WHO IS GEN. WHIG MARTINSON?

COT. RICHARD M. JOHNSON, Vice President of the United States, answers:

"Gen. Martinson. The son of one of the authors of the Declaration of Independence, who spent the greater part of his life in redeeming the pledge he then gave, of his fortune, life, and sacred honor, to secure the liberties of his country."

"Of the career of Gen. Harrison, I need speak: the history of the West, is his history. For forty years he has been identified with its interests, its perils, and its hopes. Universally beloved in the walks of peace, and distinguished by his ability in the councils of his country, he has been yet more illustriously distinguished in the field."

"During the late war, he was longer in active service than any other General officer; he was, perhaps, often in action than any one of them, and never sustained a defeat."

We challenge any one to show, within the range of the diversified duties pertaining to the Presidency, a single act of the present Administration, involving principles of any magnitude, or consequences of any moment; that has bettered the condition of the country in any one respect. If that administration were this day to close, the faithful historian would necessarily have a blank page on the credit side of its account. Not only has not the present administration done any thing positively good or praiseworthy, but it has done many things which were in bad taste, and were in bad taste when the opportunity was fair, and the means of doing it were plain and obvious.

"We omitted to state in our last, that the resolution referred to in our paper of the 21st ult., as having been offered at a late Van Buren meeting in this town, and which prompted that of the Van Buren party, that Johnson should be encouraged to withdraw their subscriptions and to leave without aid from the Free Press office, was offered by Col. BRIXTON DAVENPORT, a gentleman well known in this community, for his liberal and dignified course on former occasions within the last ten or twelve years, in regard to his paper, as well as for many other merits not done during that period. The resolution was opposed in a speech by Col. Opie, and afterwards withdrawn by the mover; so far, it is believed, the mortification of seeing it rejected. His own indefensible personal assertions for many years have failed to break down or cripple our establishment, on account originally of a mere difference of political opinion; he now seeks to accomplish his purpose by the wholesale proscriptive method of enlisting the most political parties of the day to carry on the war against us. But, we mistake much the spirit of that party, if he does not find his effort to make tools of them to gratify his own personal as well as political hatred of us, all in vain.

The political fever says, the Alexandria Gazette, has now reached its height, but will know no abatement until next November. Men, now, eat but little else, and talk about nothing else, but politics. It is the all-absorbing, all-engrossing theme. In all conditions of life, the same anxiety is observed, and, we believe, there will be found fewer of those anomalous curiosities styled neutrals, than were ever before seen in any previous party contest in this country. The feeling has actually extended to women and children, and in most places, the wives, daughters, and little ones, of the honest voter, are quite as warm in the cause that happen to oppose, as the good man himself.

The damages done to buildings and other property by the terrible explosion of the Alton powder mill, are estimated at $25,000. Every house in the populous part of the city was more or less injured. The stones perforated houses a mile distant. Six lone powder exploded, Henry Clay—Ex-Governor Hill, of New Hampshire, one of the most zealous friends of the present Administration, speaks of Mr. Clay as the late number one.

The

both of the Van Buren party. A great many of whom are in attendance, and many have already been examined.

The prosecuting committee are in attendance, assisted by W. P. Maulbey, Esq., a counsel, also of the Van Buren party.

"It is altogether one of the most extraordinary processions of men, I might imagine, in the political history of this country, or perhaps of any other. As soon as the proceedings have been gone through with, it is to be hoped that the public will be made acquainted, in an authentic form, with all whole affair.—Editor.

Assuming the correctness of this article (and I have had other information corroborative of its truth), it presents a novel and most extraordinary state of things.

It alleges that a Committee of the Van Buren Convention have preferred charges against two officers of the army of the U.

States of using the influence and patronage of their officers in the purchase of supplies for the army, &c., to the benefit of the opponents of the present Administration, and to the "injury and great wrong of the Democratic party."

The charge, as represented, is not to the injury and great wrong of the United States, but of the Democratic party! These charges are said to have been preferred by persons supposed to be members of the committee, to the President of the U.

States, but very creditable to him. He is not think it advisable to take the step of removing the officers from their station.

He has, however, sent a copy of the investigation for the purpose, of future review. The same Secretary of War who has endeavored to screen the Chief of the Cabinet, of which he is a member, is from the responsibility of a measure, exceptly approved by that chief, to the exout of the militia, a military force of 900, 000 men! And this most unexampled prosecution is conducted by the same

Committee of the Van Buren Convention and their course!

Correspondence of the Balt. American.

WASHINGTON, JUNE 2.

U. S. SENATE.

GEM HARRISON'S CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. ALLEN commenced a speech upon a municipal from Ohio, by putting a question to Mr. Crittenden, "whether the letter be genuine or forged?"—Mr. A. alluded to the letter of Mr. Gwinne and Mr. Wright, purporting not to give Gen.

Harrison's opinions, but to say they were known to him.

Mr. Crittenden said he knew not whether the letter was true or false, supposing it to be true, what does it amount to, more than a committee friendly to Gen. Harrison, declare that his opinions upon all public questions are known, and being known, to those who are desirous of ascertaining them, do for

Gen. Harrison?

What is Mr. Van Buren's opinion concerning Mr. Pointell's standing army?

"Can the Senator tell me this?" Will he, if he can? Will any of his friends speak? Is there no answer to this?"

Again, Mr. President, is Mr. Van Buren in favour of an exclusive metallic currency? There are many of his friends who are, but is he, I ask? Who can tell me?

Is he for quadrupeds, the bank notes of the country? Some of his friends would annihilate the banks, but what are the opinions of the President, I ask? I hear no answer.

Again, is he in favor of the tariff, and so, what kind of a tariff? What articles would tax? Who would enlighten me upon this point?

Yet again—"is he in favor of internal improvements, and what are his opinions of the constitutional power of Congress in regard to them?" I hear no answer.

Once more—"is he in favor of the Cumberland Road?" Those who are for the Cumberland Road say that he is; and those of the Administration who are against it, say that he is not. I pray you who are so anxious concerning Gen. Harrison's opinions, to enlighten me. Information has been sought and denied, and now who will enlighten us?

Mr. C. alluded also to committees of political opponents who had recently committed his dwelling to obtain from him expressions of opinion which were also to be used to his disadvantage. Had Gen.

Harrison turned them out of his own house, Mr. Crittenden said he would have done that which would have commanded him to his notice of propriety.

In regard to holding secret opinions upon important subjects; Mr. C. contended that the practice of Gen. Harrison in this matter—allowing it to be what the Senator from Ohio had said it was—was in concordance with the practice of Gen. Jackson and Mr. Van Buren.

[Here Mr. C. read a letter from Gen.

Van Buren in which he referred to the former letter addressed by Gen. Jackson to Mr. Colman of North Carolina.]

Mr. Crittenden also cited a pamphlet written by Mr. Van Buren in relation to Rufus King, in which he answered the complaint, that Mr. King's opinions were not known. If they were not, no, consequently they should not have been given.

For the reason that a man's opinion upon such subjects were worth nothing. They were pretensions which availed nothing against the solid evidence of a man's life and actions.

Mr. C. also read a recent letter from

Gen. Harrison, in which he referred to the letter which he had written to the Hon. Sherrod Williams.

Mr. C. said he had not introduced this subject. General Harrison had been vil-led, and he could not sit quietly and hear the abuse. His reputation is not of a hasty growth. For nearly one-half a century he has been in the full blaze of his country's observation. The wilderness—the battle field—the council chamber—all tell his history. It is recorded in your Congressional records—on the pages of your national history—and there is not a leaf in that history which a friend would fear from that book—not one.

You have not only Gen. Harrison's opinions, but what is better, his conduct.

Better than his professions is his life.

Both spoke plainly and unequivocally.

They proclaimed that Gen. Harrison was an honest man—that after holding important offices for nearly half a century, he escaped with clean hands.

Mr. Crittenden's closing remarks were beautiful, eloquent and forcible. He alluded to the terms of "log cabin" and

"hard cider," and exhorted honorable

Senators not to be nervous and excited when those terms were used. They were called out only by an ignorance of feeling on the part of the friends of the Administration!

These railing cries would do no harm, and why should Senators turture themselves when they were used?

The Senator feared they were to tell the knell of the Republic—but why should he?

What was there dreadful in the terms used that such painful consequences were to come from them? Mr. C. concluded, "I have no objection to the terms of log cabin, &c., &c."
