

FOREIGN.

LATER FROM ENGLAND.

The packet ship George Washington, Capt. Holdredge, arrived at New York on Friday, from Liverpool, whence she sailed the 24th March, bringing papers two days in advance of previous advices.

A letter from an eminent English banker has been received in this city, which quotes a letter from Hottinguer & Co., the great Paris bankers of the Bank of the United States, and known to be adverse to the American-Indemnity Bill, in which letter they expressed a confident opinion that the indemnity would be passed by the Chambers in a very short time.

Sir Howard Douglas, well known a few years since as the Governor of one of the British American provinces, has been appointed Lord High Commissioner of the Ionian Islands—a measure which, it is said, has given universal satisfaction.

The London papers confirm the report of the appointment as Ambassador to Russia of the brother of Lord Aberdeen.

Lord Stuart de Rothesay has been appointed Ambassador to the Sublime Porte, in the room of Lord Ponsonby, the latter being, we believe, the only British Statesman who has ever thoroughly comprehended the Turkish question in all its bearings.

The bank of England has declared a dividend of four per cent. payable on the 5th of April.

By the premature death of Sir Peter Parker, Bart, at the early age of 25, the baronetcy of Rapping-cour, county of Essex, conferred on Sir Peter Parker, Admiral of the fleet, 1783, has become extinct, the deceased's two brothers having died before him.

The monster Matthias, for such he deserves to be called, whether sane or insane, has, after the most extraordinary development of unfeeling brutality towards Pierson, and the victim of his fanaticism, been acquitted of murder, by poison, for want of sufficient evidence.

But who, after reading the facts proved, can rise from the trial without a thorough conviction that his death was at least accelerated by the most savage neglect on the part of Matthias, who left him to starve and to perish almost alone in his chamber, without the slightest attendance or nursing which can be called such, and without food or even water to drink!

When Matthias did consent to give him water—for nothing was ever done either on the farm or in the house, not even a mouthful of victuals taken by any of the fraternity in the family without his permission—he poured it, as he would upon a dog, into the gaping mouth of the diving man, then struggling on the floor, almost naked, and in the last agonies of his disease!

This, and the fatuity, the voluntary debasement of the personages of the family, chiefly females, subjecting themselves by a system of abject menial obedience to the will of this impostor, will forever form a theme for reflection, as astounding and incomprehensible as it is degrading and revolting to human nature.

That a family of nine respectable persons, one of them a black woman, and several of them children, in the possession of the comforts and elegancies of life, with their country seat, coachman, carriage, &c. should have been found to exist in this free and enlightened community, secluded themselves from the rest of the world, for the purpose of devoting themselves, and services, and property, to an ignorant and ferocious impostor, who had insinuated himself so far into their confidence as to palm himself upon them, in the language of Mrs. Folger, as "God the Father, possessing the Holy Ghost," and the type of the "last trumpet of the angels in the Revelations," that they should have abandoned themselves to the most unlimited credulity in the truth of these profane declarations, and believed him to be what he professed, will forever be a black and damning spot on the alleged refinement and civilization of the age.

To what end will not fanaticism, and the criminal intentions of those who foment this spirit, as well as of those who, for equally unworthy motives, surrender themselves to it, ultimately bring our happy country? Will it not be the rock on which all our highest hopes and flattering anticipations of future glory and prosperity will be shipwrecked? Is there not some mode that may be devised which may reach the abominations practiced on the community by religious impostors? Could not this end be effected without in any manner violating the freedom of religious toleration? Without some such remedy, the fires of fanaticism, that are lighted up from one end of our country to the other, will not only corrupt, but ultimately consume the very frame and substance of all that is pure and holy in the construction of the social compact.

Hutcheon robbery.—We learn from the Romney Intelligencer, that Mr. Joseph Dorn, of Hampshire county, was way-laid on the 10th inst. near the Hanging Rock on the N. W. Turnpike, by two men, and robbed of $3,000, principally of the denomination of $50 each.

Col. Benton, some years since, designated Gen. Jackson as the "getter up of depositions."

to the Chancellor, Prince Metternich.—"Dear Prince Metternich—In order to execute in the fullest manner the last will of my most revered and beloved father, I commission you to take care that the annexed extract of his testament shall be made known to every person in my dominions. The affecting sentiments which it contains of the love of the deceased for his people, and the gratitude to the army and the servants of the state, who have faithfully done their duty, will certainly raise for him an imperishable monument in the hearts of all those who are concerned, and give to all, as it does to me, a new motive diligently to persevere in the course which his instructions and example have pointed out to us. "FERDINAND."

Extract from the Will of his late Majesty the Emperor Francis I.—"To my subjects I bequeath my love. I hope that I shall be able to pray to God for them; and I call on them to shew to my legitimate successor the same loyalty and affection that they have manifested to me, in times both of prosperity and adversity. To my faithful army I give my cordial thanks for the services which it has rendered to me, and by which it has preserved my throne. I invite it to show the same devotion and affection to my successor. To all persons in office who have served me well I hereby return thanks."

His Majesty has addressed a letter to Count Hardegg, President of the Aulic Council of War, announcing that he has conferred on his brother, the Archduke Francis Charles, the rank of Major General.

The German papers hold out no hope of an amicable adjustment of the differences between the Imperial Court and the Diet of Switzerland. The Grand Duke of Baden and the King of Wurtemberg have already given symptoms of commencing hostilities, by establishing a cordon of troops on the Swiss frontier, under various pretexts, and all the other little despatches are preparing to follow their example.

ACQUITTAL OF MATTHIAS.

FIRE ON THE RAIL ROAD.

Yesterday, soon after the cars had departed from Bordenown, and when about two miles from the Sand Hills, the conductor discovered that the baggage was on fire. The engine was immediately stopped, and every exertion used to extinguish the flames; but being some distance from water and procuring but two buckets, the fire soon obtained such a head way, that it was found impracticable to put it out. Efforts were now made to obtain an axe to cut away the sides of the car—but this could not be procured; and the only resort was to cut the rails and roll over, and unfortunately railed bottom up, preventing any access to the trucks, &c. The passengers (and there were upwards of two hundred) had to stand by and witness the destruction of their property, saving now and then an article as it could be snatched from the flames. The wind blew very fresh, and the fire was seen at a great distance, and many persons came from the Sand Hills, a distance of three or four miles, but only to witness the destruction that was going on. Knowing that the cars bound South were approaching, the engine was soon rolled over, and the passengers' baggage, with all the newspapers, the letters were all consumed, and many of them burnt, but the number is not ascertained. The number lost cannot be known until we learn the amount of mail sent from Philadelphia, as the way bill which accompanied it was burnt. A scorched bundle of letters has been received, and the subscriptions on forty-four were decyphered.—How the fire originated has not been ascertained, but it is believed to have caught from a spark from the chimney of the engine. The loss is great, but we have not been able to ascertain the amount. We have heard various sums mentioned, from 5 to 10,000 dollars.—Many of the passengers were left entirely destitute, and we have heard of some peculiar cases of misfortune.—Among the number, is that of a lady with a child, who had a journey of more than six hundred miles to perform, and who lost every vestige of her property. Some of the passengers returned immediately to Philadelphia; and those who came on, on their arrival on board the steam boat at Amboy, held a meeting, and endeavored to ascertain the amount each had lost. A committee was then appointed to wait upon the Rail Road Company, and to lay the case before them.

THE FOLLOWING ADDITIONAL PARTICULARS.

Among the passengers who were the greatest sufferers, were Mrs. R.—, of Boston, and Mrs. Austin of the Theatre. The former lost a large quantity of valuable clothing, worth $1500, but fortunately saved her diamonds and other jewellery. Mrs. Austin also lost all her baggage, including many valuable articles of dress, but saved a box of jewels which was providentially taken from the centre of the trunk.

A German gentleman and his wife who had lost all their clothing, were fortunate enough to recover a tin box, which was in one of their trunks, containing documents necessary for the recovery of a large estate in Europe, whether he is proceeding for that purpose.

Mr. Knowles, of Amherst, Mass. had a package in his trunk, containing fifteen thousand dollars, which was fortunately rescued from the flames. We understand the money was put in his charge by one of the Philadelphia Banks, for a New York Bank.—We understand the Agent of the Company acted with great coolness and intrepidity, and did every thing in his power to arrest the progress of the flames.

When the passengers got on board the steamboat, a meeting was called to take the matter into consideration. Jos. P. Grant, Esq. of Baltimore, was appointed Chairman, and J. J. Smith, Jr. of Philadelphia, Secretary. A committee of three was appointed to call upon the Company and represent the nature of the accident and request remuneration to the sufferers.

Copy of a letter addressed by the Agent of the Camden and Amboy Rail Road Company at Bordenown, to the Agent at Philadelphia:

BORDENOWN, APRIL 17, 1835.

Sir,—I arrived on the ground soon after the fire of the baggage car to-day, in order to secure any thing that might be valuable, but am sorry to say I could not find any thing of importance, but burnt trunks, &c. the destruction of which was very considerable.

Upon making every enquiry in my power, I feel persuaded the fire did not originate from sparks from the engine, but by the ignition of a large quantity of Lucifer matches, (a sample of which I have retained,) which were in some case or trunk in the crate.—These matches, you know, ignite by friction. As regards their being in the crate, I called the attention of more than a dozen men to notice them; there was at least a bushel of them under the car after the fire.

Cloyd says he was on the next car, and smelt the fire and ran immediately on the baggage car and tore off the cover, but could see no fire; but upon looking down between the crates saw the fire at the very bottom. The wind was very strong at north-west, therefore what sparks did escape from the engine (which was the new one, and the wire screen very fine,) could not have come immediately back upon the baggage car, but would, I suppose, have gone off considerably to the right.

Respectfully, &c. RICH'D SHIPPEN. To Wm. J. WATSON, Philadelphia.

The stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, at a meeting held on the 23d inst. accepted the law of this state, making appropriations in aid of that work. The stockholders of the Baltimore and Susquehanna rail road have also accepted the law.

MATTHIAS, THE PROPHET.

The New York papers are filled with accounts of the trial of this impostor, charged with murdering one of his dupes. The trial was a scene of great disorder, the proceedings having been frequently interrupted by the incoherent ravings of the culprit. At an early stage of the trial, Matthias took occasion to pronounce the following rhapsody, without at all regarding the reiterated objections of the Court, that he should be seated:

"I speak," said he, "in reference to the secret proceedings of the Grand Jury—that is a secret institution; and I here proclaim that all secret institutions are dissolved, and dissolved by God upon them, and were dissolved five years ago. I say they are dissolved!"

In saying this, he shouted the word 'dissolved' at the highest possible pitch of a clear stentorian voice; and bending down to acquire still greater force of lungs, shouted again and again, till the whole court house rang, and the audience were deafened by the sound. The Court was very much embarrassed. A recess was taken; the prisoner removed to his cell, shouting "dissolved! dissolved!" to its very door; and the sheriff was directed to summon a jury to ascertain the validity of the charge.

In a short time, the Court resumed; the jury returned a verdict that he was not insane; and the trial proceeded. By reference to an article in another part of our paper, it will be seen that he was acquitted.

The annexed extract from the testimony, given in by Dr. Faine to the abovementioned jury, will give some idea of the impostor's theological speculations:

I asked him in what situation he supposed himself to exist on the earth; and he stated that he was acting in the capacity of a Superior Being, and that he possessed the Spirit of God and the Spirit of Truth, and he used these words synonymously. I asked him how he came in possession of this? He answered that it was first exclusively imparted to Adam, and thence as man multiplied, it became spread abroad over the earth, and it became by extension so impaired and attenuated, that it was necessary to be concentrated again in some other individual, and that when so concentrated, it imparted a knowledge of the iniquities of mankind. The second concentration was in Noah, the third in Abraham, the fourth in David, the fifth in Jesus Christ, and the sixth and last in him (Matthias). He went on to say that he had a power over corrupt institutions—and, more or less, over the actions of individuals. I then adverted to his conduct in the court room, and he replied that he was prompted by the Spirit to raise his voice as he had done, for the purpose of putting down a corrupt tribunal. I then contrasted the meek deportment of our Saviour with his (Matthias) conduct, and he insinuated that he could not possess Christ's spirit. He said his was not passion, but the sounding of the seventh trumpet, with the powerful voice which had been given him—the mere echo of the wrath of God. He then appeared to converse rationally, until his divine pretensions were questioned, when his manner became violent towards me, and he charged me with being actuated with the spirit of the devil. I said nothing more, but he was violently excited to speak with him, he said he offered the sign of friendship to no one but his disciples, none of whom he had seen since the 9th of February, which was a great epoch in his existence, being seven years after the organization of his family.

The London Athenaeum, in an article upon the literary characters of the United States, has the following paragraph:

Dr. Channing has lived to see the Unitarians one of the numerous sects in New England. By far the greater proportion of the educated and wealthy are among his followers: the oldest and best endowed university is completely in their hands; and a class of men have sprung up, and settled over the numerous congregations about Boston, unparalleled in any other sect for talent and eloquence.—Greenwood, Palfrey, Pierpont, (one of the best American Poets), Dewey, Ware, Everett, (formerly a clergyman—now a senator in Congress), Emerson, and others, are not only efficient and influential pastors of churches, but authors of no mean ability; and contributors to the various Miscellanies and Reviews of the Unitarian press. They all bear about them the impress of their great master. The self-possessed, high-bred, polished manner—the elaborate, brilliant, poetical sermon—the classic and musically-balanced enunciation—the refined allusion—the total absence of those technicalities which the profane call cant—and the perfect adaptation of tone, style, and delivery, to the sensitiveness of ears polite—mark them distinctly from all other clergy. A more gentleman-like, scholar-like, "through-bred" class of men is not to be found in the world.

Dr. Channing.

The Boundary Question again, and, for the last time, we hope. The Zanesville Republican, of the 18th inst., furnished the following agreeable information in regard to the dispute between Ohio and Michigan:

"The war respecting the disputed territory between Ohio and Michigan is over without bloodshed. The people went on to elect their township officers on the 6th instant, in conformity with the Laws of Ohio, without molestation; and the Commissioners are progressing with the survey of the line.—The military movements on the part of Michigan have been suspended, and the dispute will no doubt be settled by the next session of Congress."

The bachelors in Nashville, Tenn. have published a Declaration of Independence. It commences its allegations "that all men are born unmarried, and then it goes on to reason, a priori, that they always should remain so!"

From the Richmond Compiler.

We give to-day a few extracts from papers friendly to the election of Judge White. It must not be inferred, however, that we are the advocates of his election to the Presidency, further than that advocacy may be necessary in opposition to Mr. Van Buren. The fact that Judge W. supported most of the odious measures of the Administration, is enough to render us suspicious of his principles. Even his speech on the patronage bill, and his opposition to the three million project, do not give him full favor in our eyes. We think he was a little too late in his gentle dissent from the high-handed measures of the Administration. We should have liked him much better, if his vigilance and distrust had been awakened before he was named for the Presidency.—But as he is still less objectionable than his "four-sided" competitor, we shall, if the contest be narrowed down to them, take him, as the least of the "curses." The slang, that he is presented by the Whigs—that he is their candidate—that they were obliged to go into the "Jackson stables for a steed," may do to rally the huge crew of the palace, but it will not do to deceive the honest yeomanry of the land. If, in struggling with that power which Mr. Standard very appropriately described as having "a face of brass, with arms of iron, and heart of stone," the friends of Constitutional Freedom cannot get all they want; they must be content to do the best they can in the effort to resist misrule and madness. They may not expect to rescue the temple entirely, but they may do something to show that it is worthy of defence against pollution, and that the sacred edifice is yet esteemed as a noble gift from "sire to son."

Eloquence.—The following morsel of equivoque eloquence gives an idea of the manner of doing things in Ohio.—We have read it attentively, and strange as it may appear, we cannot discover what the learned orator would be doing. Sometimes we think he wouldn't. But the gentleman from Ohio has the floor, and says:

"Mr. Cheerman—I have listened contentedly, for a long time, to the judicial conceivabilities of the member who last addressed you—and I freely yield quantity of remarks, in refutation of your former disquisitions; and also, likewise command an explanation from the gentleman who last disesteemed the meeting, on what authority he grounds his railroading advertisements. He tells us, that the motion passes nemine contra dictum. I would require of the speaker, or of the very worthy member of this club, or society, or association, or institute; or whatever name may be proper to call it, who this Mr. Neminy are?—What are the principles of his contra dictum? Whether he are opposed to the present administration? Hurra for Jackson!—I have read Johnson's and Walker's, and many other dictionaries; and once I ventured to take a peep into Webster's; but I am glad to declare here in our conjugated precincts, that I never could believe Webster: I hate his dictionary because he must be in corporation with Daniel Webster; and no non-committee freeman, can uphold such a character, with pleasure to themselves, or impunity to the community. I remit the question."

Statue of Hamilton.—The marble statue of General Alexander Hamilton, which the Merchants of New York some years ago employed a Sculptor to execute, has just been completed and placed in the Hall of the Merchants Exchange of that city. The statue is very highly spoken of by the New York papers. It is said to have been an admirable likeness of Gen. Hamilton. The erection of this statue reflects great credit upon the Merchants of New York, and is calculated to add imperishable renown to the name of the Artist—Ball Hughes. The cost of the statue is from six to eight thousand dollars. In noticing this noble act of the Merchants of New York, the National Gazette observes that a full length portrait of Daniel Webster, by Sully, should be obtained for the city of Philadelphia in a similar way.—The Editor says: "The great champion of universal honor and admiration when all our present party distinctions shall have vanished; and he might, as such, receive now a mark of public esteem, independently of all party politics."

A paragraph for Young Ladies.—I am sorry that needle-work is so much out of fashion. It is genteel employment and ought not to be neglected, especially by those who have many parents and sisters, and whose parents are not rich. Many girls, I am sorry to say, despise their needle, and affect to think work unfit occupation for genteel or intellectual beings. I grieve for, and am angry with such misses. I can tell them that many high-born and noble ladies employ their fingers in making clothes for the poor and desolate widows and orphans of the country. I can tell them that Miss Holland, Mitford, and Landon think it no disgrace to form, themselves, the garbs in which they are always fascinating because always unaffected. One advantage of most female occupations is, that the mind may be engaged, either in hearing or reflecting, when the fingers are employed in plain work or embroidery; and nothing is more pleasant than a party enlivened by alternate reading and music, where the greater number are not too fine or too great to be industrious.—[Waldie's Portfolio.]

Senator Buchanan gave lately at Lancaster, Pa. this toast, as if in a paroxysm of irony:

"Wm. T. Barry.—The eloquent disciple of Jefferson—the pure patriot and honest man. If his generous nature has been deceived by the wiles of the designing, the energy and talent with which his Department is now administered, will soon relieve it from every difficulty."

VIRGINIA ELECTIONS.

Donnell.—H. of D.: Scott, Whig, elected.

For the strength of parties in any other counties, of which returns are not here given, our readers are referred to the political table.

POLITICAL TABLE.

For the convenience of our readers, we present a table, taken originally from the Richmond Whig, but changed as the election returns have been received.—We shall continue it in our paper until the elections are over, so that we may see all the present blanks filled, and show, at one glance, the relative strength of parties in the last and the next House of Delegates.

The basis assumed, as to the strength of parties in the last Legislature, is the vote on the nomination of Mr. Leigh for U. S. Senator.—Frederick is put down in the last House of Delegates as Van Buren in her three Delegates; for although Messrs. Burton and Smith were personally Anti, they voted against Mr. Leigh under instructions.

The reader can estimate the loss and gain on either side, for himself.

Table with 2 columns: 1834 and 1835. Rows list various counties and their political affiliations (Whig, Union, Jackson, etc.) with corresponding vote counts.

THE FREE PRESS.

CHARLESTOWN. THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1835.

OUR DISTRICT.

We have no farther intelligence to give respecting the contest between our Congressional candidates. Some hope was entertained that returns might be received from Harpers Ferry and Morgan Hill, but the absence of our paper; but, as a great quantity of rain fell on Sunday and Monday, it is highly probable that the polls were kept open until last evening. We concluded, therefore, that it was useless to keep the paper open. Next week we shall give the final result.

THE ELECTIONS.

The Richmond Enquirer, and other administration presses, are exulting at what they consider their overwhelming success as far as the elections have progressed. Our readers are referred to the table in to-day's paper, which will speak for itself. We have conceded the administration 3 or 4 delegates; whose election is contested, and whom it is highly probable we shall gain. On the other hand, we have our own side, several members who are for Whig, and who have no affinity now with the Magician, by whose organs they are claimed.

A NEW PAPER.

A political paper, bearing the title "Charleston Argus," has been established in this place. The first number was issued on Friday last. It supports the present Administration of the General Government, and is conducted by Mr. EDWARD BRANCH ROBINSON.

STEAM CARS.

The steam cars now come as far as the Point of Rocks. With the exception of 12 miles, above the Point, and the passage of the inclined planes at Fair's Bridge, passengers are carried from Harpers-Ferry to Baltimore by steam. In July next the lateral road to Washington will be finished; and before the meeting of Congress, the locomotives will be telegraphing, and howling, and thundering along the Northern edge of our town. So that during the next session, we can get in the cars at our very doors, and presto! in less than six hours, we may be on the Pennsylvania Avenue, having travelled the whole route (about 130 miles we believe) by rail-roads! What anticipations! What changes! Why it seems but a short time since it was considered a grand achievement to have travelled from Baltimore to this place within twenty-four hours. This was done by hard driving and repeated change of horses—by leaving Baltimore long before daylight, and travelling till ten or eleven at night. We would collect our sensations of pride and pleasure, at what we then considered a grand achievement—an annihilation of distance; for it was performing in one day by means of stages, a journey which required two days' arduous travel on horseback. On the first evening of the new arrangement by which the speed of the line was accelerated, we were delighted, a little after ten o'clock, by hearing the notes of the driver's horn, announcing his approach to the town. One of our worthy citizens, an old gentleman, whose gratification seemed to be in unison with the throbbings of our boyish exultation, cried out to one of his neighbors, with great earnestness, "What think you of that? Left Baltimore this morning! That some old gentleman has since travelled the entire distance before dinner time, and that too without starting before daylight! Gentlemen, left here on Wednesday evening last; attended to their business in Baltimore half of Thursday, having left Harpers-Ferry that morning; continued their attention to business throughout Friday, and were back home by 3 o'clock on Saturday!"

BALTIMORE.

The intercourse between this flourishing city and our fertile and wealthy county, (which has been styled the "garden-spot of Virginia,") has become so intimate, that it is of great importance to the business people there, to keep us apprised of their operations. Many of the Merchants, and others in that city, are aware of this, as will be seen by our advertising columns, from time to time; yet, we are sure that there are many still blind to their interests in this particular. What magnificent hotels, what fascinating amusements, what well-fitted warehouses, might receive a portion of the surplus produce of our county, if the readers of the Free Press were only informed as to the whereabouts of those most immediately concerned.

An illiterate Jackson Editor, whose paper we happened to open the other day, exclaims, in reference to some half a dozen Senators, "Far noble fratrum!" Why is it that men will render themselves ridiculous by appearing like "the ram say," in phrases which belong not to them?

A scholar in one of the infant Schools was asked yesterday, "what is Easter?" The child answered, "dy'd eggs."

[The above incident is from some city paper, and is similar to a circumstance that occurred under our own notice. We were discussing sundry grave matters with a little urchin, (which by the way is far more interesting to us than the generality of political discussions among grown-up children,) and among other things, we spoke of Christmas. "Edward," said we, "what is the meaning of Christmas?" "Christmas," said the little fellow, "Why, it means, catching people."

Can any one tell us whether this kind of weather is to continue all Spring and all Summer too? Here is the last of April, and we have yet been almost entirely without Spring weather. Sometimes the sun would come out and shine pleasantly for half a day; but it was only to tantalize us. This has been an April of storms; and but for a little respite, that seemed almost afraid to appear, we might have supposed it was November.

THE ELECTIONS.

Monday Enquirer, and other administrators, are exulting at what they consider a successful success for us as we have progressed. Our readers are the table in today's paper, which for itself. We have conceded to the 3 or 4 delegates, whose names are given in the paper...

A NEW PAPER.

A paper, bearing the title "Charleston," has been established in this first number was issued on Friday, the present Administration of the Government, and is conducted by DAN BRADEN ROBINSON.

STEAM CARS.

As cars now come as far as the Point with the exception of 12 miles, Point, and the passage of the iron at Farr's Ferry to Baltimore by July next the lateral road to Wash. is finished, and before the meeting, the locomotives will be belching, and thundering along the side of our town. So that during the season, we can get in the cars at our present in less than ten hours, on the Pennsylvania Avenue...

BALTIMORE.

course between this flourishing city and wealthy country, which has a "garden-spot of Virginia," has a climate that is of great importance to the people there, to keep us in their operations. Many of the and others in that city, are aware of the benefits of our advertising...

FIRE COMPANY.

At a meeting of the Charleston Fire Company, held in the court house, on Saturday last, the following gentlemen were elected officers for the present year. Thomas Hunter, Captain. Andrew Hawkins, 1st Lieutenant. George Isler, 2d do. David Howell, 3d do. G. W. Hill, Treasurer. A. V. H. 1st do. S. R. Harrell, 2d do. C. Moore, Secretary. W. C. Washington, Secretary.

Resolved.

Resolved, That Messrs. Andrew Kennedy, Joseph M. Brown, and Leonard Sadler, be a committee to collect the subscription made some time since for the purchase of a new fire engine, and to report thereon to the trustees of the fire company...

The Nashville Banner says.

"It is said, that Mr. Barry having determined that a 'vagrant' machine is an engineering machine in favor of Mr. Van Buren, the real Simon Pures have determined if possible to get 'Amos Kennedy' appointed 'Provisionary General'!! What an accession the Republican ranks obtained by Mr. Clay's refusing to buy Kendall with an office worth $1500 a year!! Vide Mr. K's testimony before the Kentucky Legislature."

ALY, NEWBORND.

ally at Cedar Cliff, by Joseph factor-to-morrow. Nine thousand herrings were taken at one haul at Broad Cove, in the town of Digby.

EXTRAORDINARY ASCENSION.

An aerial voyage, of a length unprecedented, was lately performed in the Western country, by a Mr. Clayton. The Cincinnati papers announced his departure from that city; and for some days nothing was heard of him...

WE HEAR THAT ON FRIDAY NIGHT.

at the President's Mansion, the members of the family were disturbed by an accident, with all the particulars of which we are not acquainted, but we believe is substantially described thus. The sleep of the President, was broken by the noise of some one at the door of his chamber, endeavoring apparently to obtain entrance into it. On the President's demanding who it was, and what was his object, the intruder answered that he was trying (or wanted to find the way) to get out. The noise having roused some members of the family sleeping in an adjacent room, they promptly repaired to the spot, and succeeded in arresting the offender...

THE WIND WAS BLOWING POWERFULLY.

and I found it impossible to liberate the anchor. The only way of getting out of this difficulty, was to cut away the anchor cable. This I did; and in a short time, I ascended to an altitude as great as I had previously attained. The cold was intense. I could not ascertain the height of the thermometer, but I have no doubt it was as low as zero. I had now lost sight of the water courses, I could see no horizon in any direction. I had down in the bottom of the car, buttoned my coat tightly round me, put on my gloves, covered myself with two blankets, which I had taken as wrappers for the balloon, drank some brandy, and feeling comfortable and highly delighted, with my novel trip, fell fast asleep. I was awakened at last by my car striking. I immediately sprang upon my feet and found that I was dragging over the tops of the trees. I saw before me a river, and I thought some buildings. They seemed but a little distance from me; but I afterwards found that they were about four miles distant. I attempted to stop my balloon by clinging to the branches of the trees, several of which broke; but at last I caught a strong branch, and by holding to it with all my might, and pulling the valve rope, with this other, I was enabled in a short time to draw my car down the tree several feet, and to secure it by means of a rope. After being confident that I had secured my balloon, I looked at my watch, and found it to be half past 2 o'clock. At this hour of the morning, I thought it would be useless to go in search of assistance; I therefore remained in the car, which was fastened to the tree forty feet, at least from the ground, and in this situation I remained until day-break. I then descended to explore the wilderness in which I had alighted. But there was no trace of human foot-steps, no mark of change produced by man. A number of large trees were leveled with the ground, but there was no mark of the woodman's axe upon them. They had been evidently leveled by a hurricane. Perceiving that I was on a mountain, and that there was another part still higher, I ascended to the top of this elevation and in the direction that I had seen the river the previous evening, a cultivated spot. After traveling some distance, I discovered a beautiful stream for about three miles I found this spot, but had to follow a track two miles further to get assistance. I procured assistance, and we conveyed the balloon to the house of Mr. Joseph Graham, a respectable and intelligent farmer, with whom I remained three days until I could get a conveyance to return. During my stay at Mr. Graham's I was visited by a great number of persons from the surrounding country. The spot on which I landed, is the top of a mountain 2000 feet (as indicated by my Barometer) above the level of the sea; and is called Stearns's Knob, or Stinson's Knob, near Keeney's Knob, Monroe county, Virginia, is about four miles from Green Brier River, eighteen miles from Union, twenty miles from Lewisburg, within sight of the Alleghany Mountains, and at distance from Cincinnati, according to the route I travelled in the Balloon of three hundred and fifty miles; but according to the usual route of travelling, more than four hundred miles, which distance I went in nine and a half hours.

THE YOUNG MEN OF JEFFERSON COUNTY.

are invited to meet at Carter's tavern in Charlestown, on Saturday the 24th day of May next, for the purpose of forming a Troop. A general attendance is desired.

THE MARKETS.

CATTLE—Continued to decrease and wanted; we quote at 64 1/2 cents. PORK—About 1000 bbls. Here we have reached the market this week, and as there has been an anomalous demand for the article, nearly the whole has been sold from the wharf at $1 per bbl. Lot of 400 bbls. North Carolina Shad, trimmed No. 1, the only parcel received this season, was sold at $7 per bbl. cash. Moderate sales of No. 2 shad, at $6.50, and No. 3 at $5.37. Lot of 1000 bbls. Waterbury, 43 1/2 cents. Shad, and 43 1/2 cents. HERRING—Several stores were opened in the early part of the week at 45; but the market has since improved, and sales have been made at $5.00, and choice brands at $5.12 1/2. We quote at $5.06 1/2 1/2. The wagon price now ranges from $3.75 to $4.00. CRAN—The only transaction in Maryland where sales of two or three parcels prime at the beginning of the week, at $1 1/2 per bushel. Since then the market has been without supplies. The sales of Cran in the market were at 75 cents per bushel the week at $1 1/2 per bushel. Two parcels were sold to day at $1 1/2. The supplies have been moderate. CORN—Sales in the early part of the week, of yellow at 74 1/2 cents, and of white at 77 cents. Within the last two days, the sales of yellow have been at 76 1/2 cents, and of white at 74 1/2 cents. COTTON—Sales of good to prime at $1 25 to $1.50, from stores—none receiving by wagon. FLOUR—Yesterday the wagon price of Flour was $1 75 to $1.77.

For Sale.

A FEW barrels prime Shad and Herrings, a several barrels of Tar and common Whiskey, and a large quantity of Stone Coal. Apply to W. W. HERRICK, at BYRNE.

Company Orders.

THE company under my command, is ordered to parade in front of Jacob Sheetz's Tavern, Lexington, on Saturday the 24th day of May, next, for the purpose of ascertaining the strength thereof, and to select second, third, and fourth Lieutenants.

(S-A Card.)

THE undersigned begs leave to inform his friends and the public in general, that he has taken the Smith Shop lately occupied by Lewis Wren, on a lot of land in Virginia, where he will be happy to serve those who may favor him with their work, which shall be done on the shortest notice, and on the best and neatest manner; and he hopes, by strict attention to business, to share the confidence of the public patronage. N. M. MILLER, at the shortest notice.

Carding & Fulling.

MY Carding and Fulling Mill, near Charlestown, is now in complete order, and ready for the reception of Wool. I have procured a young man, (Mr. Geo. Stevens,) whom I believe to be competent to superintend, and devote his whole time and attention to it.

Cash in Market.
