Davis followed Mr. F. in strong opposition to the proposed resort; he called it a revival of the "continental money" system, and blamed the Secretary with much severity for not having earlier communicated the state of his Department, when it must have been well known to him. Mr. Wise next rose, and after some animated remarks about acquainting the people honestly and at once with the whole condition of the country, he moved an amendment to the bill, in effect repealing the act for the distribution of the Public Lands.

Mr. Fillmore objected to this provision on a point of order, and pending this the House adjourned.

The SENATE, having on Thursday ad journed over to Monday next, did not sit on Friday.

Nearly the whole of the day's sitting in the House of Representatives, we are sorry to say, was consumed in contests and votes concerning the reception of memorials having for their ob ject the abolition of slavery, &c. In every instance, upon the yeas and nays being taken on motions to lay upon the table the question of reception, the question was determined in the affirmative, by majorities varying from ten to eighteen votes. The celebrated racer and brood mare Polly Hopkins, the property of Robert L. Stevens, Esq., of this city, returned here from England this week, in the care of Mr. Ten Eyck, who was sent out for the purpose. Polly was accompanied by her yearling bay colt by Glaucos, which was so much admired in England, Lord George Bentinck and other distinguished turimen were exceedingly anxious to purchase it, or to nominate it in the Derby, St. Leger, and important stakes, but it was so heavily engaged here that all offers were declined.
