presbyterian church, frequently congregates together a dozen or more urchins, who let loose their missiles without regard to adjacent windows or passing citizens. Let parents caution their children against such improprieties.

TOURNAMENT .- A grand Tournament is to come off at Unionville on to-morrow, (Wednesday,) in which a large number of the most respectable and gallant young men of our county, expect to participate as knights. It will no doubt be largely attended, and the hospitality of this region is guarantee of a hearty and cordial greeting to all.

THE CROPS .- The wheat crop throughout old and new Virginia is represented as almost an entire failure. In the Piedmont and Tide water country, our exchanges represent that the farmers are ploughing under their wheat. and replanting the fields with corn, oats and tobacco. In the extreme west, it is said the best farmers will not raise enough for seed and bread. In this county we have a sorry prospect, but we hope not so bad as represented in other sections.

STRALING.-We have learned of several fine hogs being slaughtered in the neighborhood of town recently, and the spoils distribdemic on the one hand and the rogues on the tory, was literally unroofed and torn down, some unusually dark night a week or two since, and some 12 or 15 pieces of bacon carried off.

PROCLAMATION .- We invite attention to the invocation to our citizens as addressed by Mayor Avis, through our paper of to-day .-It indicates that he is anxious to commence the work of reconstruction in earnest, and that at once, with the least possible inconveexpenditure of money.

Message from the President. Yefo of the Bill Admitting Colorado as

To the Senate of the United States: I return to the Senate, in which it originated, the bill which has passed both Houses of Congress, entitled "An act for the admission of the State of Colorado into the Union," with my objections to its becoming a law at this

First. From the best information which I have been able to obtain, I do not consider the establishment of a State government at present necessary for the welfare of the peo-ple of Colorado. Under the existing territorial government, all the rights, privileges, and interests of the citizens are protected and secured. The qualified voters choose their own legislators and their own local officers, and are represented in Congress by a delegate of their own selection. They make and execute their own municipal laws, subject only to a revision of Congress—an authority not likely to be exercised unless in extreme or extraordinary cases The population is small, some estimating it so low as twenty-five thousand. while advocates of the bill reckon the number at from thirty five thousand to forty thousand souls. The people are principally re-cent settlers, many of whom are understood to be ready for removal to other mining districts beyond the limits of the territory if circumstances shall render them more in-viting. Such a population cannot but find relief from excessive taxation if the territorial system, which devolves the expense of the executive, legislative, and judicial departments upon the United States, is for the resent continued. They cannot but find the ecurity of person and property increased by their reliance upon the national executive power for the maintenance of law and order against the disturbances necessarily incident to all newly-organized communities.

Second. It is not satisfactorily established that a majority of the citizens of Colorado desire or are prepared for an exchange of a Territorial for a State government, In September, 1864, under the authority of Conress, an election was lawfully appointed and held for the purpose of ascertaining the views of the people upon that particular question. Six thousand one hundred and ninety-two votes were cast, and of this number a majority of 3,152 was given against the proposed change. In September, 1865, without any legal authority, the question was again presented to the people of the Territory with the view of obtaining a reconsideration of the result of the election held in compliance with the act of Congress approved March 21, 1864. At this second election, 5,905 votes were polled, and a majority of 155 was given in favor of State organization. It does not seem to me entirely safe to receive this last-mentioned result, so irregularly obtained, as sufficient to outweigh the one which had been le- found, it was not certain the shot took effect. gally obtained in the first election. Regsayeth not, having no information except that | ularity and conformity to law are essential to the preservation of order and stable government, and should, as far as practicable, always be observed in the formation of new

Third. The admission of Colorado at this time as a State into the Federal Union appears to me to be incompatible with the pube interests of the country. While it is desired that territories sufficiently matured should be organized as States, yet the spirit of the Constitution seems to require that there should be an approximation towards equality among the several States comprising the Union. No State can have more than two Senators in Congress; the largest State has a population of four millions, several of the tates have a population exceeding two milions, and many others have a population ex-

A population of one hundred and twentyseven thousand is t'e ratio of apportionment of representatives among the several States. If this bill should become a law, the people of Colorado, thirtp thousand in number, would have in the House of Representatives one member, while New York, with a population of four millions, has but thirty one Colorado would have in the electoral college three votes, while New York has only thirty-three. Colorado would have in the Senate two votes, while New York has no more.

Inequalities of this character have already occurred, but it is believed that none have nappened where the inequality was so great. When such inequality has been allowed, Congress is supposed to have permitted it on the ground of some high public necessity, and under circumstances which promised that it would rapidly disappear through the growth and development of the newly-admitted State. Thus, in regard to the several States in what was formerly called the " Northwest Territory," lying east of the Mississippi, their rapid advancement in population rendered it certain that States admitted with only one or two representatives in Congress would in a very short period be entitled to a great increase of representation. So, when California was admitted, on the ground of commercial and political exigencies, it was well foreseen that that State was destined rapidly to become a great, prosperous mining and com-mercial community. In the case of Colorado, am not aware that any rational exigency, either of a political or commercial nature, renuires a departure from the law of equality, which has been so generally adhered to in

If information submitted in connection with this bill is reliable. Colorado, instead of increasing, has declined in population. At an election for members of a Territorial Legislature, held in 1861, ten thousand five hundred and eighty votes were cast. At the election before mentioned in 1864, the number of votes cast was six thousand one hundred and ninety-two; while at the irregular election held in 1865, which is assumed as a basis for legislative action at this time, the aggregate of voies was five thousand nine ndred and five. Sincerely anxious for the rosperity and welfare of every Territory and State, as well as for the prosperity and welfare of the whole Union, I regret this apparent decline of population in Colorado, but it is manifest that it is due to emigration, which is going out from that Territory into other regions within the United States, which either are in fact, or are believed by the inhabitants of Colorado to be, richer in mineral wealth and agricultural resources. If, however, Colorado has not really declined in popuon, another census or another election under the authority of Congress would place the question beyond doubt, and cause but little delay in the ultimate admission of the Territory as a State, if desired by the people.

The tenor of these objections furnishes the reply which may be expected to an argument in favor of the measure, derived from the enabling act which was passed by Congress on the 21st day of March, 1864. Although Congress then supposed that the condition of the Territory was such as to warrant its admission as a State, the result of two years experience shows that every reason which exsted for the institution of a Territorial instead of a State government in Colorado, at its first organization, still continues in force. The condition of the Union at the present noment is calculated to inspire caution in regard to the admission of new States. Eleven of the old States have been for some time, and still remain, unrepresented in Congress It is a common interest of all the States, as well those represented as those unrepresented, that the integrity and harmony of the Union should be restored as completely as possible, so that all those who are expected to bear the burthens of the Federal Government shall be consulted concerning the admission of new States, and that in the mean time no new State shall be prematurely and unnecessarily admitted to a participation in the political power which the Federal Government wields -not for the ben-fit of any individual State or section, but for the common safety, welfare and happiness of the whole country.

ANDREW JOHNSON. Washington, May 15, 1866.

Interesting Developments.

Some revelations of a very interesting character are being made, touching the workings of the Freedmen's Bureau in North Carolina. Certain New England philanthropists, who have secured positious as agents of the Bureau, have been making a handsome thing out of their positions at the expense of the unfortunate darkey, who has found that emancipation means merely a change of masters, and the existence of slavery under a new form. The modusoperandi of these Bureau agents is very simple; they have a partner who works a plantation; it is their province to see that the freedmen work; if they do not they are placed in the chain-gangs and set to work on the planter's plantation. The effect of the system is to enable the agents to get their plantations worked for nothing. Stores, clothing, &c., sent to the agents for distribution among the freedmen, are sold or given in exchange for labor on their plantations. How the negro is treated personally, the following incident, related by a correspondent, will show: "Col. Whittlesey, the Assistant Commissioner controlling the State, is running one of the finest cotton plantations in North Carolina, in connection with the Rev. Horace James, formerly a Massachusetts army chaplin. This farm is situated in Pitt county. The following little circumstance will show how official position is prostituted to private gain: A darkey was discovered stealing from James' store. He was brought before James, who acts as an agent of the Bureau without pay in the county in which he is planting, was convicted and sentenced to dig ditches on James' farm. While undergoing the sentence he managed to escape and made for the river. James called to him to surrender, and as he did not do so he fire l at him. The man dropped out of his canoe and has never been seen since. The case was referred to Colonel Whittlesey, James' partner, and the assistant Commissioner of the State, who replied that, as the affair took place at night, and as the body of the man had never been Therefore no further action was called for.' The negro, it will be seen, has not profited by a change of masters. He finds the New Englander a harder taskmaster, with a more cold-blooded indifference to his fate than ever the Southern slaveholder exhibited. The negro will have better cause than the white map to thank Andrew Johnson for vetoing the bill which made the Freedmen's Bureau a perpetual institution, Gen Howard, chief of the Bureau, is, we see, in New York. speechmaking at anniversary meetings; he would be better employed looking after his rascally agents at the South .- Brooklyn

What a Soldier thinks.

In a recent speech before a mass meeting at Brooklyn, General Rousseau, of Kentucky, who was one of the bravest officers in the Union army during the late war, held this language, which the Radical journals have not yet thought proper to notice or copy:

"During all that war, and while we felt so much anxiety for the end, no loyal or patriotic man ever thought that when it did come. from his side any impediments would be thrown in the way of restoration. None then ever thought that loyal men wanted this war from any love of bloodshed, from any desire of conquest or subjugation, but to save the government of our forefathers. It was this prompted me to break away from all I held most dear on earth-home, friends and kindred-to place myself under that glorious old banner with its friends, no matter from whence they came: I never dreamed, when all that was claimed was granted, when peace was declared, when the rebellion was suppressed, and when the enemies of the Gove: nment were at our feet, disarmed and helpless, that then those loyal men would come and say that all we fought for, though the victory was won, was lost, and that everything the rebels sought to do, but failed, these loval men now endeavor to accomplish-that is, the dissolution of the Union. [Cheers.] But, strange to say, the men who declared, and solemnly declared, up to the surrender of Lee and Johnston, that the Union must be preserved, tell us now that in fact the Union is dissolved.

"Those men who said the Union could not and should not be dissolved, and who got the nation to put its whole strength in a struggle which cost us half million lives and four hundred millions of dollars, now tell us, after our sacrifices, that the Union is dissolved. A strange doctrine that to come from those who contended through the war, and, in fact through all their lives, for an opposite doctrine. Those who now say that the Union cannot be dissolved, and was not dissolved, are denounced as traitors. That because we will not run away from the Constitution of our forefathers and take up with that of Thaddeus Stevens, we are traitors to the country. [Hisses.] You may well hiss, my countrymen, at the mention of that name. I wish I had the language to-night to denounce that man as I feel towards him. A man, my countrymen, who comes forward in this day and declares that reconstruction shall not take place—who now, after declaring that when the South laid down its arms, the several States should take their places in the Union, with all their relations to the general government recognized as they were before the war. now places himself between the South and the restoration of the Union, because, as he says, if the Union were restored the Republican party would go down, I say that man is a miscreant, and I cannot find words to night to express my disgust and contempt of him."

THE WHEAT CROP .- The Ohio Farmer says the wheat crop in Ohio will fall far below half an average one. In Illinois about half the winter wheat is killed. In Missouri the prospect is for a good crop. Reports from Pennsylvania are not encouraging:

Putting all reports together, and making due allowance for the annual season of crop croaking, we are led to believe that the yield per acre, throughout the whole wheat region of the country, will fall below an average. and that a short crop of fall wheat must be set down as a fact to be faced this year.

General News.

-Mr. D. C. Truman, correspondent of the New York Times, has, at the request of President Johnson, prepared a lengthy com-munication, embodying his impression received in an eight months' travel through the Southern States. He chains that the people are more loyal than they were at the close of the war, and that the sentiment of loyalty is growing daily. He mentions that Generals Hardee, McLaws, Forrest, Nichols and Jeff. Thompson, told him that in the event of a foreign war they would offer their services to the U.S. Government, in any capacity, even as a private, to show the sincerety of their allegiance to the U. To the People of the Corporation of Charlestown:

Fellow Citizens:—Through your kind partiality, I have been selected as the chief municipal officer of your town for the ensuing year, and though the favor was mrsolicited and unexpected, I do not feel my-self at liberty to decline its labor and responsibilities, if my best endeavors can promote in any degree the interests of my pative home To be able to effect this, I must ask your kind co-operation, in bringing about whatever may tend to improve its sanitary condition, repair its waste places, and equitably and rigidly enforce all needful olice authority.

The Board of Councilmen whom you have just chosen, will be organized in a few days, and as it is now five years or more, with all the incidental waste and destruction of war since a similar body was constituted. its labors will no doubt be onerous and vexatious, unless you share with them the duties of their thankless position. The scarcity of money and the common poverty of the e, make it incumbent to conduct the affairs of the Corporation with the least possible expenditure. To effect this, every property holder and housekeeper can do much, by cleansing his own premises, removing all obstructions, repairing the pavements and causeways in their individual neighborhood, and doing all such other matters as may be of general good in reinstating the town once more to its former condition. Let one and all unite together in this commendable work, and its object can he soon effected without detriment to any, if not-with pleasure and pride to all. Ordinances, Regulations, &c., which the necessities of the corporation may require, will be soon promulgated, and I shall bring to bear all the power with which I am invested, without respect to person, to enforce a faithful conformance to the enactments of Arrest of a Horse Thief and Bigamist.

We are gratfined to state that Thomas Loker? of Dry Fork, a few miles below Harrisonburg, Rockin ham county charged with horse-steading and bigant, has been arrested and committed to jull in Moorefield, Hardy county, W. Va. He was arrested one day last week, on Lost River, Hardy county, by two gen temen of Rockingham county, from one of whom-Patrick McCartly, who resides in this vi-

Loker, it seems, had been seen in tois county, and McCariby's horse disappearing at the time he (Loker) left, suspicion at acted to him. He was pursued into Hardy with the result above stated.

Lo er, it appears, stilt keeps up his practice of higamy. He had married a respectable lady on Lest River, by the name of Landaker; and was arrested in the road not far from the residence of his father-in-law. He had McCarthy's stolen horse in his possession when he was caught. It is said that he had courted and agreed to marry a respectable young lady in Brock's Gap, in this county, a short time since, but pretended to have been taken violently ill the day he was to have come to our Cerk's office for the license. Tais, probably, saved this lady from becoming his victim. In his illness, he made his will, leaving 25 sheep to the Sheriff of the county, 50 sheep to his intended bride, and to her mother $1000, when he hadn't a sheep or a dollar in the world to leave to any body!

Loker passed by the alias of Capt Robinson in Hardy. It will a remembered that he was strongly suspected of connection with the murder of Richard Jarrells who was shot dead one night last autumn, as he stood in the presence of his 'amily at his own breside. Jarrells was known to be the cheit witness in a then pending case of bigamy. He had married a respectable lady in Madis a county, Va., whilst he had a wife and children in Rockingham. As the case now stands Loker is qui'e a Mormon, he having three wives now living, v z: one in Rockin ham, to whom he was married fitteen years ago, one in Madi-on, to whom he was married in F brusty 1865, and he other and last one heard of in our neighboring county of Hardy. There can exist no doubt in the world about his being a

TO THE CONSERVATIVE UNION MEN OF JEFFERSON COUNTY.

OF JEFFERSON COUNTY.

We desire to direct your attention to two or three E aiters in reference to the coming election. Those who wish to vote against the Constitutional Amendment, must have the words, "For Rejection," written or printed on their ballots.

The ballot used for voting against the Amendment, must be the same piece of white paper used for voting for county and township fficers.

These provisions will be found in an A t of the late Legislature, passed february 28, 1866. See Acts of 1866, page 19.

Another Act passed the same day, provides that—"Every officer and person employed in holding any election by the people, shall, before entering ou the discharge of his duties, take the following eath: I, A. B., do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of this State; that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States that port the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of this State; that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States that I have voluntarily givon no aid or comfort to persons engaged in armed histility thereto, by countenancing, counseling or encouraging them in the same; that I have not sought, accepted nor attempted to exerfiise the functions of any office whatever, under any authority in hostility to the United States; that I have not yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, authority or power or constitution within the United States, hostile or inimical thereto, and that I take this obligation freely without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion. I further swear that in the election about to be held, I will faithfully and impartially discharge my duties to the best of my skill and lischarge my duties to the best of my skill and

The last mentioned Act further provides that—
The said oath shall appear, properly certified, on the poll books of every election; and in no case shall the votes taken at any place of voting be counted unless said oath so appear on the poll

See Acrs of 1866, page 123.
This thing should be watched. The Radical leaders are unscrupulous, and will stop at nothing to sustain their power. Wherever it is believed that there will be a strong vote against the Constitutional Amendment or the Radical candicates, the Legislature have put it in the power of the officers of election to cheat the people out of their votes, by leaving this oath off the poll books, or having it informally certified. Please send us returns of the election in each precinct in the county, particularly the vote on the Constitutional Amendment, as soon as they can be

CUTLERY —A heautiful assertment of Table
C and Pocket Cullery, also Emb. Scissors and Stiver Plated Forks, for sale by
D. HUMPHREYS & CO.

April 3, 1866.

When the red storm of war was raging in might, I chose a bright thing by the flash of its light, I thought it pure gold and I prized it so high, R seemed like a gem just dropped from the sky.

I concealed it in silence hoping some day to show, A treasure as rich as on earth here could grow; I cherished it long as of metals the best, I prized it until it was brought to the test. When the crucible proclaims 'tis all brass entire, Though tested with care and the gentlest of fire, So the thing I once cherished because it was bright May go—for 'twas brass when brought to the light.

I said it was chosen in the dark night of war, When the clouds were dropping blood from near when patriots like hail were falling all round,
When Ashbys and Jacksons had hallowed the ground.

When Stewarts and Jones' made Dixie still dearer, And the blood of our Nobles made my country fee When I thought that such blood cried loud to the Then every brave soldier was a gem in my eyes. Just then a young soldier cut off from his home Sought shelter and board for some time to come; My old father's a prisoner away in some bay, My mother agrees the young soldier might stay—

And spend the cold winter and shun its keen blast, And share with us what Yankees had left for repast; While thus thrown among us, he sought my young That was gentle and free-not having felt love or

He told me he loved me, dearer than all earth beside, He urged me to promise to be his fond bride; He vowed a pure constancy forever to me, And urged me to promise his bride I would be.

I told him I was young, but time it might test, Yet I gave him to hope—to hope for the best; Our cause was soon lost, and blood ceased to flow; This noble young soldier to his home now could go. And there he remained forgetful of vows, For more than a year, then returned with stiff bows To tell me he had mistaken his heart! That it never was pierced by Cupid's pure dart!

Oh, how I rejoice to feel I am saved

From a thing that's as hollow as cold as the grave!

That instead of a mine of pure gold, Oh! alas!

I find him to be a lump of all brass.

To the copper mines now let him hie him away And be kicked about like a lump of old clay, For trying to sell himself body and soul To an heiress, by looking as though he was gold. April 12th 1866.

THE TRIAL OF MR. DAVIS .- We learn from the Washington Star that it has been decided to try Mr. Davis in a civil court in the state of Virginia— most probably in the judicial district of Norfolk. Since the Government has decided to bring him at Since the Government has decided to bring him at once to trial on the charge of treason, preparations to that end have been in progress. It is understood that Chief Justice Chase will preside over the court, and that Attorney General Speed will prosecute. The cleading counsel for Mr. Davis are Charles O'Conner and Mr. Shea of New York.

A little newsboy, in Nashville, was watching a Federal procession pass. After regarding them very vindictively for some little time, he shouted with all his lungs: "Hurral for Jeff. Davis" "Pshaw!" said a blue-coated officer, "Hurrah for the devil, you mean." "Very well," replied the urchin, "you shout for your captain—I'll shout for mine."

BY THE BARD OF MARBLE HALL: In Baltimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen hair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roseate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in leve by dozens. Friends and acquaintances, strangers and cous But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed,

Until she loved a handsome youth Who would grant all her requests in truth, And bind him fully never to break The pledge he had taken for her sake.

The young men stood aghast with fear; Some whacked their boots, some pulled their harr; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funry. Among them there was a fine young man;

Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now I'll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be." The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all,

To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL. No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine." Says Johnny, a laughing, "You dear little elf. If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself.
