AN EXCURSION.

IN A LETTER TO DR. ELY. Dear Sir—I have lately taken a ride over the Blue Ridge mountains. My object was to attend a protracted meeting in the congregation of the Rev. S. Fulton.

My horse, Pilgrim, ascended the Blue Ridge with a firm step. From its top you overlook a district below, not so classic as the range of Italy, but so fertile that it is called a garden.

There was a young lady in the congregation occasionally, who had lately sent her services, nine in number, to Liberia.

There are several considerations in this part of the valley which deserve consideration. They are wonders of nature, and not of art.

THE FREE PRESS.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1.

Monday, 1st, President, Monday, 1st, 1833.

Having been asked by several voters, who are not familiar with the subject, what would be the effect of the three electoral tickets to be run in Virginia, we feel bound, in candor and justice, to give an explanation. We have no wish to deceive any one, and anxious as we are to secure him a single vote, we know he would himself scan it, notwithstanding all the clamor which has been raised against him, about "large gain and corruption."

LETTER FROM P. P. BARBOUR, ESQ. To the Editors of the Richmond Enquirer. CHARLESTOWN, OCT. 21, 1833.

The names of three gentlemen, to wit: Col. Mason of Frederick, Col. Martin of Henry, and Maj. Nelson of Mecklenburg, are upon both of the tickets. All the others on the Legislative Caucus Ticket have indicated that they would vote for Judge Barbour, even though a majority of the people of Virginia preferred him last, as they say, the vote of Virginia might be thrown away. This is the reason why a separate ticket was formed, with Judge Barbour's name upon it.

The Charlottesville Convention seemed anxious not to run a separate ticket—but a majority of the Caucus electoral candidates having refused to give them any assurance, that their votes should be heard in the matter, they had no alternative but to form a new ticket. For they, and thousands of other friends of Gen. Jackson, would rather lose him, than be compelled to swallow Van Buren with him. This is the case particularly on the South side of James River. In that portion of the state, Judge Barbour's vote will be large.

After the above portion of our explanation was in type, we received Judge Barbour's letter, requesting that a separate ticket may not be run. This renders any further remark unnecessary. Those who prefer Barbour, will, we presume, endorse that preference on the Caucus ticket.

"We thank you for that word."—The idea is a good one. It was lately remarked by a Jackson-Barbour man, that he was not aware that Jackson and Barbour (barbarism) were incompatible with each other.

In North Carolina, three electoral tickets are before the people—one for Jackson and Barbour, one for Jackson and Van Buren, and one for Clay and Sergeant. The Barbour ticket is considered the strongest.

We refer our readers to the plain, sensible, and mild remonstrance of Jacksonism by the late Gen. Sevier of Pennsylvania. When men of such high character, who have been ardent admirers of the Hero, find that they cannot consistently continue their support, it is a sign that the cause is sinking in the estimation of the people.

With sentiments of esteem, I remain yours, respectfully, P. P. BARBOUR. To T. W. GILMER, Esq., Chairman, &c.

Prospect Hill School.

NEAR FREDERICKTOWN, (MD.) THE subscriber, about to engage in a course of Theological study, and deeming it necessary, for this purpose, to decline teaching, has made an arrangement to transfer Prospect Hill school, to the hands of the Rev. Joseph Smith, whom he believes amply qualified to sustain it. This gentleman has been long and successfully employed as an instructor of youth, not only as a tutor in college, but as a principal of more than one public institution. From the trustees of the Academy in Stanton, where he has recently resided, he has the most satisfactory testimonials of his industry, fidelity and skill. JONA. EDWARDS WOODBRIDGE.

THE subscriber, in taking charge of the Prospect Hill Institution, hopes to succeed in sustaining the character which this school has now deservedly gained. Whilst attending to the plan heretofore pursued, special attention will be paid to the exercise and health of the boys, the most untiring care will be bestowed on their intellectual and moral culture. The Latin, Greek, Hebrew and French languages, and the Sciences, Natural and Moral, will be thoroughly taught. As it is designed to receive boys of the age of 6 years, the elementary branches of English education will, of course, be embraced.

Having attended an examination of the pupils of the Montvue Institute, under the direction of the Rev. John Ledor, we take great pleasure in stating that the plan of the precursor, as developed in the examination, seems admirably adapted to elicit the talents of the pupils, to strengthen and direct their minds, and lay the foundation of a solid and substantial education. We have been gratified to observe the progress of the pupils, and cheerfully recommend the Institute to public notice and patronage. JOHN LODOR.
