FOREIGN.

LATE FROM ENGLAND. The packet ship Canada, at New York from Liverpool, brings London and Liverpool advices to the 31st March. The Courier and Enquirer furnish the following items of intelligence:

The cholera, it appears, has broken out in Paris. The spot where it is stated to have commenced, is an island on the river Seine, and very densely populated by the lower classes. It is not probable, we think, that the ravages of this disease in France will be more serious than they have been in England, for although in the former country people live in a more circumscribed space, their general habits of temperance are much greater than those of the same class in the latter country. We perceive mention made of one case of spasmodic cholera, at Calais, but in the intermediate space between that place and the capital, it does not seem to have been noticed. The London journals continue to give the official accounts of the progress of the disorder in Great Britain, but beyond that, it hardly excites their attention. An Order in Council of the British Government has been published, directing that vessels with passengers bound to this continent shall be provided with a medical man and medicine chest. A very necessary precaution we think under present circumstances.

Count Orloff, the Russian diplomatist, had arrived at London from the Hague, and it is again stated with much confidence, that the ratification of the 24 articles relating to the separation of Holland and Belgium is about to take place. We have, however, received so many similar statements, and been so often deceived, that we shall attach little value to the present, until it comes through an official channel.

There is nothing further from Ancona, although the occupation of that place by the French is still a fertile subject of discussion among the newspapers.

The second reading of the Reform Bill, which was to have taken place in the House of Lords on the 5th, was postponed at the request of Lord Wharcliffe, to the 9th April. The reformers seem to consider this indicative of an intention on the part of Lord Wharcliffe, who had previously voted against the bill, to give it a more favorable reception in its present shape; indeed the Marquis of Londonderry plainly said that he supposed Lord Wharcliffe asked for the postponement, because he and his friends had not yet had time enough to seduce votes for those wavering counsels they had lately shown in the debate.

By the Columbia, the Hampshire Telegraph of the 2d April, was received at New York.

The official Cholera Report is one day later. Under date of the 31st of March, it states that there were 87 new cases in London, and 44 deaths, since the preceding day. In the country 33 new cases and 16 deaths.

The Trial of Miss.

The New-York Courier and Enquirer contains a report of this trial, so far as it had proceeded on Wednesday the 25th ult. It commenced at 2 P. M. on Tuesday. The following description is given of Miss's person and appearance on the occasion.

Miss, the much talked of Lino Amelco Espos Mina, alias Celestina Amantaria, alias Andalia Guerrero Servicio, (for by such of these names he is placed at the bar. He was attired in a complete suit of black—frock, vest, pantaloons, and stock; even his eye-brows and hair are of a jet black. His height is little over 5 feet 2 inches; his age about 30 years; his hair, which was arranged with much care, displayed a low but extended forehead; his eyes are sunk within their spheres; but his nose, thin, his complexion is ruddy, and his countenance is so full of life, giving a shade which might be, perhaps, best described as sickly green, and the lower part of his countenance is proportionally smaller than the upper. There is but one striking point in his personal appearance—his eyes, which are so full of life, and so full of heretofore capable of throwing occasional flashes of light over his other disconcerting features. His whole appearance is altogether, if it has been mistaken of wonder, at his arrest, that he could seduce the affections of Mrs. Chapman who is described as a woman of large but not unattractive appearance.

The empanelling of the jurors and their names have been already mentioned. The following is the conversation, as reported, which took place in relation to interrogating jurors as to their opinion of capital punishments.

Mr. Reed, for the prosecution, rose to ask whether the court did not intend to allow the counsel for the prosecution to inquire of each juror whether or not he had any conscientious scruples against finding a verdict of guilty, where the punishment of the crime is death? The gentleman said he had communicated both with the chief-justice and with Judge Kennedy on the subject, and both stated their opinions to him that the question was proper to be asked.

The presiding judge replied that he had conferred with Judge Rogers on the subject, and had a communication from the chief-justice, and both agreed that it is a proper question: he would allow it to be asked.

Mr. Rush, counsel for the defendant, asked—Am I to understand your honor to say that you decide contrary to the opinion given by you on the former trial?

Judge Fox replied—Yes, contrary to my own opinion.

We omit the opening of Mr. Reed, the prosecuting attorney, which occupied the rest of the day.

Dailytown, (Pa.) Wednesday evening.—The court opened at 10 o'clock, and proceeded in pursuance to their adjournment. The witness, Mina, appeared more restless than he was on Tuesday; his lips had assumed a more livid hue, and his hair displayed less care.

The counsel for the prosecution immediately commenced the examination of their witnesses. The first examined was Mary Palethorp, an interesting little girl about 15 or 16 years old, who was at Mrs. Chapman's school. She gave her evidence with much embarrassment.

She testified that on the 9th May, 1831, the prisoner called at the residence of Mr. Chapman, in Andalusia, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. He knocked at the door, which was opened by Mrs. Chapman, who admitted a servant, and Mr. Chapman, who had come out to the piazza, said there was a person a short distance further on, which he had better go. Witness did not hear the reply, but when she went in, and when she had set down with the family. Witness recollects that when Mr. Chapman said Mina could go to the tavern, Mrs. C. said she thought she might stay that night. He had then on him, a light suit of clothes, and with him but one pair of pantaloons besides those he wore.

Dr. Knight, who lived near Mr. Chapman's house, gave testimony nearly similar to that of Mrs. Phillips—he added that he had been called to attend Mina when he was seized with one of his fits—witness saw nothing to excite belief that Mina was really subject to fits.

Benjamin Boucher, who lived adjacent to Mr. C.'s house, testified that the night preceding the death of Mr. Chapman, Mrs. C. called at his house and requested him to go over and see with Mr. Chapman—witness found Mr. C. in bed, and when he arrived at the house he found Mrs. Chapman and Mina sitting in the parlor and taking supper and talking cheerfully together. When witness entered the room he spoke to Mr. C. who merely pressed his hand in reply. He appeared almost insensible, but occasionally said he had been taken ill, and he would go to another. During the night, Mina entered the room three or four times; the second time he took out a watch and laid it to Mr. C.'s wrist, and said in broken English, "it is 35 seconds;" a third time he entered and applied the watch said, "it is 45 seconds;" with his mother and sister were coming down to dine at Andalusia. On one occasion, Mr. C. remarked that the horse had been working and could not go; Mrs. C. replied that the horse could go; he went and returned at the same day. Witness left school the day Mr. Chapman was buried; when he returned was the night after Mina returned from Philadelphia, or the next night, that Mr. Chapman was taken ill. No cross-examination.

Constant Guillou testified that he did write the letter spoken of for Mina; it was directed to William Chapman, Esq. Andalusia, and signed Ezra Questa, a name which it appears was his, on this occasion, assumed. The letter contained the most lively expression of thanks to Mr. Chapman, for the kindness shown Don Lino Manuel Y. Espos Mina, the dear friend of the writer.

Elias Durand, the druggist, with whom Mr. Alfred Guillou resided as an assistant, corroborated the evidence of that gentleman, relative to the purchase of the arsenic by Mina.

The testimony of Israel Descon, the keeper of the Philadelphia prison, was read. From this it appeared that Mina was convicted of larceny in Philadelphia, and was sent to prison there on the 17th March, 1830, where he remained until the 9th of May, 1831, (the very day on which he presented himself at the house of Mr. Chapman,) during all that period Mina never had a fit. He was discharged from the prison between 9 and 10 o'clock on the morning of the 9th of May.

Ellen Shaw, an elderly female who lived in the house as a domestic, corroborated all that Miss Palethorp testified, and said in addition, that she had seen much misconduct between Mrs. C. and Mina; on one occasion, she was sitting at the table, and saw Mrs. C. sitting on the sofa, and Mina sitting on the bed while she lay there. One afternoon that the witness drove with them to a tavern about seven miles distant, they walked away in the woods and were absent two or three hours. They intended to stay at the tavern that night, but witness would not allow them. Both going to and returning from the tavern, Mina lay in Mrs. Chapman's arms, and both were very much attached to each other. At one time Mina, and Mrs. Chapman went to Philadelphia, and were absent three days, during which time Mr. Chapman was almost crazy at the absence of Mrs. C. telling all the servants that he would send Mina out of the house as soon as she returned. On the evening of the third day they returned, and Mr. C. asked Mrs. C. how she would account for such conduct. She replied, that Mina had learned in Philadelphia that his sister had died, and they were delayed in consequence. Mr. C. and Mrs. C. retired in a room alone. The fits that Mina pretended to have did not seem to come out of Mina's room as early as daylight, in her night dress. Heard no angry words between Mr. C. and Mina, when the latter returned from the three days' absence, but the former expressed pity for the melancholy state of mind of the latter.

Alfred Guillou testified that he was an assistant to Mr. Durand, a druggist in Philadelphia, and that he had seen Mina in Philadelphia, and that he had seen him in the city, he perceived the difficulty Mina had in speaking English, and that he was in Spanish. They conversed together a long time, and Mina went away. Some few days after this, Mina again called, and had a slight conversation about the weather or some other topic; he then stated that he was the son of a governor of California. In about three days thereafter, bringing the witness up to the 15th of June, Mina again called, and asked if there was any arsenic soap in the store; he said he wanted to preserve birds, witness replied in the negative, but added, he could soon prepare it. Mina replied, the powder would do as well. He then asked how it was sold by the pound? Witness told it was sold by the ounce, and Mina again called, and had a slight conversation about the weather or some other topic; he then stated that he was the son of a governor of California.
