The superstructure bears all the evidence of an edifice which was destroyed eight times, and took two hundred and eighty years in building and re-building. It now consists of several walls of immense blocks of marble; the fronts of which are perforated with small cavities, into which were sunk the shanks of the brass and silver plates with which the walls were faced. In several places where the walls have fallen, they have exposed cornices and mouldings of a former edifice, against which the newer walls had been built which the newer walls had been built or can be, faber our fortune is alike open to every competitor. whatever way the Presidential question may be settled, (says the editor of the Alexandria Gazette,) one thing is already certainthat it is one of the best contested elections ever held in this country. If Mr. Van Buren obtains the rewex which he seeks, it will be with a stronger array of the people against him than any other President ever yet encountered upon his introduction to office. Indeed, the closeness of the votes generally, has astonished us. And see, too, what inroads the Opposition has made upon the Administration candidate in the very strong holds of the Administration. The Pennsylvania majority of 25,000 reduced to 3 or 4,000—the Baltimore majorities which used to be in Jackson times, 3, 4, Fairfax ren candidates, and 79,312 to those of Harrison. Sixty-six Harrison delegates, and 67.

We believe they had no alternative. At the same time, with deep sympathy for the young gentlemen and their friends, we may say, that their conduct seems to have been, in the first place, or misconstruction, of the University attutes; and, subsequently, to have been marked too much by the imperiosity of youth, and a sense—however erroneous, aincerely entertained—oily of youth, and a sense—however erroneous, eincrely entertained—oily of youth, and a sense—however erroneous, aincerely entertained—of oppression on the part of the Faculty. We cannot forbear the hope, that the affair may yet be accommodated, and the far greater portion, if not all; of the Students dismissed, be permitted to resume their studies. Suicida.—On Thursday morning last, Merril Miller, tho was to have been hung the next day for the murder of John Whitaker, was found in his cell, in the Jail of this city, about day-break, in the agonies of death. Medical assistance was promptly obtained, but to no purpose. It is not certainly known, in what manner his death was produced; but the belief is universal, that he died in consequence of some poisonous potion which he had taken.

Ye're home at last I. flad home is this
All lons without, all cold within;
The adder here might lurk and hiss,
Her poisonous web the spider spid.
But there's no fire to warm, no light;
And crevices are yawning wide,
Through which the storm; this freezing night,
May lay you stiffened, side by side.

And yet this wayward child has been
By many a gorgeous house—and past

By many a gorgoous house-and past
Where might had music cheer the scene,
Nor cavies—for, she's home at last!
Thus may the heart be trained below
To love the cot wherein was cast
Its fare of poverty and woe,
Like her's who cried—"We're home at last!"

The Two Impediments.—A rich buxom widow, of a certain village in the State of Pennsylvania, became enymoured of a handsome young yankee pedlar, with whom she was in the habit of trading, whenever he chanced to go that road. Fuding that all her modest hints to elicit a formal declaration from the travelling merchant had only been thrown away, she at last condescended to introduce the theme herself, and had the pleasure to hear him confess that he had long thought on the subject, as the one dearest to his heart; and there were only two impediments in the way of their mutual happiness, which she alone could remove. The delighted widow begged of him to mention them, and pledged herself for their removal. "Alas, madam!" replied he, "when I name the first only, I fear you will abandon me to despair." "Fear not, but hame it." "Know then, loveliest of your sex! that I never can be happy with a wife, be her affections, virtues, and accomplishments what they may, until I can make her mistress of a comfortable habitation, and am myself master of a retail store, the income of which will support her gentcelly."—The widow amiled sweetly, bade him name this necessary sum, and to call for it on a certain day, when she should expect to learn the nature of the only remaining obstacle to their union. FOREIGE RELATIONS.—Several years since, a plain old gentleman, Mr. B.—, from Roxbury, Massachusetts, was, by some mistake, elected member of contrass;—the speaker, in making up the committees, put him on the committee on foreign relations. On this being announced by the speaker, Mr. B. rose and begged to be excused, as he had no foreign relations—the only relatives he had having round Roxbury. EVENNESS OF TEMPER.—Madame Necker tells the following anecdote of M. Abauret, a philosopher of Geneval It was said of him that he had never been out of temper. Some persons, by means of his female servant, were determined to put him to the proof. The woman in question stated that she had been his servant for thirty years, and she protested that, during that time, she had never seen him in a passion. They promised her a sum of money if she would endeavor to make him angry. She consented; and knowing that he was particularly fond of having his bed well made, she, on the day appointed, neglected to make it. M. Abauret observed it, and the next morning made the observation to her. I She answered that she had forgotten it. She said nothing more, but on the same evening neglected to make the hed. The same observation was made on the morrow by the philosopher, and she again made some excuse, in a cooler manner than before. On the third day, he said to her, "You have not yet made my bed; you have apparently come to some resolution on the subject, as you probably found that it fatigued you. But, after all, it is of no great consequence, as I begin to accustom myself to it as it is." She threw herself at his feet, and avowed all to him. at the Ford Mills on the Shenandoah River, near Keyes's Ferry, in the name and under the firm of FORD & SNYDER, commencing on the first day of the present month, (July.) and essure all those who are disposed to do business with them, that they are determined to pay the highest market prices for WHEAT and other kinds of GRAIN, delivered in their Mills, or delivered at any convenient point on the Rail Road, or at any convenient point on the River. From their experience as Millers, they can say with confidence to all those who have Wheat to dispose of, that it will be greatly to their interest to give them a call before they make a disposition of the same; and they carnently request their former customers not to make any disposition of their Wheat without first seeing them, as they are well astisfied that no millers west of the Blue Ridge can afford to pay better prices than themselves. To any of their customers that may prefer grinding, liberal advances will be made, and strict attention paid to their instructions. The Bullakin Mills, formerly belonging to John Haines, deed, and Mr. John Myers, will still be carried on by the undersigned, and one of said Mills kept expressly for the reception of Rye and Corn for which kinds of grain the highest market price will at all times be paid. Fish, Salt, and Plaster, will be keptat the mills, for the accommodation of their customers and those disposed to deal with them.

In closing this brief notice, they should be acting ungrateful to their feelings were they not to offer their alnocers thanks for the very liberal encouragement they have here-lofore received, and hope, by promptness, and a strict attention to business, to enert a continuance of similar favor.

FARM FOR SALE.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber offer, at private sale, his PARM, situated in Jefferson County, Virginis, I a miles North-seat of Charlestown. This farm contains 327 acres of first-rate limestone LAND—about one-third of which is in Timber of the first quality.

There is on this farm one of the finest Springs in the state of Virginia; it has never been knewn to be without a superabundance of water at all seasons of the year. There is a merchant mill within a few hundred yards of it. The improvements consist of a very comfortable two-story Dweiling House, with an excellent new Kitchen statched, and all other Houses necessary for farming operations. This is, perhaps, one of the most desirable farms in the Valley of Virginia, as it affords every opportunity of getting to the markets of Baltimore, Georgetown, and Washington; with very little expanse and great speed, the Winchester and Potomac Rail Road passing immediately through the farm. As for health, it is not surpassed by any farm in the Valley. The subscriber deems it unnecessary to say more in its favour, but would livrite all those desirous of purchasing, to call ack examine for themistics.
