

PROTRACTED MEETING. A Protracted Meeting was commenced in the Methodist Church of this place, on the 26th ult., (and is still in continuation,) which increases in interest as the meeting progresses. It was commenced under the auspices of the faithful and efficient Ministers of this Circuit, the Rev. E. R. Verraz, and the Rev. J. H. Watson, assisted by our zealous layman, the Rev. J. M. REELE, and by that eloquent Divine, the Rev. S. J. ROZELL, of the Spharadatown Station.

The second practical truths which these Reverend gentlemen expatiated upon, together with the fervid and soul-thrilling interest exhibited by them, has been the means of creating quite a religious excitement among a portion of the community. The powerful reasoning, calm yet forcible appeals made, have awakened the thoughtful, and aroused the inactive, to a lively sense of their best interests, and taught scoffers wisdom. Thus enforced, "Truth from the lips has come with double sway, And fools who else had laugh'd, have learn'd to pray."

They have been given to taste of that meek forbearance that resists not injury; and the pure calm spirit which murmureth not; the expansive love for friends and foes; together with all the unostentatious charms which adorn Christian piety. There has been already a score added to the Church Militant, and the prospect of a still larger accession brightens. Most truly have these Ministering servants of the Most High, who have been commissioned to do service for the Glory of Christ—whose holiness and holiness in the hearts of some of those who were most sordid and sorrowful on account of the grievousness of their sins.

It is reported in Washington, that an Extra Session of Congress will be called, as soon after the 4th of March as it will be practicable to bring that body together. This, it is said, is to enable the Locos, (who will have the swing for the two succeeding years,) to repeal the Tariff, the Bankrupt bill, and the bill to re-establish, though under another name, the Sub Treasury system. In effecting the latter, the Party may find itself in some embarrassment, as it is by no means certain that President Tyler (now repudiated by the leaders) will sign a bill exactly meeting their views. He is scarcely "so green" as to be caught in that matter, before the meeting of a Convention to make the Presidential nomination. We should rather "guess" that he will first desire to know what he is to gain by giving up his favorite scheme for the exploit of his antagonists (Mr. Van Buren), or any other system which may have a tendency to transfer the laurels to the brow of another.

The people, meanwhile, may expect no relief, though as they find in the Federal and economy. They have permitted power to pass into unholy hands, and the obstinacy of a single man can thwart all the measures devised by the wisdom of the soundest statesmen or demanded by the exigencies of the country. But the star of Hope is not yet entirely clouded—and restore hearts may yet achieve a victory over the wickedness and imbecility which, thank God, can only have a temporary reign.

We are gratified to hear, from various sources, that the true Whig spirit is not extinct—but that it will be aroused for the great struggle even with more efficacy than in the past. In New York, where Mr. Van Buren's friends for awhile thought they had done wonders, it is ascertained that their candidate for Governor is elected by 8000 votes less than he had in 1840. The Whig Lion is only lumbering in his lair. Wo to the little beast, when he shall again "rise and shake the dew-drops from his mane."

MR. TYLER'S POSITION WITH THE TWO GREAT PARTIES. It will be seen from the annexed extract taken from the Globe, that the traitor has but little mercy to expect at the hands of the Loco Foco party. They may wish to purchase, the Madisonian ask "Where, now, is the President without a party?"

The United States Gazette very properly remarks that the "President without a party" is at Washington, paying very dearly for a few laudations. But, hear what the Globe says: "One of those accidents so common in this world placed Mr. Tyler at the head of the Government, in which situation he has had the misfortune to please neither the party which elected him, nor that which opposed him. By the former, he has been discarded and denounced with every epithet of opprobrium; by the latter, he has been praised, or blamed, with a moderate discrimination. His views have been approved, while his assent to other measures, equally obnoxious to the democracy with those he rejected, have so far balanced the account as to leave him neutral in the minds of the former. The President, therefore, may be said to have been elected by a party, and to get on. With the Whigs, his chance appears altogether desperate, and it would seem that his demerit rests in the democracy, with whom he and his friends aspire to be 'one and indivisible.'"

"No one will, we think, venture to deny that Mr. Tyler, at the moment the fortunes of the democracy were struggling with an accumulation of difficulties, separated himself from his party, and became, to certain extent, an instrument of its overthrow. But he has now quarreled with his new friends, and wishes to come back to his old; or, rather, to stand where he is, while they expect to be merely tolerated as a reluctant sinner, but that the Democratic party shall regard him as their champion, by rallying under his banner and placing him at its head. This, we think, is asking rather too much. Neither Mr. Tyler nor his party—if he has any—are qualified to fill the place. When the prodigal son returned to his father's house, he did not come with the herd of swine at his heels, to devour the good man's substance; nor do we learn that he was placed at the head of his father's establishment, or that Mr. Tyler wishes to return, we say, with all our heart, let him return. But, at the same time, we will venture to hint, that before he becomes 'one and indivisible with the Democracy,' he must desert the democracy of his residence in a more satisfactory manner than he has hitherto adopted. The treaty, the tariff, the bankrupt law, the executive, the letter to Gov. King, the distribution bill, the repeal of the independent treasury, and the composition of his Cabinet, are not sufficient pledges of his conversion."

The Globe, not inaptly, answers President Tyler's appeals (through the Madisonian) to a "moderate man of all parties," by reminding him that he is all his cabinet, (with the exception of Mr. Webster, were, when seeking power, among the most violent party leaders in the country.) To see how little singular that they should be all of a sudden, have become so exceedingly gentle creatures—Doesn't it?

NEW YORK ELECTION. The Albany papers of Saturday contain the official returns of the votes given for Governor at the late election in the State of New York. They are, for Bruce 908,079, for Balfour 186,168—giving to the former a majority of nearly 722,000 votes. The abolition vote was 7,362. The Albany evening Journal sums up the matter thus: "Colonel Bouck, with 8,000 votes less than he received in 1840, is elected by 21,000 majority. Forty thousand Whigs who voted for Governor Seward in 1840 now withhold their votes. In effect, therefore, it was an election for but one change, the other having, in numbers sufficient to change the result, abstained from voting. The Whigs, moved and unmoved by various causes, have allowed the Locofocoes to take possession of the Government. Let us remember, severally, that they are a mass of ignorance. The power to reform and reclaim resides with the Whigs, whose Locofocoes prove less than they seem to be."

VIRGINIA LEGISLATURE. This body met on Monday last, and a program being presented in both Houses, they proceeded at once to the consideration of business.

In the Senate, Mr. Charles Huson, of Fauquier, was unanimously elected Speaker; Mr. Addison Hansford, Clerk; Col. S. W. Allen, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Thomas L. Nelson, and Julius Martin, 1st and 2d Doorkeepers.

In the House, Mr. Crutchenfeld, nominated George W. Munford for Clerk, who was unanimously elected. Mr. C. also nominated Joel Holman for Speaker. No other persons being nominated, the House proceeded to elect, when it appeared that Mr. Holman received 96 votes; Oscar M. Crutchenfeld II, 81; and Saml W. W. W. Mr. Worthington voted for Mr. Holman, and Mr. Gallaher for Mr. Crutchenfeld. The old incumbents were re-elected.—Col. D. Ward, Sergeant-at-Arms; Mr. Bradley for 1st Doorkeeper, and Mr. Chambers for 2d Doorkeeper.

The Government's attention has been directed mainly to the embarrassments of the times, and the means to be used for extricating ourselves therefrom. He speaks out boldly and manfully against repudiation, when he says—"the interest upon the State debt will be called for when due, and must be paid."

What benefit can result to a community from a Stay Law. None. Literally none; unless it be purchased at the sacrifice of justice. If a Stay Law be passed merely to defer the payment of debts, it can do no good; on the contrary, I think it will be productive of harm.

RAIL ROAD ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday of last week, the passenger train of cars from Harpers-Ferry to Cumberland, about 20 miles beyond the former place, came in contact with a wagon and team. As the locomotive approached the horses became frightened and unmanageable, and ran directly across the rail road track. The wagon was cut through the middle, laying the halves on either side of the track, and one horse's head was cut off by the engine, and two other horses were severely injured. The engineer was also much hurt, but none of the passengers, though several of the cars were broken. It is to be regretted that so many accidents have occurred since the completion of this road, as it has been our duty to record.

THE BALTIMORE AMERICAN OF MONDAY says: "We learn that while the rail road train was on its way from Cumberland to Baltimore on Friday evening, and who about 25 miles from the city, the locomotive and tender were thrown off the track by some obstruction lying on it, and were precipitated down the adjacent bank into the Potomac river. As the train was full of passengers, cars to the tender being of wood, was twisted and broken as soon as the tender left the track, and the cars and all the passengers in them were left on the track without any injury whatever. We are happy to learn that no one attached to the locomotive or tender was hurt. The links by which the trains on this road are held together are now exclusively of wood, and are designed to be broken except in such circumstances as those we have just related."

SOUTHERN LITERARY MESSENGER.—We have reviewed and read with pleasure the December No. of this very interesting monthly. The letters on "Bible Changes," translated by H. T. Trueman, are interesting and calculated to excite the sympathies of the reader.
