THE SALAM REVEALED.

The interest which many readers had in this matter, has induced us to give the following details...

TRIAL OF JOSEPH JENKINS KNAPP.

Tuesday morning the prisoner pleaded not guilty to so much of the indictment as charged him with being accessories to John Francis Knapp in the murder of Joseph White...

A jury having been impanelled, the Attorney General was proceeding to open the case, when the prisoner's counsel, after some inquiry...

The court, after a long consideration, could not decide, and ordered that the cause should go on under the conduct of the Attorney and Solicitor...

Mr. Webster then said, I came solely at the request of the Attorney General in order to induce the defendant to confess, and to deny his confessions...

The Attorney General then opened the case to the jury, and cited authorities to support the doctrine, that if an accomplice confesses, and is called as a witness...

Dexter objected that any thing of the confession should be given, or the contents of the paper in any way stated.

The Attorney General stated that the paper contained an account of the murder, authenticated on every page, containing nine pages...

Mr. Colman was again called, and testified: I first heard of the arrest of the Knapps on Thursday morning, the 27th, but I did not visit him till Friday morning...

A charged him if he was innocent, by no means to involve himself, he must be the judge of that.

Who then is interested in continuing these high taxes? The answer is plain. Mr. Clay and Mr. Webster, who wish to unite the white laborers of the East and the West...

for committing the murder, which was the same as Frank had told him, viz: one thousand dollars.

Richard showed the tools with which he meant to perform the deed; they were examined by the defendant. One was a club about two feet long, turned, and having heads turned towards the handle, to prevent slipping in the hand...

A subsequent confession, written at the jail, in presence of the prisoner, and signed by him, was then read. It was made on the 31st of May, two days after the other, and was in reply to questions addressed to him.

Second Confession.—One afternoon in January, when he was visiting at the house of Captain White, he went up into his chamber, opened the iron chest where he knew it was kept, and took out the will. He found that but $10,000 was there bequeathed to his wife...

court adjourned at a quarter after six o'clock. Mr. Webster has left court, and the Solicitor General is to be assisted by Mr. Saltonstall.

George Crowninshield was acquitted on Monday, of participation in the murder of Capt. White; but was afterwards indicted for a conspiracy to assassinate the President, for which he was required $500, and went home with his father.
