The Political Outlook.

The Hon. John Forsyth, editor of the Mobile Register, writes as follows from Washington to his paper:

"As an observer of the march of events at this focus of political sentiment, I should feel short of duty as a faithful chronicler, did I omit to note the all but universal feeling that the revolution now in progress will culminate in another domestic war—this time not a sectional, but a civil war."

"We have been favored with a copy of the following private letter:

CONCORD, N. H., April 22, 1868. I have just returned from Boston to find your letter of the 10th inst. The language attributed to me in the article to which you call my attention expresses substantially what I have thought, doubtless what I have often said.

You know how highly I estimate the culture, powers and elevated characteristics of Mr. Paulding and Governor Seymour. Mr. Hendricks and Mr. Doollittle; and how gratefully I recognize the services rendered by them respectively in defence of the Constitution.

I think I must also have spoken to you during the late civil war of General Hancock. I knew him well twenty years ago, and had the pleasure of meeting him, with the late gallant General Reno, on one occasion since the Mexican campaign of 1847-53. The death of the latter affected me deeply, and the two have frequently been associated in my memory. By their dash and intrepidity, knowledge and large manhood, they attracted universal confidence, and in an unusual degree the warm regard of officers and men.

They had then the bound and elasticity peculiar to youth, but they had besides, the prompt and prudent judgment of riper age. No thoughtful man can help being impressed by the fact that such responsibility and weighty duties as will rest upon the coming Convention have rarely been cast upon any body of men.

It will not be an occasion where one may well decide for himself in accordance with his personal interests, friendships or wishes; and hence it is but the suggestion of ordinary foresight that the convention be suspended for a careful comparison of conclusions with delegates at the convention from all parts of the Union, and for its development of the dangerous rush and whirl of events in a period when the Constitution, instead of receiving homage and respect, encounters scoffing and defiance on the part of those who are too evidently determined to command the ship or destroy it.

This, however, is an alternative only in words, for their continued command must end in wreck. Before the close of the present Congress, and within about three years past, they will have placed three different persons at the helm, not that the incumbent might hold the ship of State steadily and safely on her course, but with design to lash his arms or throw him overboard if he even attempt to do so in precise accordance with his chart.

Happily, my anticipations were not borne out by the finding of the Senate. But that would seem, from all we hear and read, that the question of President Johnson's innocence or guilt is not the matter to be passed upon. It is more or less in the way, and consequently, it is to be displaced—not because such displacement will be warranted by law or fact, justice or reason, but upon the plea of State necessity, under which the hand of the tyrant upon the bell rope has so often in other lands, and in these later years, shame to say in ours, struck down the shield of freedom by rigging the knell of "the great writ of liberty."

It is not singular, it is at least very fortunate that fine gentlemen as you name should be the fine citizens towards whom the calm mind of the country is now turned and apparently concentrated. It is an honor to the representative names faithfully earned, and not less an honor to the patriotism and intelligence of the people. If every conscientious citizen likely to influence the momentous result be not dispassionately and thoughtfully weighed, it will be a blunder and a crime.

With either of these wise and patriotic citizens at the head of national affairs, I feel perfect assurance that everything would be done that can be by man to arrest the surge of Constitution-defying radicalism and to restore fratricide and peace, unity and prosperity to the Republic.

If through Divine Providence such an event be in reserve for us, how joyously and hopefully one's heart would beat and hands go to work to heal and restore, to meet every just liability, however heavy, that touches the honor and integrity of the nation, through the old system and habit of rigid economy and stern fidelity in fulfillment of every public trust and obligation.

Even if I were certain what my judgment will be when the fourth of July shall arrive, you are not, I hope, mistaken in believing that I would readily yield my personal preferences to ensure the overthrow of the more than incipient "reign of terror" now hurrying all that is valuable to swift destruction.

"There can be in the Convention no possible occasion for the sacrifice either of principle or just pride, and hence, while there may be—may, in the nature of things, must be—differences of opinion in regard to the platform, and decided individual preferences in relation to the person around whom the people are to rally for "our country"—yet I anticipate cheerful harmony when the work is done, and with it and beyond it complete success.

We can wisely postpone minor matters or issues that may hereafter involve earnest discussion. The primary and overshadowing object of all conservative men is now, and will continue to be, to rescue the work of the fathers from destroying hands, and to save the foundations as they are, by a constitutional victory at the ballot-box to overthrow the usurper.

I go to North Carolina to-morrow to look after spring work, as farmers say, and cannot write more at present. I will, however, answer the business part of your letter in three or four days.

Your friend, &c. FRANKLIN PIERCE. Col. J. D. HOOPER, Washington, D. C.

MISSISSIPPI.—The Conservatives, or Democrats, or white men—interchangeable terms—of Mississippi held a convention the other day and resolved to nominate candidates with regard to tests not prescribed in the present Constitution of Mississippi or that of the United States. Whereupon the Constitutional Convention forthwith passed an ordinance providing that candidates who be elected and cannot take the oath shall give place to the candidate who receives the highest number of votes and can take the oath. This might be called sharp practice.

Radical chagrin at being defeated in some portions of Georgia has found vent in incendiarism. As soon as it was known that the town of Thomaston, in fifteen different places, but the citizens were on the alert and succeeded in preventing a conflagration. Satisfactory evidence has been adduced that it was also the intention to fire Albany, Ga., in the event of its going against them.

POETICAL.

[For the Spirit of Jefferson.] HYMN OF LORENZO DE MEDICI.

Mr. Editor.—The following is a translation of a hymn written by Lorenzo de Medici, the head of the Florentine Republic in the early part of the fifteenth century, and the father of Pope Leo X.—The truth and sublimity of the sentiments, the rich gorgeousness of the imagery, the intensity and depth of the feeling, the force and vigor of the expression, and the classical elegance and perfection of the style, are apparent enough and really, I know not where you could match them, unless you were to search among the old Hebrew psalmists and prophets. The extraordinary literary research and acuity of the poet, Lorenzo de Medici, and the period immediately preceding—during which, among other things, the earlier poems of the Platonic philosophy were cultivated with such assiduity and success—received no greater encouragement and impetus from any other one individual of that age, than from the great author of this wonderful poem.

The obvious traces of that philosophy which pervaded it, show that he was enabled, by the force of his genius, to rise above the environments of the dead forms and superstitions with which the church of that age was so heavily laden, and to contemplate in the light of his own reason, the Deity which nature and revelation presented to him. The translation, however, is very inadequate to convey to the English reader, a full idea of the majestic grandeur and profundity of the original.

Great God, by whose determined laws All nature moves, ascending to the sky, Whose power the universe controls! Who from the center's point direct The firm his rapid flight should speed, As round the eternal circle rolls!

At rest Thyself, yet active still, Thou mak'st it change and at Thy will; Unmoved alone, Thou movest all! While matter, eager to resume Its former state, would waste its doom, And hasten to Thy powerful call.

General Lee and the Old Soldier.

One of Gen. Lee's family tells of a most touching incident that occurred between the General and an old soldier, soon after the surrender. It is as follows:

"An old man, tall, rough, and ragged, but a true-hearted Virginian from the mountains, called at the residence of the General, and speaking low, emphatically and mysteriously, said: 'General, I have come down here to place you and your wife and darlings up on the mountains—the Yankees has cotched President Davis, and he'll be arter you sure—you hates you, General, kase you licked 'em so. I haint got no niggers to wait on you, but me and the old woman will do it, and, lowering his voice to a whisper, he continued, 'General, there's places up there where you can hide, and nary Yankee can find you.' 'But,' said the General, 'you surely would not give me, your General, hide away from the Yankees?' 'But General! no no fair fight now. They'll sneak up unbeknownst, and if they cotch you they'll hang you sure.'"

"The General satisfied the old fellow that there was no danger of his hanging, looking pitifully at the stockinged feet and tattered clothes, 'Wait my kind friend, while I get up stairs.' He went up and returned with a package, which he gave to the old man, saying: 'Some kind Baltimore ladies have sent me some nice clothing—more than I need. I have put up here a part of it for you; will you accept it and wear it for the sake of your old commander and friend?' The old man held the package at arm's length for a moment or two, then pressing it to his bosom and folding his arms over it he held it tight. Big tears rolled down his furrowed cheeks. Soon as he could speak, he said: 'We wear these clothes, General! No—not while I live; but I'll keep them till I die, and they'll put them on the old man when his work is done and they lay him in his coffin. I'll sleep sweet in them, General, sure! He went out sobbing, and holding the bundle to his breast, as he would have done an infant. I believe my father was crying too—I know that I was.'"

What did Paul say? Many years since there lived in Virginia a Baptist preacher, named B. Thurgood. He was a sound thinker and eloquent speaker, and no minister had a more devoted flock. It was the custom during the inclement season to hold meetings at the residences of members, and once or twice during the winter, at the house of the preacher—

"When I was much younger than now, in fact, not long after the commencement of my ministry—I held a meeting at my own house. It being customary for many of the congregation to remain for dinner, Mrs. B. sent our negro boy, Tim, to neighbor Paul's for some butter. Tim returned and located himself, standing on one foot at a time, in the outskirts of the congregation. Being warmly welcomed in my sermons, and neither of Tim nor his errand, but only of the most successful mode of pressing upon his hearers one of my strongest arguments, I demanded, with all the energy in my power, 'And what did Paul say?' Tim, at the top of his little squeaking voice, exclaimed, 'Tim don't cotch no have done. He had got no butter, but he cotch a good deal of for what you'd get.' This brought down the house, and cut short one of the finest efforts of my early ministry. Since then I have kept my preaching disconnected from my domestic affairs."

THE OLD MAN.—Bow low the head, bow do reverence to the old man! One like you, the vicissitudes of life have silvered the hair, and changed the round merry face to the worn visage before you. Once the heart beat with aspiration, as equal to any that you have felt; aspiration, crushed by disappointment as yours are perhaps destined to be. Once that form stalked proudly through the gay scenes of pleasure, has been reduced to the now the hand of time, that withers the flowers of yesterday has warped that figure and destroyed the thousand thoughts that pressed through your brain, now wishing to accomplish deeds equal to a book in fame; and imagining life like a dream, that the sooner he smokes the pipe, the better. But he has lived the dream, near through. The time to awaken is very near at hand, yet his eye ever kindles at bold deeds of daring, and the hand takes a firmer grasp of the staff. Bow low the head, bow low, you would, in your old age, be revered.—Trued.

MARRIAGE OF A GALLANT CONFEDERATE GENERAL.—The New Orleans Picayune of the 1st, makes the following announcement: The gallant, brave and universally beloved General Hood was married yesterday evening to Miss Anna Hennen, daughter of the late Duncan N. Hennen, Esq. The hero in this, as well as of a great many other, but very different engagements, was surrounded by a number of his comrades in arms, among whom we noticed General Buckner and Bragg.

VERY GOOD.—A learned professor in a New England college was accustomed to the demand of students an excuse whenever they were delinquent at recitation. The excuse given, he invariably added: "Very well; but don't let it happen again." One morning a married student happening to be behind time, was promptly interrogated as to the cause. Slightly embarrassed, he replied: "The truth is, sir, I had an addition to my family this morning and it was not convenient to be here sooner."

"Very well," replied the professor, in his quick, nervous manner, "very well; but don't let this happen again!"

"Well, uncle, do you see my particular difference in neighbor Jim Smith since he joined the church?" "Oh, yes," was the reply, "a great difference. Before, when he went out into his garden on Sunday, he carried his garden tools on his shoulder, now he carries them under his overcoat."

A late and ridiculous error in typography that had slipped into a programme, where for "The burial of Moses," was substituted "The barrel of molasses."

FIELD AND FRESIDE.

Gapes in Chickens.

Prevention is better than cure. Being a farmer's wife and having raised poultry for the last eight years, and witnessed the breeding of all kinds upon an extensive scale for some previous seasons, I can state positively that there is no occasion to waste paper in writing about insects in the head, or in a "foramen under the wing," as gapes are not to be feared by any one having the slightest pretensions to know aught of poultry.—Unnatural treatment, and keeping the fowls upon an ground which is poisoned by numbers having been on it before is the cause. I never had a case of gapes or any disease, because I know how to prevent it, and prevention is better than cure; but my method of prevention is not to examine the top of the head, or even under the wing. Women of an age more mature than mine may gape about disease and dieting, but common sense and simple observation prove clearly that if grown poultry are not cured, and have a comfortable roost, with a healthy range, they will not be more liable to roost or any other disease than wild fowl or game, and practical knowledge has proved to me that there is no disease at all which young chickens can be subject to, when improperly managed, that can attack them if kept on some portion of the prairie where the older fowls have no access. I have not been able to stop the hens having young broods from bringing them round to the resort of the older fowls. I use small coops about two feet square, two feet high to the top, with square and eight inches high behind

IN THE FIELD.

Determined to retain the spoils of office, and to continue the power of government in their own hands, the Radical party has placed its candidates before the people...

The infancy of this party is written in its legislation, State and National, and he who has been careful to observe its course...

GRANT, the infantile-mule rider of the circus ring, the subsequent "Butcher of the Wilderness," and blunderer from the Rappahannock to Cold Harbor...

Grant and Colfax, are the parties upon whom the effects of radicalism are now to centre, and for whom the negroes of the South and the blood hounds of the North, are to cast their suffrages in November.

A greater cheat than even the ticket, is the platform upon which the party goes into the struggle for the retention of power...

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

NOTICE.—If any of our patrons have received bills for subscription, advertising, or job work, during the last three weeks—and we think it probable that several of them have—they will greatly oblige us by giving those bills attention. We think it a little singular that the small bills which we send out from time to time meet with no response from the parties to whom they are addressed. Other parties are owing us to whom bills will be sent shortly, and we hope they will be paid when presented. We can't run the machine without funds. A hint to the wise, &c.

A RADICAL HIDE TANNER.—A member of the Rump Congress named ELA, who represents one of the New England States, undertook on Monday last, to enlighten the people of Winchester, as to their duties at the approaching election. The Times says that during his speech he made a very large number of misstatements, which the audience took the liberty to correct in an emphatic manner. After a two hours harangue, this Puritan meddler wound up, when loud calls were made for Hon. ANDREW HUNTER, of this town, who deliberately dissected the gentleman's arguments, and laid him completely to the land. We give below the report of the Times with reference to the skinning process, to which this impertinent Yankee was subjected:

The lateness of the hour scarcely allowed a fair division of time with the Conservatives; but loud and prolonged calls brought to the stand the Hon. Andrew Hunter, of Jefferson, in other days the old war-horse of the Whig party. We regret that we can only glance at the remarks of Mr. Hunter. Taking up the educational subject treated by Mr. ELA, he gave a graphic sketch of the New England system, which brought down the house in thunders of applause. There are few men who can use the scalpel of sarcasm with such dexterity as Mr. H., and his speech carried us back to the days when he and Henry Deinger locked in friendly discussion. He traced out this educational system of New England as the fountain head of all the ills which have cursed the land; which have entered the pulpit, and turned the religion of the meek and lowly Jesus into political enmity, and corrupted the morals of the North to such an appalling degree. The speaker then charged Mr. B. with entire ignorance of the Federal Constitution, and sustained the charge by positive proof. He then asked him if he had read the new Constitution which had been recommended for adoption. ELA at first claimed to have read it, but when pinned down to the point admitted that he had merely glanced at it, and was ignorant of its provisions. Here Mr. H. Hunter poured out his educational system, and sustained his missionary amongst us to advise upon subjects upon which they are profoundly ignorant, if indeed they could be professed in any sense of the term. His exhortation was unmerciful, and laid bare the malignity and ignorance of our would-be instructors. Mr. Hunter then took up the new Constitution, and depicted with a master's touch the hideous deformities of that odious instrument. He concluded with a strong appeal to Virginians to stand by their native State in these days of darkness, and advised a solid vote, white and black, against the mongrel monarchy. Mr. ELA will never forget Andrew Hunter, or the skinning received at his hands. Mr. ELA rejoined in a few remarks, that the pins had been knocked from under him, and his second speech was merely a rebash of the first.

Crane was then called for, by a few negroes; but the audience did not think it was his 'put, and declined to listen to him, dispersing with cheers for Johnston, Hunter, &c.

FLORAL OFFERING.—We are requested to announce that a meeting of the Ladies of Charlottesville and vicinity, will be held in the Lecture-Room of the Presbyterian Church, on Saturday afternoon next, 30th inst., at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for the usual tribute of Flowers to our gallant dead. It is hoped the meeting will be attended by the Ladies generally, so that an efficient organization may be effected. The grass should not be allowed to wither over the graves of those who sealed their devotion to their country with their blood, in a struggle which they believed to be righteous and just. Let their memories be cherished by the living, and annually let this floral oblation be made for them.

MEMORIAL DAY IN WINCHESTER.—The Ladies of Winchester and surrounding country will meet at Stonewall Cemetery on Saturday, the 6th day of June, at 11 o'clock, to strew the graves of their friends with flowers. The order of exercises will be Prayers; Singing of the "Dirge to Ashby," and then the strewing of flowers.

SUBSTANTIAL WORK.—One of the most substantial, and at the same time, one of the newest and most complete pieces of framing we have ever examined, is the new church recently erected for the use of one of the colored congregations of this town. That experienced builder, and master of his profession, Mr. BENJAMIN TOMLINSON, with his competent corps of workmen, have made a job out of the most ordinary material, that will stand as a monument to their skill and proficiency. Our architectural information is too limited to enable us to describe minutely this admirable piece of work; but a sight of it is sufficient to convey to the mind an idea of adjustment and proportions, well calculated to give strength to the structure. From the lower floor to the comb of the roof, the system of braces, corner and joint posts, &c., is such as to capacitate the building to receive the pressure of any amount of weight that may be put upon it. Altogether, the entire structure is one that illustrates the force of mechanical genius in overcoming obstacles and working up inferior material to the best advantage.

PERSONAL.—Gen. D. H. HITT, the able editor of the "Land we Love," passed our town in the accommodation train yesterday morning. He was en route to Baltimore.

SUPERVISORS COURT.—The Board of Supervisors of this county met at Shepherdstown on Monday week. We copy from the Register so much of the proceedings of the court as relates to this section of the county:—

On motion, James Clipp was appointed constable for Osburn Township. Upon the petition of W. H. Moore and others, to change the road leading from Charlottesville to Eichelberger's shop, between the lands of Abraham Isler and Amos Shepherd, it is ordered, that John T. Henkle, George Lynch, Wm. Shafer, Frances Yates and S. H. Brown, be appointed viewers, or any two of them, being first sworn, to examine and report to the Board the propriety of changing said road as prayed for in the petition and the cost of same. Ordered, that the assessment on the property of Wm. F. Lippert be reduced from $4,000 to $400.

W. W. Burton applied for license to sell spirituous liquors at Charlottesville, with meeting on Monday, laid over until the next meeting of the Board.

ROBBERIES.—Several robberies have been committed at Harper's Ferry lately. A few nights since Mr. Burton's jewelry store was entered by some thief or thieves, and various articles taken, amounting to $200 in value. The safe in which most of his valuable goods were stored was also tampered with, but they only succeeded in forcing the outside door, when, it is supposed they were frightened away.

DAMAGES AND DROWNING.—In consequence of the recent high waters, a large number of Canal-boats have been laid up at Harper's Ferry and other points on the line, being unable to proceed on account of breakages in the canal at different places. Eight or ten days ago, three mules attached to a Canal Boat and the driver were swept from the tow-path into the Canal and drowned a short distance above Hancock.

THE DRAMA.—The Dramatic Association, on Saturday evening last, repeated the entertainment which they gave with such success on the Saturday night previous. The impromptu weather prevented many from attending, and yet we understand the audience was quite large. The performances gave decided satisfaction to all present. The Association will give another performance on Monday night next, when they will appear in a new piece.

REFRESHING.—Nothing is more refreshing after enduring the heat of the summer sun, than a glass of good Soda Water. The Messrs. AINSWORTH, and Messrs. CAMPBELL & MASON have their beautiful fountains in operation, and will take pleasure in waiting upon their friends.

IMPEACHMENT.—The New York Herald thinks the Chicago resolution relative to impeachment covers a deliberate understanding between Washington and Chicago that Andrew Johnson must be removed, so that the immense patronage, which, at best, is frittered away in his hands and lost to the Radical cause, may, in being turned over to the distribution of "old Den Wade," be turned to a good account.

THE CONVICTION OF JOHNSON.—The impeachers manifest an increased confidence in the conviction of the President. That is supposed to be based upon the sole evidence of the Federal Constitution, and without regard to a great number of witnesses have been summoned from various parts of the country in reference to the alleged bribery of senators. About a dozen subpoenas have been sent to parties in Richmond and Norfolk.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

TERMS.—One-third Cash, the balance in one and two years with interest from day of sale. The title to be reserved until the further order of the Court. JOHN W. MILLER, Special Commissioner. May 12, 1868.

The "Cave Farm" FOR SALE. THIS very productive Farm, belonging to the heirs of the late Andrew Kennedy, is offered at Private Sale. This farm lies two miles South of Charlottesville, and contains little less than 400 Acres.

As rich limestone land as can be found in the Shenandoah Valley, under a tract which therein HEAVILY TIMBERED. It is divided into 1000 Acres, and is well adapted for raising stock, exclusive of the House Grounds and Orchard.

THE ORCHARD IS A LARGE ONE, filled chiefly with prime and healthy APPLE and PEACH TREES, of improved varieties, well adapted for the soil and climate. This tract of land is nearly square in form, and is susceptible of division into two equal parts, by a line which runs from the main building to the centre of the wood land; and bills will be received for the whole or either part, as may be desired.

Persons desiring to purchase are requested to call on John Seiden, on the premises, who will take up all the necessary papers, and will also describe the proposed mode of division; and the terms can be ascertained either from him or the undersigned, at the shortest notice. JOHN W. MILLER, Special Commissioner. March 3, 1868. ANDREW E. KENNEDY, Agent at Law. [SAMUEL WALTON, Attorney at Law.]

Smith & Walton, REAL ESTATE AGENTS, are prepared to receive applications for the PURCHASE AND SALE OF FARMS, MILLS, HOUSES, LOTS, AND OTHER PROPERTIES.
