

VEGETABLE PILLS.
No doubt increasing popularity of... is another proof of the infallible... of this medicine, which is... Other pills are only poisons... purchased of the dealer... until the demand for them be... universal.

THE DYEING YOUTH.
Mornal weep not... I feel the death-dew on my brow... These feeble hands are growing chill... And shortly, they'll lie cold and still... For ever they will dyer.

CELEBRATED VEGETABLE PILLS.
They are exceedingly popular... they are exceedingly good... they are contended for on scientific... power to do good in an immense... without possessing the means... they are not a quick-medicines... made his professional study... as they are not unpleasant to take... gularly, while they are most... they are recommended as a... the regular faculty... by keeping the system in a... they cure almost every dis... human frame is liable to... they are cheap and portable... in all the virtues of a full stor... and for any length of time... new, notwithstanding their simplicity... they are one of the speediest pur... means which has yet been discovered... as they are an unfailing remedy... a good appetite... use in cases of spleen or despon... healthy influence on the whole... body, they have a most happy ef... and invigorating the mind... they effect their cures without... of either bilious, sickness and...

ERNEST S.
LEEBRO, VA., Sep. 1838.
Discarded Items.
FLORIDA.—Col. JOSEPH M. WHITE, yielding to the urgent solicitations of his friends, has become a candidate for Dele-gate to Congress from Florida.

Large Breves.—Mr. Kimberly, one of our enterprising victuallers, slaughtered on Thursday last, three bullocks bred by that intelligent and public spirited grazier, George Cunningham, Esq., of Hardy County, Virginia. We saw them before and after they were slaughtered, and without exaggeration can affirm, that we have seldom seen three nobler animals. The net weight was 4,058 lbs. and the meat was most beautifully marbled with alternate layers of lean and fat, and each so well disposed of as to satisfy the taste of the most fastidious judge.

Melancholy Disaster.—The French transport La Desirée left Brest, on the afternoon of the 27th of December, with criminals on board destined for transportation. About six o'clock in the evening of that day she struck on the rocks at the extremity of Des Balaines, a short distance from the harbour. Immediately signal guns were fired and lights hoisted, but in less than two hours, and before any assistance could be rendered, the ship was swallowed up, with every soul that was on board. No one was left to tell how the melancholy accident occurred.

It is stated in the Philadelphia National Gazette that at a late hour of the evening, on the Wilmington railroad, on Sunday last, a piece of the iron-rail was thrown up with such violence as to shove off the car of the road. One of the passengers was standing at the time on the side of the car.

Just Potatoes.—There was a pretty specimen of a riot in the Cove of Cork, on the 21st of January. A mob of several thousand assembled on the New Quay, and boarded the brigantine Westmorland, in which had been shipped a cargo of Potatoes for Baltimore. They took possession of the vessel, unmoored her and took her to another wharf, where they proceeded to land the potatoes. A detachment of the military was sent for, but on the arrival of the troops the mob was so large and in such an excited state, that the magistrate would not venture to bring the soldiers in conflict with them. Finally the soldiers were obliged to pledged their word that the potatoes should not be exported, and then the mob dispersed.

It is stated in the Philadelphia National Gazette that at a late hour of the evening, on the Wilmington railroad, on Sunday last, a piece of the iron-rail was thrown up with such violence as to shove off the car of the road. One of the passengers was standing at the time on the side of the car.

It is stated in the Philadelphia National Gazette that at a late hour of the evening, on the Wilmington railroad, on Sunday last, a piece of the iron-rail was thrown up with such violence as to shove off the car of the road. One of the passengers was standing at the time on the side of the car.

It is stated in the Philadelphia National Gazette that at a late hour of the evening, on the Wilmington railroad, on Sunday last, a piece of the iron-rail was thrown up with such violence as to shove off the car of the road. One of the passengers was standing at the time on the side of the car.

It is stated in the Philadelphia National Gazette that at a late hour of the evening, on the Wilmington railroad, on Sunday last, a piece of the iron-rail was thrown up with such violence as to shove off the car of the road. One of the passengers was standing at the time on the side of the car.

FREE BANKING.—The New Orleans Bulletin of the 14th instant says: 'The subject of free banking is now being discussed by all classes of the community, of every trade and calling, and the more its principles are understood the more favor it gains with the public. Indeed, very few doubt its utility, or question the absolute necessity of adopting it as a means of bringing immediate relief to the pecuniary interests of the State, and all the western trade that centres in New Orleans.'

AN OWNER WANTED FOR $1,000.—Some time last June, a Baltimore girl presented to a milliner of Baltimore, in payment for a bonnet, a bank note for one thousand dollars, which she supposed to be but ten dollars. The milliner sent the note to a grocer, to get it changed. A few days after the grocer delivered it to the owner. Some time since the milliner brought a suit for the recovery of the note, claiming that if stolen, it should remain in her possession until the owner demanded it. The matter was finally compromised by an agreement that the money should be deposited in the Savings Bank for three years, at the end of which time, if not previously claimed by the rightful proprietor, it should be given to the city Corporation. Recently, however, the girl has taken a fancy that the money really belongs to her, having been given her, she says by a gentleman from the South. She has employed counsel, and taken legal steps to establish her claim. The note is of the Franklin Bank of Baltimore.

STEARBOAT ACCIDENTS.—The Cincinnati-Republican of the 13th mentions the occurrence of two steambot accidents on the Ohio. The Coquette was entirely destroyed by fire on the 14th, a few miles above the mouth of the Ken-sawha river. She was detained by the ice and was burnt to the water's edge. Even the yawl was consumed.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

THE FINALE TO A COURTSHIP.
Flora—ah! dearest Flora—I am come—ah! Flora—I am come—ah! I can decide my fate—I am come, my Flora! Ah!

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

THE FINALE TO A COURTSHIP.
Flora—ah! dearest Flora—I am come—ah! Flora—I am come—ah! I can decide my fate—I am come, my Flora! Ah!

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

THE FINALE TO A COURTSHIP.
Flora—ah! dearest Flora—I am come—ah! Flora—I am come—ah! I can decide my fate—I am come, my Flora! Ah!

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

THE FINALE TO A COURTSHIP.
Flora—ah! dearest Flora—I am come—ah! Flora—I am come—ah! I can decide my fate—I am come, my Flora! Ah!

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

THE FINALE TO A COURTSHIP.
Flora—ah! dearest Flora—I am come—ah! Flora—I am come—ah! I can decide my fate—I am come, my Flora! Ah!

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

THE FINALE TO A COURTSHIP.
Flora—ah! dearest Flora—I am come—ah! Flora—I am come—ah! I can decide my fate—I am come, my Flora! Ah!

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MIDNIGHT REFLECTIONS.
There is something in the still and solemn hour of midnight, that gives a soft tinge of melancholy to the mind when withdrawn from the noise and bustle and inquiet of a busy day.

THE INVENTOR OF STEAM NAVIGATION.
The National Intelligencer of the 26th February contains a full report of the most interesting and eloquent speech of the Hon. Mr. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, in vindication of the claim of his uncle to the honor of being the original inventor of steam.

MR. RUMSEY OF KENTUCKY, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

MR. RUMSEY, of Kentucky, rose and said, 'I would gladly avoid saying anything which might give me the appearance of a mere speaker upon a new theatre; and neglecting, as I have, from a belief that this opportunity would not occur, to make any adequate preparation, I feel and know that I cannot, in a manner worthy of your attention, illustrate the history of the invention of the steamboat, and do justice to the memory and claims of James Rumsey.'

