FALLOW COUNTRY. At meetings held in the fall in all the counties of the district, composed, I presume, almost exclusively of citizens appearing in the presence of Administration. I have been called to meet at a central point for the purpose of selecting, and offering to the consideration of the people, a candidate for Congress.

The present Chief Magistrate, who has held the office of this office since the first of January, has been re-elected for the term of two years, to the 1st of January, 1836. It is a question of great importance, and it behooves you to be informed of the merits of the candidates.

WINCHESTER, FEBRUARY 27, 1835.

AN ENGINEER'S REPLY.

Duchess of Orleans. In Paris, the gallery of the theatres, it is well known, is called "le paradis," or paradise. The Duchess of Orleans took a fancy to go to the play one night with only a file de chambre, and to sit in the parterre.

WINCHESTER, FEBRUARY 27, 1835.

It is an astonishing fact, that the annual expenditure of the Government, excluding payments made on account of the public debt, has increased in eleven years of profound peace, from nine millions seven hundred and eighty thousand dollars to twenty-two millions seven hundred and thirty thousand dollars.

THE GENTLEMAN—THE CHRISTIAN.

Some twenty-eight years bygone, I first heard of the name of Lorenzo Dow. It was in the town of Wheeling, and the narrator was a gentleman from the vicinity of Nashville, Tennessee. An auditor of ten or a dozen, all as uninformed of Lorenzo Dow as myself, listened to him. He narrated some of Lorenzo's eccentricities, in personal appearance and manner, and he especially gave the heads of a discourse he had then recently heard from the preacher, in which he took by way of text, "The Gentleman and the Christian."

He described the gentleman—he belonged to no class of society exclusively—he constituted one of no exclusive class—his characteristics were disengaged of self-respect and kindness for others—he was no pragmatic babler—not one whose mouth was always open, his ears always closed. He was a man whose first consideration was for the comfort of others—making himself secondary in every thing. He could not be selfish, he was innately generous—he would do, and he would suffer—he never exacted—he never remembered that he had done a service, for he never felt that his service was of value to be remembered.

WINCHESTER, FEBRUARY 27, 1835.

THE GENTLEMAN—THE CHRISTIAN.

Mr. Summers presented the following resolution: Resolved, That the Governor of Virginia, in his capacity of Chief Magistrate, is hereby requested to present to Andrew Waggoner a sword, with suitable devices, in testimony of his high appreciation of the services rendered by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia, in his gallant and patriotic conduct in the battle of Craney Island, on the 2d day of June, 1862.

VIRGINIA LEGISLATURE.

From the Richmond Compiler, Feb. 27. TRIBUTES TO GALLANTRY. In the House of Delegates, on Thursday last, the following proceedings took place: Mr. Summers presented the following resolution: Resolved, That the Governor of Virginia, in his capacity of Chief Magistrate, is hereby requested to present to Andrew Waggoner a sword, with suitable devices, in testimony of his high appreciation of the services rendered by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia, in his gallant and patriotic conduct in the battle of Craney Island, on the 2d day of June, 1862.

WAGGONER'S SERVICES.

Mr. Waggoner was a citizen of the county of Berkeley, and marched with his Battalion to Norfolk, where he was attached to the 4th Regiment, commanded by Gen. Botley. In the conflict which took place on the 22d of June, 1862, between the Virginia troops attached to Craney Island, and the forces detached from the British fleet, then in possession of the Chesapeake, it was his fortune to bear an important and distinguished part. To him was assigned the command of the right wing of the Regiment to which he belonged, which he led in person in that action, and in his bravery and military skill, in a great degree, is to be attributed the success of our arms on that occasion. The official report of that engagement, is exceedingly brief and barren of details. Apart, however, from the report, Mr. S. said, there was abundant evidence of the meritorious services of Maj. Waggoner, in the battle of Craney Island, and he presented to the House, an extract of a letter from the Editor of the Norfolk Herald, which he himself under arms at the time, in which he speaks in the highest terms of the bravery of Maj. W., and the demonstrations of gratitude of a high and gallant spirit, on that day.

WINCHESTER, FEBRUARY 27, 1835.

CHEAPENKE AND OHIO CANAL.

We feel great pleasure in announcing the passage, yesterday, by the House of Delegates, of the bill, "to enable the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company to contract a loan." The vote was 51 to 44.

THE GENTLEMAN—THE CHRISTIAN.

The members of the N. York house of assembly consist of 23 lawyers, 10 doctors, 65 farmers, 21 merchants, one carrier, 1 bookbinder, 1 carman, 1 saddler, 1 carpenter, and 3 gentlemen.

WAR—AN ELEGANT EXTRACT.

Extract from a Sermon on War, delivered January 25, 1835, by Rev. Dr. Channing—just published.—The idea of Honor is associated with war. But to whom does the honor belong? If to any, certainly not to the mass of the people, but to those who are particularly engaged in it. The mass of a people, who stay at home and hire others to fight, who sleep in their warm beds and hire others to sleep on the cold and damp earth, who sit at their well spread board and hire others to take the chance of starving, who nurse the slightest hurt in their own bodies and hire others to expose themselves to mortal wounds and to linger in comfortless hospitals, certainly this mass reap little honor from war. The honor belongs to those who immediately engage in it. Let me ask then, what is the chief business of war? It is to destroy human life, to mangle the limbs, to gash and how the body, to plunge the sword into the heart of a fellow creature, to strew the earth with bleeding frames, and to trample them under foot with horses' hoofs. It is to batter down and burn cities, to turn fruitful fields into deserts, to level the cottage of the peasant and the magnificent abode of opulence, to scourge nations with famine, to multiply widows and orphans. Are these honorable deeds? Were you called to name exploits worthy of demons, would you not naturally select such as these? Grant that is a dreadful necessity, such as a good man must recoil from with instinctive horror, and though it may exempt them from guilt it cannot turn them into glory. We have thought that it was honorable to heal, to soothe, to mitigate pain, to snatch the sick and sinking from the jaws of death. We have placed among the revered benefactors of the human race, the discoverers of arts which alleviate human suffering, which prolong comfort, adorn and cheer human life, and if these are not honorable, where is the glory of multiplying and aggravating tortures and death?

LAFFAYETTE'S GRAVE.

The cemetery where rest the remains of this immortal patriot of two hemispheres, is in the garden of the streets of Picnic. It is 22 English feet wide, and 150 feet long; divided into 100 sepulchres, and the bodies of the Lafayette family is at the farther extremity of the enclosure. His grave is beside that of Madam Lafayette, and of their daughter Virginia, who died the wife of Mr. Bastwick from America covers his ashes, and in two modest gravestones cover those of his wife and daughter.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.

An extraordinary case is mentioned by a French editor for the late historical change in Great Britain. His chief object is said to have been, to effect the marriage of the Princess Victoria—the Queen that is to be hereafter—with the second son of the Prince of Orange, instead of to the Prince of Wurtemberg, for whom the Grey Ministry had destined her. This change had been made, it is added, through Russian influence and the intervention of the present Queen of England.—The marriage is pressingly urged, and it is thought it will take place before the meeting of Parliament, so that in case of the fall of the Ministry, the Tories will still, during their short reign, have secured for the Queen of England a partner who will be under their influence.—The recent visit of the Prince of Orange to London is said to have had this object.

A LAUGHABLE ADVENTURE.

Not long since a reverend Clergyman in New Hampshire, being apprehensive that the accumulated weight of snow upon the roof of his barn might do some damage, resolved to shovel it off. He therefore ascended it, but having first for fear the snow might all slide off at once, himself with it fastened to his waist one end of a rope, and giving the other to his wife, he went to work; but fearing still for his safety, "My dear," said he, "tie the rope round your waist." No sooner had she done this, than off went the snow, poor minister and all, and up went his wife.—Thus on one side of the barn the accumulated and confounded clergyman hung, and on the other side hung his wife, dinging and dangling at the end of the rope. At that moment, however, a gentleman luckily passing by, delivered them from their perilous situation.

THE COLLEGE BELLE.

When Dr. Barrett, prebend of St. Paul's, was a student at Peterhouse, Cambridge, he happened to make one of a party of collegians, where it was proposed that each gentleman should toast his fellow collegian, where it came his turn, he facetiously gave "the college belle."

THE COLLEGE BELLE.

A column is to be erected at Truro to the memory of the unfortunate Landers, to be 71 feet high.
