

THE ENGLISH CROWN. The Whig majorities in some of the Districts in the Western States are very large. The majority of C. A. Williams over Mr. Dunlap in Tennessee, is 1,582. In some of the Kentucky Districts the majorities are still larger. There are half a dozen different Districts, the majority in any one of which would have elected an entire Whig ticket in the State of Maryland, and left enough votes to spare to have elected three more Whig members from North Carolina.—Nat. Int.

The Democracy of Numbers.—The result in Baltimore district, said the Washington Globe, "is a glorious triumph of the democracy of numbers," and this when it was well known that the victory was brought by the free distribution of money by one of the candidates, and that voters were brought down from Washington at an expense of thirteen dollars a head to secure his election, marshalled all of them and led to the polls under his own special directions. This victory was achieved just alongside of the Treasury, where there was plenty of Government money to be employed, and a plenty of Government promises; and the "glorious triumph" was a majority of some one or two hundred votes! What says the Globe of the democracy of numbers in regenerated Indiana? In "incorrupt and untrifled" Tennessee? In brave, bold, glorious Kentucky? We really wish to hear another paragraph from the Globe, touching the "glorious triumph of the democracy of numbers!" [New York Courier.]

From the Richmond Whig. MR. CLAY.—I have lately seen a letter from this distinguished statesman, in which I have noticed the subjoined sentiment.

"I thank you, my dear sir, for your friendly wishes and feelings towards me. I have been, during my public career, sensible of great injustice having been done me. I have nevertheless had the consolation of knowing that I possessed the esteem and confidence of many good men. Above all, I have enjoyed the consciousness of endeavoring to discharge my duty towards our common country.

"I should be most happy if I could outline calamities which have befallen it, and which I have in vain struggled to avert. As for myself, personally, I wish nothing, seek nothing, expect nothing from the public."

Rome's history might be written without illuminating her pages with the greatness of Cicero. But who could write a correct history of this Republic, for the last thirty years, and obscure the name of HENRY CLAY?

He is identified with all the great events that have agitated his country in this life. Long after the names of the petty Demagogues and party combatants that have preyed upon his fame, shall have passed away, the historian will do him justice, and brighten with his name the annals of his Country. A VIRGINIAN.

The Richmond Enquirer is in trepidation. It tells its Van Buren cotemporaries that the signs from Kentucky and Indiana are ominous, and "warns them of the necessity of Union," and that "it is idle to deny the chances of a schism in their ranks and a civil war between the Globe and the Madisonian," unless its political friends will bear and forbear. That is to say, unless the loco-focos will give up their opinions, or the Tallmades and Rives' men give up theirs. A party, the members of which hold such opposite tenets, cannot hold together. The appeal of course can have no weight with the politician who has not a direct interest in the success of "the party."

If it be idle to deny the charges of a division in the ranks of the Van Burenites, we can inform the Enquirer it is equally as idle to speculate on the consequences of such a division—for the signs in the West are ominous, and the administration may read in them, that their fate is fixed. The people have arisen in their might—let the administration prepare to lay down its robes of office, and die with decency, for deus est in caelis. [Balt. Chron.]

Who is the Editor of the Madisonian?—This inquiry is made in every quarter. We will tell you he is. He is Thomas Allen of Pittsfield, Massachusetts, the son of the editor of the famous old democratic paper called the "Sun," published in that town. His grandfather was a Clergyman and a patriot in 1776.

Mr. Allen was a democrat from the jump—a real out and outer. During the last winter he resided in Washington, and was requested, by many members of Congress, on the accession of Mr. Van Buren, to establish a new paper. They told him that Blair must go off—they did not like him, and would not support him as printer. Mr. Allen therefore has started the Madisonian with the concurrence of a number of the members of Congress.

A few days before the first number came out, he visited the President at his cottage, near Washington, and remained a whole afternoon with his Highness. What was concerted between them we know not, but a week after the Madisonian came out.

In this city and State the Madisonian is already looked upon as the organ of the upper Cabinet—the Globe of the lower. On the organization of the new Congress there will be a great contest for the Speaker, and after that for the Printer. Mr. Allen will be a candidate in opposition to Mr. F. P. Blair. If Mr. Allen manages his cards, he will entirely burst the Kitchen Cabinet in less than a year.—N. H. Herald.

GROCERIES, CHEAP FOR CASH. I HAVE a supply of superior GROCERIES which I will sell LOW FOR CASH AND CASH ONLY. JAMES J. MILLER. Aug. 31, 1837.

Bacon Wanted. I WILL take Bacon in exchange for Goods at the market price. J. J. MILLER. N. B. I have for sale a supply of FRESH LARD. August 31, 1837.

A grand Salute of one hundred guns was fired on the Boston Common, on the 2nd instant, in honor of the triumph achieved by the Whigs of Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, and North Carolina, in the late Elections.

THE WHIG MAJORITY. The Whig majorities in some of the Districts in the Western States are very large. The majority of C. A. Williams over Mr. Dunlap in Tennessee, is 1,582. In some of the Kentucky Districts the majorities are still larger. There are half a dozen different Districts, the majority in any one of which would have elected an entire Whig ticket in the State of Maryland, and left enough votes to spare to have elected three more Whig members from North Carolina.—Nat. Int.

The Democracy of Numbers.—The result in Baltimore district, said the Washington Globe, "is a glorious triumph of the democracy of numbers," and this when it was well known that the victory was brought by the free distribution of money by one of the candidates, and that voters were brought down from Washington at an expense of thirteen dollars a head to secure his election, marshalled all of them and led to the polls under his own special directions. This victory was achieved just alongside of the Treasury, where there was plenty of Government money to be employed, and a plenty of Government promises; and the "glorious triumph" was a majority of some one or two hundred votes! What says the Globe of the democracy of numbers in regenerated Indiana? In "incorrupt and untrifled" Tennessee? In brave, bold, glorious Kentucky? We really wish to hear another paragraph from the Globe, touching the "glorious triumph of the democracy of numbers!" [New York Courier.]

From the Richmond Whig. MR. CLAY.—I have lately seen a letter from this distinguished statesman, in which I have noticed the subjoined sentiment.

"I thank you, my dear sir, for your friendly wishes and feelings towards me. I have been, during my public career, sensible of great injustice having been done me. I have nevertheless had the consolation of knowing that I possessed the esteem and confidence of many good men. Above all, I have enjoyed the consciousness of endeavoring to discharge my duty towards our common country.

"I should be most happy if I could outline calamities which have befallen it, and which I have in vain struggled to avert. As for myself, personally, I wish nothing, seek nothing, expect nothing from the public."

Rome's history might be written without illuminating her pages with the greatness of Cicero. But who could write a correct history of this Republic, for the last thirty years, and obscure the name of HENRY CLAY?

He is identified with all the great events that have agitated his country in this life. Long after the names of the petty Demagogues and party combatants that have preyed upon his fame, shall have passed away, the historian will do him justice, and brighten with his name the annals of his Country. A VIRGINIAN.

The Richmond Enquirer is in trepidation. It tells its Van Buren cotemporaries that the signs from Kentucky and Indiana are ominous, and "warns them of the necessity of Union," and that "it is idle to deny the chances of a schism in their ranks and a civil war between the Globe and the Madisonian," unless its political friends will bear and forbear. That is to say, unless the loco-focos will give up their opinions, or the Tallmades and Rives' men give up theirs. A party, the members of which hold such opposite tenets, cannot hold together. The appeal of course can have no weight with the politician who has not a direct interest in the success of "the party."

If it be idle to deny the charges of a division in the ranks of the Van Burenites, we can inform the Enquirer it is equally as idle to speculate on the consequences of such a division—for the signs in the West are ominous, and the administration may read in them, that their fate is fixed. The people have arisen in their might—let the administration prepare to lay down its robes of office, and die with decency, for deus est in caelis. [Balt. Chron.]

Who is the Editor of the Madisonian?—This inquiry is made in every quarter. We will tell you he is. He is Thomas Allen of Pittsfield, Massachusetts, the son of the editor of the famous old democratic paper called the "Sun," published in that town. His grandfather was a Clergyman and a patriot in 1776.

Mr. Allen was a democrat from the jump—a real out and outer. During the last winter he resided in Washington, and was requested, by many members of Congress, on the accession of Mr. Van Buren, to establish a new paper. They told him that Blair must go off—they did not like him, and would not support him as printer. Mr. Allen therefore has started the Madisonian with the concurrence of a number of the members of Congress.

A few days before the first number came out, he visited the President at his cottage, near Washington, and remained a whole afternoon with his Highness. What was concerted between them we know not, but a week after the Madisonian came out.

In this city and State the Madisonian is already looked upon as the organ of the upper Cabinet—the Globe of the lower. On the organization of the new Congress there will be a great contest for the Speaker, and after that for the Printer. Mr. Allen will be a candidate in opposition to Mr. F. P. Blair. If Mr. Allen manages his cards, he will entirely burst the Kitchen Cabinet in less than a year.—N. H. Herald.

GROCERIES, CHEAP FOR CASH. I HAVE a supply of superior GROCERIES which I will sell LOW FOR CASH AND CASH ONLY. JAMES J. MILLER. Aug. 31, 1837.

Bacon Wanted. I WILL take Bacon in exchange for Goods at the market price. J. J. MILLER. N. B. I have for sale a supply of FRESH LARD. August 31, 1837.

A grand Salute of one hundred guns was fired on the Boston Common, on the 2nd instant, in honor of the triumph achieved by the Whigs of Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, and North Carolina, in the late Elections.

POSTSCRIPT. THE MAIL AT LAST. The mail arrived on Tuesday, but brought nothing but the arrangements of the last week. No papers later than Saturday.

POLK ELECTED SPEAKER. The papers bring us no news, but we learn by passengers that James K. Polk of Tennessee was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives, on Monday, by a majority of 13. One Whig member dead and several absent.

RHODE ISLAND ELECTION. The Whig candidates, Messrs. TILGHAMST and CRANSTON, have been elected to Congress by a majority of about a thousand votes.

Tilghamst's majority over Fearce 897 Do. Howard 1051 Cranston's majority over Fearce 948 Do. Howard 1010 Average Whig Majority, 1001 Whig gain from last November 1246

Michigan Election.—There is no doubt, from the returns already in, that Isaac E. Crary, the Van Buren candidate, is re-elected to Congress.

The Nashville Banner of the 24th ult., announces the death of Col. JAMES STANDIFER, member of Congress for the 4th District of Tennessee. Col. S. died at Kingston, E. T. while on his way to Washington City.

The St. Louis papers announce the death of Mr. John Shackford, Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate of the United States, in the 51st year of his age. He died at the residence of Gen. N. Ramsey, in St. Louis, on the 16th inst.

JAMES W. WILLIAMS, who succeeded ROBERT WALSH in the editorial charge of the Gazette, died at Philadelphia on Tuesday. Mr. Williams was a ripe scholar and among the very ablest of the editorial corps.

SPECIE PAYMENTS.—The Bank of Washington has resolved to redeem the notes of that Bank, in specie, from this date.

The Philadelphia Banks have resolved unanimously that they cannot now resume specie payments. This information is given in a letter published in the Globe.

The Farmers' Bank of Virginia has laid upon the table the New York Bank Circular.—[Alexandria Gaz., Sept. 2.]

OFFICE OF THE REE. The weather during the week has been excessively warm—cases of the yellow fever continued, but not sufficiently numerous to create alarm, but enough to induce us to recommend to strangers to the climate to be cautious, and to those who are absent to not be too precipitate in returning to the city.

OFFICE OF THE PISCAYUNE. Aug. 25, 1837. THEY RULE THE WAVES.—By the schooner Helen, arrived yesterday from Galveston, we learn that the Texas navy is sweeping all before it, having captured and plundered several Mexican vessels. The Brutus is not under the command of the notorious Thompson, but under the charge of another—who is one of the first braves, bearing the name. Col. Warren, lately taken prisoner by the Mexicans when going to Matamoros with Mexican prisoners, made his escape from the enemy and has arrived in this city.

FROM ENGLAND. There has been another arrival at N. York, bringing London papers to the 31st July, and Liverpool to the 1st August.

Money was very plenty in London, and commercial bills of known credit were discounted by the money brokers at 3 per cent. per annum.

The condition of the Cotton Market was better. On the last days the sales were 5,000 or 6,000 bales per day, and an advance was established of 4d. lb. upon the prices of the 22d of July, which prices prevailed through, with increasing firmness, up to the 29th. The markets for Sugar, Coffee, Turpentine, and generally all those articles which are exported from this country, were quite as well as at the last dates.

The elections were proceeding with great activity. The statement in the Morning Herald of July 29, gives the returns, so far as ascertained. Conservatives 151, Whigs 188. The gain and loss of the Conservatives, as compared with the last Parliament, were gain 34, loss 31. Mr. Roebuck was defeated at Bath.

Mr. Cobden has offered himself for Middlesex, being the fifth candidate in nomination.

Sir William Molesworth, Whig, has defeated Sir John Beckett, at Leeds. Glasgow has returned two Whigs. In Liverpool, the Conservative candidates are elected. In London, Mr. Palmer, the only Conservative candidate, was defeated by Grote, but intends, it is said, to contest the return.

Sir Robert Peel is not dead, as reported by the Liverpool papers. At the latest accounts he was rapidly improving in health. The baronet has again been returned from Tamworth, being the fifth time. Lord John Russell has been returned from Stroud.—In his address of thanks to the electors, he declared that his colleagues and himself had the unlimited confidence of the Queen.

Mr. Loader and General Evans, Whig, have been returned from Westminster. Sir G. Murray, the Conservative candidate, had 3020 votes, and Mr. Loader, 3793.

NOTICES. The Rev. Bishop MEADE will preach in the Methodist Church, Smithfield, on Tuesday next, the 12th inst.

Dr. NOYES, Dentist, will be detained a few days at Harpers-Ferry, which will delay his visit to Shepherdstown a short time. He will, however, be at the latter place in good season to wait upon his numerous friends there, before his return to Baltimore.

THE MARKETS. BALTIMORE MARKET. For the week ending Friday evening, Sept. 1. FLOUR.—The receipts begin to improve a little, but the demand for the article is not brisk; and prices have declined from the rates of last week. The uniform wagon price is $5.85, and the store rate $5.50, at which limited supplies are making.

GRAIN.—Wheat.—There has been considerable fluctuation in the market since our last Weekly Report. On Saturday last prime red wheats were as low as $1.35, but on Monday prices rose, and sales of fair good to choice red Virginia wheat, at $1.45 a $1.60. The supplies, since the first day of the week, have been limited. We quote fair to good reds to-day at $1.40 a $1.50, and good to very reds at $1.50. Sales of various parcels of foreign wheats at $1.30 a $1.50, as in quality.

Corn.—Sales of white early in the week at 82 a 85 cents, and of yellow at 80 a 92 cents. To-day the article is wanted at better prices, and we now quote white at 85 a 90 cents, and yellow 82 a 92.

Rye.—We quote Maryland at 65 a 70 cents. Foreign is held at 75 cents.

Oats.—Supplies are plentiful, and sales are now making at 30 cents.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 2. FLOUR.—We quote $5.25 from wagons.—From stores $5.50.

MARKETS. On Saturday last, at the residence of Thos. B. Turner, Esq., in this city, by the Rev. Mr. Jackson, Captain HAY TALLAPRAO to Miss Rebecca Seymour Hook, all of King George county, Virginia.

On Friday last, on the 29th ult., by the Rev. Dr. Zachary Mr. George W. Lock to Miss Rebecca ANN Gordon, both of this County.

On Thursday last, by the Rev. Dr. D. H. Riddle, the Rev. Henry K. Wilson, Jr. to Miss Sarah E. Lett, of Winchester, Va.

On Tuesday, 1st of August, by the Rev. T. Birney, to Miss SARAH ANN, daughter of Wm. Gleason, Esq. of Loudoun.

On Monday, 31st of July, by the Rev. Thomas C. Conroy, to Miss Mary Ann, daughter of Mr. L. S. J. Mr. Henry M. JAMES to Miss Mary AMANDA HOLMES.

DIED. On Saturday last, CHRISTIAN D. WOLFE, Esq., of Marlborough, formerly of Shepherdstown, aged 33 years. Mr. Wolfe was a most estimable man, and a true friend to the oppressed. He was deeply regretted by numerous friends and to the whole community in which he lived.

On the 27th ult. at Richmond, WILLIAM NEENEY, Esq. for many years Cashier of the Farmers Bank of Virginia.

On Saturday the 26th ult., at his residence on Carroll's Manor, Mr. BAKER JAMISON, in the 33d year of his age—a worthy and estimable citizen.

On the 25th ult. at Columbia Furnace, Mrs. MARY ANN, wife of Jas. S. Arthur. She endured a long and painful illness with quiet resignation, and died trusting in the mercy of the Author of her being. All the requisites of character, necessary to form the ideal of a virtuous wife, and a noble and patriotic citizen, were united in her. Her husband, who has been a member of the Legislature, has created in society, cannot easily be filled.

Died, at Mr. M. Shepherd's, near Shepherdstown, on the 1st inst. Mr. RICHARD BOOKS of this county, aged 19 years. In recording the demise of this amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are called to deplore, let us indulge the mournful pleasure of paying the tribute that friendship demands, by heralding those virtues which have adorned his life, and which will be remembered by those who were the warm-hearted admirers of his life. Nature had donated him with a mind capacious, grasping, and unyielding; just passing from the "shining morning face of youth, and the joys of science and the duties of the amiable youth, whose early departure from this fleeting scene, we are

