[From the Alexandria Gazette.] A Reminiscence of the War of 1812. FROM THE RELATION OF AN EVE WITNESS:

In the year 1811 the Macedonian, a fine new frigute, arrived in Hampton Roads with the British envoy. Mr. Jackson, sometimes called Copenhagen Jackson, having been British envoy at the court of Denmark at the time of the bombardment of Copenhagen by Lord Nelson, and which he had the credit or di ocedit of causing.

Decatur was then at Gosport Navy Yard, here his ship, the frigate United States, was undergoing repairs. He went down to the Roads in his gig, and brought up Capt. Carden, and did the usual honors. The British Coptain visited Decatur's ship, and expressing his admiration of her, said : "She is a fine ship, a very fine ship indeed, but I have a ship in the Roads which, if our countries should unfortunately go to war, and I should meet you at sea in this ship, I think I could convince you is a better ship." Decatur replied, "I hope, Capt. Carden, that our countries will not go to war, but if they do, and I should meet the Macedonian, I would try and Convince you to the contrary."

On the 25th of October, 1812, these two ships did meet, and after the British ship struck, as the vessels were nearing each other, Decatur, who was examining the strange ship with his glass, exclaimed, "It is the Mace-donian, I see Capt. Carden." He soon after hailed and demanded the name of the ship. FRENCH CHINA. DINNER DESERT | The reply was, "His Britannie Majesty's late frigate Macedonian." Decatur then asked, "is Capt. Carden well? The reply was, "he is well. John Bull then hailed and asked the name of the American ship. The reply was, "the U. S. ship United States. He then asked, "is Capt. Decatur well?" When the British Captain came on board and tendered his ater Coolers, the "Davis" and other Refrigerators, sword, Decatur refused to accept the sword of an officer who had so gallantly fought his ship, and treated him with distinguished

> At dinner, soon afterwards, Capt. Carden who was in very low spirits, putting his hand to his forehead said, Capt. Decatur, I am a ruined man. Why so, said Decatur? "Because I am the only commander of a British frigate who has surrendered his ship to another frigate of any nation, not only within living memory, but even in modern times, and although you know that I have made as gond a fight as could have been made, the country will not be satisfied and I shall be court-martialled and the result is not doubtful," "Oh no! said Decatur. I do not think so; when I left Bristoe, not long since, Capt. Dacres and the officers and crew of the frigate Guerriere were then brought in by the frigate Constitu tion." "And the ship," asked Carden? Why said Decatur, "Hull disabled her so much in a much shorter action than ours, that she could not be brought in and so be burned her."-The British Captain's spirits rose at once five > hundred per cent., and he telt safe! There is a venerable and gallant commodore (a townsman) yet with us, who we hope vet to see an Admiral, who was a young midshipman on board the United States in that action. and was also in the bloody fight of the 14th of August, 1814, between the Pelicun and Argus. As fas as known he is the only survivor of those two actions which tended so much to raise the character of our little navy in the eves of the world.

General Robert E. Lee.

This gentleman sailed from Savannah last week to visit the grave of his father, General Harry Lee, ("Light Horse Harry,") situated at Dungenees, Cumberland Island, on the coast of Georgia. The Savanah Republican "General Henry Lee was during winter of 1817-18, at the West Indies for his health He sailed from Nassau on the ship "Betsy." for Savannah, on the 10th of February, 1818. Instead of landing at Savannah he only reached Cumberland Island, where he was received by Mrs. Shaw, the daughter of General Greene, at the last house of his beloved commander and friend. He died soon after his a rival, on the 25th of March, 1818. It was doubtless a consolation to him, as he could not reach his home, to have his last hours soothed by the tender care of the daughter of one so much revered, and to know that his remains would be placed by the side of his comrade in arms. Dungenees is now the property of Mr. Wm. Nightingale, a grandson of Gen. Greene, and whose guest General Lee is at the present time." . .

DID STANTON COMMIT SUICIDE?-The LaCross Democrat still persists in its assertion that Edwin M. Stanton committed suicide .-

"He died in the third story of a house .-No one was allowed to see the corpse. He was not laid in state, as the head of the War Department should have been-as other men of promineuce are. He died, and was kept from sight. And none of those who called to see the remains of the "great statesman" could obtain a view of the corpse. In vain did his friends urge that the body be laid in state in the War Department. His grave clothes were made to cover up his face. He was a member of the Episcopal Church, and that church denies to suicides graves under its pravers and protection. And to have made known the manner of his death would, have been the casting him out from church rites and Christian burial. And this would have had great political effect, and so a con-sultation, called at 11 o'clock at night, was held, and it was decided that "the truth must not be known." "And again, why was his body taken up quietly the week after interment, and another put in its place? Simply that the manner of his death might never be proven."

Medical students at Louisville, who have a dissecting-room on the fifth floor of a building, have fun in inviting countrymen up stairs, and making believe they are going to cut them up. They made a mistake the other day, their victim picking up a man's leg that had just been cut off, and cleaning out the ranch. They are not playing the game as much as formerly.

Monument Proposed to Stonewall

We take pleasure in laying before the cit-izens of Virginia the following card, propos-ing the erection of a monument over Stonewall Jackson's grave, and affording the ad-nivers of that great soldier an opportunity to date of April 12th, says :--On yesterday a thrilling scene occurred at the insane asylum. A woman who had been in the asylum for several years escaped from her ward and went through the balls and up the stairway that leads out upon the roof of the roof of the building until she came to the edge of the cornice. After looking down for some time she swung herself over the edge of the cornice by her hands, and swinging there she could just touch with her toes the cap above the window of the fifth story, which was just below her. Having gotten a foothold thereon she let go her hands, and, strange to say, preserved her balance and stood upon the cap, which is about twelve inches wide. While standing there she was discovered in her mill they shouted: perilous situation. Immediately several men went upon the roof and let down a rope, and tried to persuade her to fasten it around her. She would take hold of the rope, then laugh at them, but refused to use it. Meanwhile beds were brought out and placed on the ground five stories below her, and in breathless suspense all who were on the ground awaited her fall, Nothing daunted, after remaining on the window-cap for nearly a half's hour, all of a sudden she grabbed the rope held in the hands of the men above and jumped off. They let the rope run through heir hands, and she held on until within thirty feet of the ground, when she let go, and fell upon the beds unburt. During all this time there was the most thrilling suspense to all the beholders, and glorious relief.

at her escape from such peril. WHAT "PORT WINE" IS MADE OF -Some parties in Stonington, Conn., have recently been prosecuted for selling adulterated wines and liquors. Samples of their 'stuff" were submitted to Professor Silliman, of Yale College, the State chemist, and the following is the result of his analysis of what, was sold for port wine : The liquor was turbid, heavily laden with sugar or molasses and some coloring matter; containing 21 per cent, of alcohol; over 10 per cent, of sugar or molasses; about 100 grains of sulphuric acid to the gallon, part of it free as oil of vitriol, une part combined in alum; oxide of lead, o litharage, in poisonous quantities, of about 4 grains to the gallon. The alcohol had an act taste, and the coloring matter an offensive odor. The liquor was stronger of lead that most waters poisoned by it.

AN AFFECTING SCENE .- Last Friday, the 8th inst, a gentleman and lady arrived at Frederick, Md., says the Republican of that city, with two deaf and dumb boys (brothers) about five or six years of age, whom they placed in the Asylum for Deaf Mutes at that place. On leaving the two lads last Saturday, the parting scene between the parents and their two children was affecting in the extreme. The eyes of the poor boys were suffused with tears, and they moaned piteously at the separation. It is sad to think that the parents of these children have four others of their offspring who are also deaf and dumb-making six in one family.

SHE ALWAY

I'd enzed on manuments of fame,
High towering to the skies;
I'd seen the sculptured marble stone
Where a great here lies;
But by this epitaph I ransed,
And read it o'er and o'er,
For I had never seen macribed
Such words as these before.

Such words as these before.

A legacy of memory sweet.
To those she left bereft.
And what a testimony given.
By those who knew her beat;
Engraven on this plain, sude stone.
That marked their mother's rest.
It was an humble resting place.
I know that they were poor.
But they had seen their mother sink,
And patiently endure;
They had marked her cherful spirit.
When bearing, one by one:
Her many burdens un the hill.
"Till all her work was done.

So when was stilled her weary heart,
Folded her hands so white;
And she was carried from the home
She'd always made so bright.
Her children raised a mosument
That money could not buy,
As witness of a noble lile
Whose record is on high.

A noble life! but written not In any took of fame; Among the list of noted ones None ever saw her name:
For only her own household knew.
The vigt ries she had won—
And none but they could testify
How well her work was done:

> MISCELLANEOUS. WAS HE GUILTY?

A TRUE STORY. "Sheriff remove the prisoner, commanded

"Five years, five long years in the peniten-tiary! Great God! I am not guilty, I am not." cried Reginald Forrester, as he was led He had been sentenced to five years hard labor for the crime of breaking the dam of John Cluny's floating mill. Two brothers, building. She wandered around upon the James and Charley Crocker, were the principal witnesses. They swore that late one night, above six months before, they saw young Forrestor walking rapidly up the path eading to the dam. Thinking that something had happened to the sluice gates, they were about to follow in order to assist, when they saw that he began to cut away the props that upheld the timbers. Horror-struck, they stopped. It was too late. The dam gave way. Rushing down the road towards the "The flood, the flood !" The miller heard the shouts, and just in time to save himself and family; shortly afterwards the flood reached the mill and swept hit away. A merchant of the village close, by swore that Forrestor bought an axe, a pick and shovel previous to the breaking of the dam. The axe was found hidden in some bushes close to the path, and was identified by the merchant as the one he sold Forrestor The miller swore that Forrestor had several times been seen lurking around the mill. The miller further stated that at the time he discharged him, he (Forrester) swore he would be even with him. "And he destroyed my property because I discharged him for daring to make love to my daughter, Amy, against my wishes," conclu-Only one person believed Forrester to be innocent-Amy Cluny, the miller's daughter.

It was twelve at noon, just four years after the conviction of Forrester, when the door of the State's prison opened to him. A pale, bowed man, whose eyes were constantly seek ing the ground, walked down the road towards the ferry boat. The crowd that stood upon the wharf quickly moved aside, as a man tottered towards the bench. "A pardoned convict ?" ran from mouth to

Yes, Forrester, for it was he, had been pardoned by the Governor. Four long long years he had toiled in the brick yards of the orison. Thoughts of self destruction often flitted across his weary mind. Often as he stood near the furnace of the brick kiln he thought that one bold leap into the rouring flames, and his misery would be at an end. He had received only two letters during his imprisonment. One was from Amv. The other letter was from New York. It was from a lawyer, and it read; "This is to inform you that Allen Forrester, Esq., your uncle, has departed this life. He died intestate, leaving you sole heir to-." The letter was received two days before he was pardoned Fortune avails me nothing. The world thinks me guilty," he cried. "Forrester has come back. I wonder why in the world he wants to come to this place; he is rich and has threatened to shoot Jim. Crocker if he calls him convict again." Such were the reports that spread over the village. At last the news came to the ears of the miller. With a muttered curse upon his euemy, as he called Forrester, he ascended the about five acres, and the water is quite sour, stairs leading to the second story of the new with a most unpleasant fetid odor; yet in- mill that had been built in the place of the mill that had been built in the place of the valids resort to the lake, in considerable num- old mill that had been swept away. "Who was that man?' Quick tell me" came from his clenched teeth. Amy uttered a shriek of pain.

He dropped her arm and rushed from the room, but soon returned with the loaded gun in his hands, and dragged her to the open The head of a man could be plainly seen upon her knees. The miller released her arm and slowly raised his gun. He had recognized the features of Forrester. "Signal," shouted her father, "so that I can be sure of him I want to shoot him through that black heart of his.

"Mercy," shrieked Amy, raising her hands Forrester, who only saw Amy, now, crept slowly towards a projecting shelf of the cliff.

Thity feet below him the water of the canon roared over buge boundlers, and behind was a solid wall of granite, twelve feet high. The shelf was two feet wide. "Die, conviet" shouted John Cluny.—
Forrester heard the word convict, saw the old man, saw the bright barrel of the gun, as it was pointed towards him, and then all was was pointed towards him, and then all was blank to him.

When his consciousnes returned he found himself lying on the top of the cliff. It was night. A form was bending over him. By the dim startight he could distinguish the features, but a cold shudder passed over his body as he felt a hand was laid upon his face, and he heard the voice of the miller.

"He's dead, and I ain't a bit sorry for it either."

But what am I going to do with the body! I can't throw it over the cliffs. Well.

I guess it's best to stick to my old plan.

The miller took a rope from his pocket, passed it beneath the armpits of Forrester, and dragged the body to a cave only known to himself.

This cave was situated to where one end of the dam was fastened by the means of heavy timbers to the cliffs, the opening was concealed by a clump of bushes. "No one will ever find him there," muttered

When Forrester awoke from the deathlike swoon, darkness was around him. Painfully he lifted himself upon his elbow. Bending aside the bushes he saw the glimmer of a lantern which stood upon the dam close to the sluice gates. When Forrester's eyes become more accustomed to the darkness, he perceived the forms of two bending over the breastwork of the gates. Soon the yound of successed his illness, but he gradually regained his former health and strength.

Three months after the breaking of the dam, Amy, her brother, tather and forrester left California for ever. of the gates. Soon the sound of voices came to his ears,—he heard his name mentioned. He was about to creep through the opening of the bushes when the men began to walk towards him. About four feet from where he was lying they stopped. "What time is it, Jim?" said one of them. "Time enough for our little job," replied the other, with a coarse, harsh laugh.

"This time he will be cooped up for the rest of his life you bot, replied the other. "Or he'll swing for it," echoed the other. "Look there Jim," interrupted Charley. "What in the devil is up?" you fool. "I thought I saw a man's face peeping at ne from the mantinzette. Forrester had protruded his head. He saw by light of the burning match the bloated face of James and Charles Crocker. "Stuff and nonsense. Go to work. Have you fixed the plank so that you can shove it across the gulch to her window." "Yes." growled the brother, "but it was devilish hard work." "Then we are sure of the gal. Now for the dam," said Charles moving away.

Like a flash of lightning the plot of the villains was revealed to Forrester. They first intended to cut the dam, then they would rescue the family of the miller by means of the plank. Of course this latter would insure the gratitude of the miller .-The breaking of the dam would be again charged upon Forrester, who, as one of the brothers remarked, "would be sentenced to penitentiary for life, or else swing." A look towards the dam showed that the water was nearly level with the path. He heard the cracking of the timbers and planks, as the men were prying with an iron bar at. one end of the beams. A rumbling noise came to his ears; it was the sound of the pent up water, as it began to overflow the dam .-He arose to his feet and drawing aside the bushes, he stepped upon a shelf like path which ran along side of the cliff. "Villains," he shouted. The two brothers looked up, but saw no one, for the light of the lantern illuminated the sluice gates. They resumed their work. Again Forrester shouted and again they lifted their heads, and there came a terrible crash, mingled with rouring of the water. Forrester heard a cry of despair. and saw James Crooker fall headlong over the dam into the boiling, seething waters below. With a prayer upon his lips for the safety of her whom he loved, he ran along the narrow path until he came opposite of the mill. "The flood, the flood, for God's sake save your lives. They have cut the dam." he

The windew of Amy's bedroom was thrown open, and the miller, with lighted candle in hand stood before it. Too late. The rushing water had already encircled the mill, and was now approaching Amy's bedroom. He looked. "Help! help!" shouted John Cluny, raising the light above his head. A cry of terror escaped his lips as the light shone on the face of the man whom he thought he had killed. The candle dropped from his hand as he sank upon the floor. Tuesday Morning, May 3, 1870. DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION AT

CHARLESTON. KANAWHA.

The Invitation of the Democratic State Executive Committee; calling a Convention at Charleston, Kanawha, on the 8th of June . proximo, is addressed to all liberal minded men who desire to promote the welfare of the State. We hope some early action will be taken in this county to respond to the invitation. All who are opposed to prescription and the other errors and crimes of the Radical party should, without regard to past political differences, combine to redeem the State from the disgraceful misrule from which she has suffered for the last five or six yearsindeed every since her foundation. The invitation is primarily addressed, it will be observed, to "citizens," but we have no reason to believe that the term is used in the restricted and proscriptive sense which the bogus and illegitimate Constitution of West Virginia authorizes. The conclusion of the invitation as quoted by us above is evidently intended to embrace all good men, whether voters under the present misrule or not. If we are wrong in this construction, we should like to be corrected; if right, we hope the action of the various conservative committees for the respective counties will be dictated by the liberal spirit of the central committee; and that all true conservatives will be invited to the primary meetings, and delegates sent to Charleston on the 8th of June, selected as well from the non-voting as from the voting Democratic Conservative masses. The candidates to be nominated will, of course, have to be chosen from those who can take the naths of office. Let them be men of known liberality and consistency, who are unwilling to compromise a moment longer with the ignorance, fraud, proscription, and corruption of the minority faction who have so long misgoverned West Virginia, As far as may be, let them be to the maner born, or, at all events, such as have taken up their abode in West Virginia with the avowed purpose of making it a permanent home, and not with moment the majority are permitted, without dread of Federal interference, to gain that control of the State to which every true principle of American civil liberty entitles them. In the Radical ranks may be found many who will be anxious to avail themselves of the opportunity to appease the wrath of the majority whom they have proscribed. To such of them as are honestly desirous to get out of bad company the ranks of the Conservative party should be open. The last opportunity is presented them which, in our opinion, the State will be no room for them.

OUR RAILROAD-ITS BENEFITS.

· If there were any thing needed to establish the importance of the construction of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad, and to show the immense value of such a work to the people of Jefferson county, it can be found in the admission made by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad through its counsel H. H. Blackburn, Esq., and its Vice President, Mr. King, and disclosed in the remark of the former before the Board of Supervisors of Berkeley county, on a recent occasion.

The language of Mr. Blackburn as reported in the Martinsburg New Era is as follows: "He said that he had but a day or two before an interesting interview with Mr. King, the Vice President of the Baltimore Road : in that interview Mr. King stated, that the Baltimore Company looked with no unkind feeling upon the proposed road from the Poto-mac river to Martinsburg; that the correspondence between his company and Mr. Faulkner had so far been of a most perfect and agreeable character; and that he meant to co operate cordially in whatever would advance the just and legitimate views of the Martinsburg & Potomac Co. 'It is true,' said Mr. King, that we are-now getting 27 cents a bushel on every bushel of wheat sent from Martinsburg, and when that road is constructed to Martinsburg, we shall be content to take ten cents a bushel on the wheat sent from that point-but with such reduction in our freight we shall still be gainers by the proposed road, for it will so largely increase the population and prosperity of Martinsburg and the county of Berkeley, and add so greatly to its travel and productions, that if we transport for less, our revenue will be enlarged by the increase of travel and productions from that point."

Of course it is unnecessary to say that the same course of reasoning is as applicable to the route through Jefferson county as through Berkeley, and the same beneficial result must inure to us as to the people of Berkeley. It must, therefore, be a source of great gratification to these who voted for the subscription of $250,000 to the Shenandoah Valley Railroad to know that the probable result of their action will be to reduce the freight on wheat for Jefferson county, from 27 cents to 10 cents per bushel to Baltimore. And this consummation, in the opinion of Messrs. Blackburn and King, is to be reached not only without detriment but with great advantage to the Interest of their corporatoin! TERRIBLE CALAMITY

The City of Richmond in Mourning Entry-Six Persons Killed Outright?

The city of Richmond, on Wednesday las was the scene of a most terrible and heartrending calamity, occasioned by the falling of the floor of the Court Room of the Supreme Court of Appeals. From the Dispatch of Thursday, which is draped in mourning, we make up the following:-

Yesterday occurred the greatest calamity that ever afflicted this city save the burning of the Theatre in 1811. It was occasioned y the falling in of the floor of the old Senate imber, in the Capitol, which is now used for the sessions of the Supreme Court of Appeals of this State.

Eleven o'clock was the hour for the meet ing of the court, and it being understood that there would be announced the decision upon the question of the constitutionality of the "enabling act,"-otherwise known as the Chahoon-Eilyson ease-which has excited so much interest in this community-a large number of citizens assembled in the gallery and space in front of the bench before the hour appointed. The weight of such a packed mass was too great for the imperfectly-constructed flooring and vet more faulty gallery, which was suspended from the upper joists in a most defective manner. The gallery first fell forward, the fluor yielding instantly and going down with it, carrying the packed body of men to the floor of the House of Delegates, fully twenty feet below. As fearful and fatal as this was, the heavy ceiling and the timbers which supported it descended along with the mass, greatly increasing the mortality. Fifty-six were killed outright, and others may die from injuries received.

Had the catastrophe occurred ten minutes earlier possibly half the members of the House of Delegates would have been killed by the falling of the mass upon them, for a caucus of the great majority of the body had adjourned probably not ten minutes before the occurrence; or had the hour for the meeting of the court been 12 instead of 11 o'clock, a like destruction of life would have taken place, for the Legislature would then have been in session.

The scene cannot be described, nor can it be appreciated by those who did not witness The mass of human beings that fell were so mixed up with the heavy timbers and rubbish that they had to be disengaged with great labor. The right of the dead and wounded as they were slowly let down from the windows of the House of Delegates (the door of which was blocked up by the ruins) was heart-rending. So covered with dust and blood were they that it was difficult to recognize them. The great body of people outside swayed with the design of removing elsewhere the very anxiety and grief. Many hundreds watched eagerly for friends and relatives who were known to have been in the court-room, and each body that appeared in the hands of the indefatigable men who worked for the relief of those buried with the ruins, was scanned with closest scrutiny by a thousand eyes.

The reporters for the Dispatch have gathered all the particulars of this terrible event that were obtainable. We refer the readers to their full details.

This calamity has filled the city with gloom, and bowed the public spirit to that providential dispensation which it is not for us to criticise, but which it is our duty to turn to our own good by the practice of the public of West Virginia will afford. Hereafter there | and private virtues which affliction teaches all intelligent and wise communities.

This disaster has swept through all classes of the community. None escape. Some of our best and most distinguished citizens have perished in it. Legislators, lawyers, citizens, State and municipal officers, a journalist, and private citizens, are all numbered in the list of dead, as also in the larger list of wounded. Richmond is chief mourner; but nearly every section of the State shares in the immediate results of the calamity, while we know that' from the ruins to be cared for on the grounds the people of the entire Commonwealth will feel the affliction as their own.

[Reported for the Dispatch.]

Sad-sad, indeed-is the duty of the chronicler of the sad events and terrible scenes in our State capitol on yesterday. Unprecedented in their awful results, heart-rendering in their every aspect, and bringing mourning to our entire city, we almost halt in palsied horror in the undertaking of their narration. To describe it would be beyond the power of man, and with those who witnessed it its recollection will remain indelibly vivid as long as life shall last. In sending to a spirit-grieved people our account of this dreadful calamity we are well aware of our inability to give them more than a narrative of the facts and casualties. The attendant scenes may be imagined but cannot be described. We give below, as best we could obtain them, a summary of the dreadful events :

THE CATASTROPHE.

The room of the Court of Appeals was the scene of this horrible occurence, and its many historic associations and reminiscences have culminated in an affair which beggars description, and which will be remembered as long as Richmond is a city. As is well known, the Mayoralty controversy was about to be decided, and an immense concourse of anxious spectators and listeners had gathered to ascertain the result. Members of the Legislature, visitors to the city from all parts of our country, members of the bar, representatives of both police forces of the city, members of the press, and representatives of all classes and conditions of life, were assembled.

The bells had just tolled the hour of 11. and death-like silence reigned as Mr. Starke, the clerk, entered and placed his books on the table. Judge Joynes was in his seat .-Mr. Starke, leaning over the railing, was talking with him, while the rest of the Judges were in the conference-room not quite prepared to enter on their day's duty. The counsel for Mayer Ellyson, Messrs. Neeson and Meredith, had taken their seats, and were ready to proceed to business. Ex-Governor Wells and L. H. Chandler, Esq., were also in their places; and the reporters of the Enquirer, Dispatch, Whig, and State Journal, were at the desks set apart for their use and Various were the speculations as to the final result, when, all at once, a panel piece of ceiling fell, and then the girder, which is represented by the line of partition between the clerk's office and the courtroom, gave way spectators who were in the gallery of the court- during the war; room to the main floor, and the additional weight in one single moment's time crushing the courtroom floor through. The mass of human beings who were in attendance were sent, mingled with the bricks, mortar, splinters, beams, iron bars, desks, and chairs, to the floor of the House of Delegates, and in a second more, over fifty souls were launched into eternity! The whole atmosphere was thick with a dense cloud of dust from the his pocket; plastering, and the human beings sent up a groan which will ring forever in the cars up-Pub Docs.—Hon. J. C. SCENE ABOUT THE CAPITOL BUILDING. The scene about the Capitol building ins after the sad occurrance was one of terror.—
The first notice that those who were in the building had of the impending evil was the premonitory rumbling as the floor was settling. Then there came a fearful crash, accompanied by a cry of human agony and ter-ror which smote the hearts of all who heard it. In a moment the frightful situation was realized. The few who had been so fortunat as to be able to get into the windows shouted aloud for help for those who had fallen, and called for ladders. In a short time the bells were tolling, and, the hook and ladder truck being brought upon the spot, the ladders were put up to the windows, and the work of hunanity began. The blinding dust within prevented any one from seeing anything, and the rushing of persons within the building and the cries of the wounded was all that could be

IN THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Here was a scene that fairly made one's heart bleed. As the dust cleared away a lit-tle mass of timbers and rubbish of every description was descried, and the reflection the numbers of human beings crushed beneath its weight, dead and dying, was sickening.-Add to this the cries and groans of those who were there, many in the agony of death, and there is a picture to make the stoutest hearts quail. The entire hall was flooded with the ruins, except the space under the gallery .-Desks, chairs, and tables, were crushed completely, showing the force of the falling The work of removing the debri was a difficult one, but was undertaken by those present with a will, and it was not long before the unfortunate men were being res cued from their painful position. BRINGING OUT THE DEAD AND WOUNDED.

This scene defies even an attempt at de scription. The doors and windows of the Hall were thrown open, and within were soon collected the busy workers, who, mid their own shouts and the agonizing groans of those they were seeking to rescue, were removing the timbers. As the wounded and dead were reached, they were brought out and placed in the Senate chamber or else under the trees in the Square, where they were attended by our city physicians and others who were on hand with such appliances as could be obtained -As the men were brought out they were so covered with dust that they could scarcely be recognized, and for a while the anxious inquiries of the bystanders, "Who is he?" could not be answered. One by one they were borne out-the dead and dying. Here was one mangled and silently enduring, another crying aloud with pain, while the still form of a third told too well that its spirit had fled to bury, cut on side of his head-wounds supanother world. In one moment the gray hairs of age could be described upon the head of some dead one, while in the next the tall, manly form of one who had been cut off in the full bloom of life was being borne past .-It seemed as if sickening horrors would never cease, and ages seemed to pass in the performance of this sad duty.

THE SCENE IN THE SQUARE. The tolling of bells, the rushing and shouting of excited men, and the news of the fearful calamity, which spread like wild-fire over the city in an incredible short space of time, brought an immense crowd of all classes, ages and colors, to the Square.

Hundreds of wives, mothers, and friends, were constantly filling the grounds, who, with wringing hands sought, in despair, to know if any of their loved ones had been of the number mangled. War, with its horrors, its agonies, its sad separations, its ghastly wounds. its horrible deaths, pictures to the mind no such scene as the one which was vesterday enacted in the Square. To contemplate upon such a shocking affair -to see the faces of those who expected each moment to find a near and dear friend borne | jured; by the citizens and physicians in attendance -fills the soul with horror and awful fear.

Hacks, ambulances, and vehicles of all de scriptions, were promptly on the ground, ready to convey the wounded away from the scene disaster to their homes, where they could be cared for, and their wounds dressed to better advantage than in the deuse crowd with which they were surrounded. The dead, who had been brought out, were respectfully and decently laid aside and covered with blankets, and afterwards borne away to their bereaved

Policemen were stationed on the steps of the building to prevent the crowd from rush - jured; ing in and thereby hindering those who were administering to the relief of the sufferers; and at a late hour the gates of the Square were guarded by Mayor Ellyson's police, who kept out the crowd of persons who seemed bent on viewing the scene of the disaster

ABOUT THE CITY. The excitement of the moment over, the beautiful city of Richmond was wrapped in gloom. The popular heart was sad, the voice of woe and mourning resounded throughout the city, and the asperities of life were softened in the sympathy of a public calamity, leaving our people united in grief and in the desire to show their respect for the dead and feeling for the injured. All the business houses of the city were closed and badges of mourning displayed, and save for the number of persons on them, our streets wore the appearance of the Sabbath.

Here follows a long list of the killed and wounded, among which we find the follow-

INCIDENTS. When the accident first occurred Mr. W. H. Grant was just entering the court-room .-With great presence of mind he rushed to the bell house and had the alarm rung in an incredibly short time.

Mr. Thomas Joynes fell together with Dr. J. B. Brock, and his mouth rested against the Doctor's cheek. He asked who it was near him. He told him his name, and he asked W. E. Mr. P. H. Keenan was buried beneath the ruins for three-quarters of an hour, and was found nearly suffocated under the dead bodies. He has almost entirely recovered.

THE THEORY OF THE ACCIDENT. From conversations with several who were in the court-room at the time of the fall we learned the following as the true theory of the accident: The large girder which was under the partition between the clerk's office and the court room snapped in twain, and imme-diately afterwards the floor commenced to cave. The surport of the crowded gallery having given away, the gallery parted from the wall and fell over into the centre of the court room, crushing through the floor and precipitating the mass of human beings and rubbish into the hall below. We examined the girder and found that it had broken off just in the centre. It was hewn timber, and just where it broke was a cut, as if the workmen in hewing had made a misslick and driven his adse into the wood about a quarter of an inch.

HORRIBLE DEATH. The most terrible feature about this whole affair is the heart-reading manner of death in the majority of instances. Many of the dead, when brought out, were found to be without serious bodily injury, but had evidently died from suffocation. The mere contemlation of such a thing is sickening. Hard, ndeed, was the fate of those who had escaped death from the falling timber, in the end to. die from the untold agonies of suffocation.

AN OLD RELIC GONE. If we may be pardoned for any consideration of loss other than that of human life. we will mention the smash up of an old and much houared relic of bye-gone days, the Speaker's chair of the House of Delegates. which was formerly used in the House of Burgesses, decorated with the royal arms of Great Britain. It was subsequently moved here from Williamshurg, and has been used in the House of Delegates over since. It was buried and broken in the ruins of yes-

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Shaking and Burning. It is not necessary to journey from the tropics to Alaska in order to experience the extremes of heat and cold. Thousands undergo all the inconve-and cold. Thousands undergo all the inconveniences of this thermometrical change every day, or every other day, as the case may be, without the trouble of moving over the threshold. A word with these involuntary shakers. What are they doing to expedite their return to a medium temperature?—to break the chills and banish the fever? Are they dosing themselves with quinine, thereby imperiling the soundness of their bones and impairing the vigor of their brains and nervous system? Some of them are, no doubt, but not the majority of them, it is believed. The value of Hostetter's somach Bitters as a harmless and certain specific for fever and ague is understood and appreciated in all parts of the country where intermittents prevail. The residents of such localities begin to take it early in esidents of such localities begin to take it early in the spring as a protection against the minsma by which they are surrounded; not all of them, per-haps, for a blind adherance to errer is the specialty f some people, but the greater number.

If there is any fixed fact in therapeutics, it is this: that the Bitters are a far better sufeguard against all the varieties of periodic maladies produced by unwholesome exhalations than any drug or compound in the materia medica of the profession.—
This assertion is made with all due respect to the faculty, but being an important truth, and one that faculty, but being an important truth, and one that mearly concerns the health of large settlements in various parts of the country, and indeed of the public at large, it is made fearlessly. Founded on ample and unimpeachable testimony, it defies disproval.

To break up chills and fevers, as well as to prevent them. rent them, there is nothing so reliable as this whol une vegetable restorative.

CONFEDERATE MONUMENT .- The firm of Diehl & Bro, of this place, have just completed, and will erect in a few, days, a handnument for the Confederate Cemetery at Shepherdstown. This beautiful tribute of affection has been procured by the energy and patriotism of the Memorial Association of that lace, and will, we understand, be unveiled on the occasion of the approaching annual floral decoration. By the way, what has besome of our Monument movement? The funds already collected, we are aware, are in competent hands, but they are far from being enough, and the noble enterprise seems to have died out. We trust that the young ladies, who deserve great credit for the esthusiastic and cheerful manner in which they inaugurated this movement, will again enter into it with renewed energy and zeal, and that their labors will be crowned with abundant success. Let us be not behind our sister towns in this matter, but erect a memorial shaft that will perpetuate to coming generations the heroic deeds of those who offered up their lives in defence of the land they loved.

ELECTION OF VESTRY .- An election for Vestrymen to control the affairs of Zion P. E. Church, of this place, took place on Monday, April 25th, and resulted in the election of the following gentlemen :- R. T. Brown, T. C. Green, Esq., N. S. White, Esq., David Henderson, Col. R. W. Baylor, J. B. Mc-Elroy, Maj. Jas. Law. Hooff, Wm. Beall, Saml. Howell, Dr. Wm. F. Lippitt, Dr. J. V. Simmons and Francis R. Hooff.

A meeting of the Vestry will take place at the church on Thursday next, at 10 o'clock, A. M., when much important business will likely be transacted.

SAPPINGTON HOTEL,-It is ever our pleasure to note the prosperity and improvement of our town, and we are especially pleased to see that work has been gommenced on the Sappington Hotel, of which we have heretofore spoken-the workmen on Saturday last having commenced operations on a three story portice, which is to extend the full length of the front and east side of the house, Dr. Hammond, the late purchaser, is a liberalminded gentleman, and will spare no means to enable the present landlord-Isaac Fouke. E-q -to offer to the public one of the finest and most inviting houses in the country.

SHENANDOAU VALLEY AGRICULTUAL'SO-CIETY .- A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Shenaudoah Valley Agricultural Society was held in Winchester on Saturday week, and the contract for buildings-amphitheatre, show houses, judges' stand, ticket office, stock stalls, and fencing-awarded to General W. Eq! FOR THE CIRCUS!-Grady's Olds Fashioned American Circus is now making a spring and summer excursion through the Southern States, and will be in Charlestown on Monday next, the 9th instant. From the universal compliments of the press, we conclude it must be a grand affair. The proprietor claims that it is a perfect circus, with surroundings more superior and complete than any ever witnessed in any American arena.

NEW CIGAR MANUFACTORY .- Attention is called to the card of Mr.- N. W. Haines, who has entered into an extensive manufacture of Cigars, at Harper's Ferry. erected near the Baptist Church, for the sum of $3,000; purchasers, Messrs McCurdy & Duke. The same firm has also purchased an adjoining lot of G. W. Sadler, for $200.

IMPROVEMENTS .- We are pleased to see that Mr. John H. Strider, and other citizens, are erecting new fencing and otherwise improving and beautifying their property. A good coat of whitewash would add greatly to the looks of our fencing, while the cost is so trifling as to be within the reach of all. Try it, friends.

POST-OFFICE REMOVAL. - Our Post-Office has been removed to the Brick Office adjoin- and will enter upon his pastoral duties in a WOOD wanted for dues at this office | ing the residence of A. W. Cramer, Esq.

B. F. Sheetz, Esq., the editor of the Leesburg Mirror, in giving an account of his late A day or two spent in West Virginia last week, revealed a decided spirit of public improvement in the localities visited. Harper's erry is still terribly mutilated, but there are signs of convalesence, and when her ancient hills, that once gave echoe to the hammer and the frog, shall reverberate with the music of trator of Andrew McIntyre, de'd, pay over to Wm. O. Macoughtry, Road Surveyor of Averill township, $155,64 balance in his may be assured. Charlestown, the gem of one of the finest and loveliest agricultural regions in the State, bears the scars of war, but and reflects great credit upon the skill of Dr throughout her borders the hand of industry Lawrence, its compounder, and also put is busily engaged in clearing away the debris of once peaceful homes, preparatory to building up their waste places. The ruins of her dismantled public buildings still rear their gloomy walls in hideous mockery over the miserable selfishness and political rancor that prompted the selections of abother spot for the dispensing of law and justice. But Not-withstanding this, there is energy and pluck in the old town yet, which has developed it-self, especially in the southeastern suberbs.— Since the close of the war new streets have been opened, and the locality from which "John Brown's soul went marching on," has been completely metamorphosed, and what a year or two back was but a grazing ground for the village cows is now oderous with the perfume of the flower and the shrub, amid which not less than twenty-five or thirty stately mausious rear their imposing fronts, the abodes of elegance and comfort. The number of these will be aded to the present summer, and for some of which ground is already broken. Why can't our people do likewise Forget the sorrows of the past, and live for the present and the future. Why can't we have new life, new energy, new streets, new houses, with increased population and increased wealth. Charlestown possesses no peculiar advantages that should thus stimulate her growth, beyond the industry and enterprise of her public-spirited citizens. And yet she is colarging her borders, her people are sanguine and hopeful, looking forward with confidence and calm composure, to the day which they say is not far distant, when the seat of Justice will again be established in their midst, where it rightfully belongs, and the old town prise, Phoenix-like, from the ashes of material fire with which she has been so sorely scorched. We sincerely trust their expectations may meet with speedy realization. At Hall town, four miles distant; from Charlestown, is the Paper mill of Messrs. Decatur (Ill.) Magnet. Danssmaxind .- There are many ladies who would refer to make their own and their children's resses, but for the difficulty in cutting and fitting them properly—the ordinary charts being sery high priced, and, at the same time, so complicated as to be available only to professional dressmakers, after long practice. An eminent mediate of Paris has recently issued "THE UNIVERSAL GUIDE IN DRESS-M AKING," which pycromes this difficulty entirely. It contains a superior mode of measuring, perfectly exact, yet so easy that it can be applied by any on in itself worth more than the price of the whole work. Also a complete scale of patients for all sizes, from the largest adult to the 'smallest child. Together with printed Rules and Explanations, by means of which any lady can make her own and her children's dresses in the best style. To dressmakers it is invaluable. And the low price at which it is offered (only ONE DOLLAR) places if within the reach of all. It is for sale by J. Wickliffe, (Box 665.) New

MISCELLANEOUS.

I Worked and Earned It.

A few weeks ago a gentleman living in antern town was called out of his bed one. morning by several vigorous raps upon his front door. Hastily dressing himself he responded to the call, and found standing upon the step an unconth, roughly clad boy, with an are upon his shoulder, who hastily thrusting his hand into his breeches pocket, drew out a small roll and handing it to Judge,

There's seventy five dollars which I wish ou to put into the savings bank," and, hastily The Judge, slightly disconcerted at the curious proceeding, scarce knew what to say, till at last recovering his fits, he called out after the boy. Stop I come back here. How did you

me by this money?"
"I worked and carned it, sir." My time was out last night, and I got my money.—
"I've got a job of chopping, which I begin on this morning, and I thought I'd leave the money with you as I went to work, and then, it wouldn't take up my time this evening, when I want to study." "What is your name, my boy?" asked the

"I wrote it on the paper that I wrapped the money up in," shouted the little wood-chopper, as he passed on to his work.

That boy's note for a thousand dollars due ten years hence would be as good as gold .-If he has his health he will be worth double that then.

He is beginning in the right way. The very day his time was out for the summer, he entered upon another job, and immediately placed the money he had worked for where that would work for him; and with economy of time, which is more to be praised than his forethought with regard to money, he could not endure to have a moment devoted to anything but his books when the long evenings

Five years from to day with a good educa-tion, with good habits, with a few hundred dollars, which he has earned by work, his chances for place in the business and political world will be greater far than those of the spendthrift boy, who, born with a fortune, begins without knowing the worth of money, and instead of going up, goes down.

The Deacon and the Wasp.

A worthy deacon in the town of Maine, was remarkable for the facility with which he quoted Scripture on all occasions. The Divine word was ever at his tongue's end, and all the trivial as well as important occasions for quoting the language of the Bible. What was better, however, the exemplary man always made his quotation the standard of action.

One hot day he was engaged in mowing with his hired man, who was leading off, the deacon following in his swarth, conning his apt quotations, when the man suddenly sprang from his place, leaving the swarth just in time to escape from a wasp's nest. "What is the matter?" hurriedly inquired

"Wasp," was the laconic reply.
"The wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the righteous are bold as a lion;" and taking the workman's swarth, he mowed but a step, when a swarm of brisk insects settled about his ears. and he was forced to retreat, with many a painful sting, and in great discomfiture. "Ah !" shouted the other, with a chuckle "the prudent man foreseeth the evil and hideth himself, but the simple pass on and are

The good deacon had found his equal in making applications of the sacred writings, and thereafter was not known to quote scripture in a mowing field.

-When I was teaching in Frogmore Seminary, I boarded with an old lady who had an opinion on every subject and expressed it. One night a train ran off the track near by, and in consequence there was a deal of whistling. Next morning the old lady inquired if we had heard the disturbance.

"No; my wife thought something was the matter, but I heard nothing." "Well," said she, "I dare presume there has been an accident, for the cars have been whistling most all night. They whistled and whistled, and I dare presume, a half an hour at a time.: I didn't think it possible for a or Iron man to hold his breath so long!" "Why, mother," interrupted her daughter, "its a steam whistle." "Isa!" said the old lady, 'I always thought it was the engineer that whistled."

- John Bright was lately dining with citizen of Manchester who is an enthusiastic admirer of the United States. "I would like," said the host, "to come back fifty years after my death to see what a fine country America had become." "I believe you would be glad of any excuse to come back," said tions. Mr. Bright, with a grim smile upon his face.

- Liues from a hymn book, which a young lady incautiously left behind her in a chapel: "I look in vain-he does not come; dear, dear, what shall I do! I cannot listen as I ought, unless he listens too! He might have come as well as not! What plagues these fellows are! I'll bet he's fast asleep at home, or smoking a cigar."

- "I am afraid dear wife that while I am gone, absence will conqure love." "O never fear, dear husband, the longer you stay away the better I shall like you."

- Why is a one dollar greenback better than a silver dollar? When you fold it you find it increases.

- What's the difference betwen a turkey and a jeweler? One watches ceils and the other sells watches.

- Would it be proper to call an award for damages a court-plaster?

Buchu, as prepared by Draggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu is my preparation precommates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopus, nor is it a Surup—and therefore can be used in ruses where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation. . Hoping that you will have it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will a second
