DISPOSITION.

THE subscriber having a business existing under the firm of J J & E P MILLER, was dissolved on the 19th instant, by mutual consent. E P Miller will give his entire attention for a short time to settling the business of the late firm, and hopes all who know themselves indebted, will some forward and pay at least part of their accounts or notes, and save us the trouble of giving them a personal call.

JAMES J MILLER,
E P MILLER.

Sept 22, 1842.

THE subscriber having purchased the interest of Mr. E P Miller in the late firm of J J & E P MILLER, respectfully informs the customers of said firm that he continues continuing the business at the same address, and will do all with Goods on the same terms as before. He has received a considerable addition of New Goods to the stock, which will be sold very low for cash, or to punctual dealers on a short credit—he respectfully asks all to give him a call before buying.

of heavy taxes upon American cotton, in the ports of Great Britain, will speedily follow.

Our Southern people talk of nullifying the Tariff unless it is repealed. Let them take care that they do not talk too rapidly.
The time may come, and soon, when they will cling to the protective policy as the strong hold of their safety. It is best not to be committed too far. They might take an example from their political friends of the Northern, Middle and Western States, who, in obedience to the dictates of party leaders, have gone so far in denouncing protection that they find themselves now in a very unpleasant predicament. The Whigs are the only party that know how to take good care of the country; and we trust the sensible and the patriotic on the other side will see this fact, in the experience of the troubles into which n.s.g. government has brought the country, and come over like good citizens to aid in sustaining a wise system of sound policy.

SENTENCE OF LIEUT. WILKES.—The following is the letter of the Secretary of the Navy, approving the finding of the Court in the case of Lieut. Wilkes, and administering the reprimand to which he was sentenced:

Navy Department, Sept. 22, 1842.

Sir.—You have been duly tried by a Court Martial, found guilty of illegally punishing, or causing to be punished, men in the Squadrons under your command, and sentenced to be publicly reprimanded by the Secretary of the Navy, and at such time and place as you may see fit. This sentence is approved.

I am respectfully, your ob'd'r Servt., A. P. UPSHUR,
Lieut. CHARLES WILKES.

The Hon. John Quincy Adams was received at Weymouth, (Mass.), on Saturday, in a manner which must have warmed the veteran statesman's heart.— He was addressed in the church by Mr.
Davis of Plymouth, in an eloquent, high-toned and patriotic speech, thanking him for his ability, unflinching integrity and exalted patriotism with which he had maintained the people's rights. Mr. Adams replied in a speech of two hours and a half, during which he manifested the deepest emotion, and his voice trembled as it gave utterance to his feelings of gratitude for their cordial and undivided sympathy and kindness.—N. Y. Courier.

Misadventures.—It is stated, in the New York Commercial Advertiser, that Col.
Todd, American minister to Russia, has been unhorsed five times successively, by as many different steeds, at a recent review of the Emperor. The horses were from the Emperor's stud; and it is reported that the falls of the minister afforded much amusement to the Russian officers, especially the Cossacks.—Certainly the steeds must have been of uncommon mettle, or the minister an uncommonly bad rider.

[Bell's Amer.]

RESUMPTION.—We are glad to say that the resumption continues to work well. There has been no run upon the Banks, so far as we have heard, at any point, and there now seems to be a general confidence that they will maintain their ground. Indeed, so far from there being a demand for more specie, than was previously in circulation,— as some had supposed,—since the Banks opened their vaults a greater amount of specie has flowed in than out! Such is the fact here certainly—and so we understand it to be in Richmond.

(Lynchburg Virginia.)

THE MORMON PROPHET.—The St. Louis Republican says:

"The report that Joe Smith and his accomplices in his attempted assassination of Gov. Boggs, had gone to England, is erroneous. He has been at or about Nauvoo ever since his arrest; for he knew full well that he was safer there than anywhere else. During this time he has been concealed by day, and now and then seen at night, thinking that after the excitement had subsided, he could come forth with impunity. He went up the river on the steamboat Guleen, on Saturday night, the 3d. Six officers had caught the scent and were in warm pursuit. Whence his destination, none knew; or those who do, are Mormons, and they maintain profound silence. It is supposed that Canada will be his first resting place for the present."

The Clerk of the House of Representatives, in compliance with an Act of Congress, has published in the National Intelligencer a detailed statement of the appropriations made during the late session of Congress, specifying the amount and object of each. The following is a recapitulation of the whole:

Rail Road Iron.—Two more cargoes of iron rails for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad reached this port yesterday, comprising with the cargoes previously arrived, the entire quantity of upwards of eight thousand tons which are required for the completion of the road to Cumberland.

The business of laying down the rails, we are gratified to add, goes on with energy.

Twenty one miles of the track west of Hancock are completed, and the work proceeds at the rate of a mile per day.—

There are yet thirty five miles to be laid down before the road is completed to Cumberland, so that by the 10th of November next this important object will be finally achieved.—Bell's Amer.

The vote of the People of the Territory of

A SHORT MESSAGE FROM A LAY PREACHER.

TEXT.—"One no man say thing."

Keep out of debt. Avoid it as you would war, pestilence and famine. Shut it as you would the devil. If it is with a perfect hatred. Abhor it with an entire and absolute abhorrence. Dig potatoes, lay stone walls, peddle tin ware, do anything that is honest and useful, rather than run in debt. As you value comfort, quiet, independence, keep out of debt. As you value good digestion, a healthy appetite, a placid temper, a smooth pillow, sweet sleep, pleasant dreams, and happy waking, keep out of debt. Debt is the hardest of all taskmasters, the cruellest of all oppressors. It is a mill-stone about the neck. It is an incubus on the heart. It spreads a cloud over the whole firmament of a man's being. It eclipses the sun, it blots out the stars, it dims and defaces the beautiful blue of the sky. It breaks up the harmony of nature, and turns to dissonance all the voices of its melody. It furrows the forehead with premature wrinkles, it plucks the eye of its light, it drags all nobleness and kindness out of the port and bearing of a man. It takes the soul out of its laugh, and all staleness and freedom from his walk. Come not under its assumed dominion. Pass by as you would a viper, or one smitten by the plague. Touch it not. Taste not of its fruit, for it shall turn to bitterness and ashes on your lips. Finally we say, to each and to all, but we say especially to you, young men, keep out of debt.

AN ACTUAL SCENE AFTER BATTLE.

The battle of Soldin, between the Russians and the king of Prussia, was warmly contested—and after it was over, a clergyman went upon the ground and afterwards wrote the following account of what he saw: "At one o'clock the cannonading ceased, and I went out on foot to Soldin, to learn in whose favor the battle had turned. Towards evening, seven hundred Russian fugitives came to Soldin. It was a pitiful sight; some holding up their hands, cursing and swearing, others praying and praising the king of Prussia, without hats or clothes, some on foot, others two on a horse, with dragging heads by the stirrups, and others by the tails of the horses. When the battle was decided, and victory shone for the Prussian army, I ventured to the place where the cannonading had been. After walking some way a cossack's horse came running full speed towards me. I mounted him; and on my way for seven miles and a half on this side of the field of battle, I found the dead and wounded lying on the ground, and sadly cut in pieces. The further I advanced the more these poor creatures lay heaped one upon another. That scene I shall never forget. The cossacks, as soon as they saw me, cried out, 'water! dear sir, water! water!' Gracious heavens! what a sight! men, women and children, Russians and Prussians, carriages and horses, oxen, carts and baggage, all lying one upon another to the height of a man—seven villages all around me in flames, and the inhabitants either massacred or thrown into the fire. The poor wounded soldiers were still firing at one another in the greatest desperation. The field of battle was a plain, two and a half miles long, entirely covered with dead and wounded. There was not room to set my foot without treading on some of them. Several brooks were filled up with Russians, that they lay heaped one upon another as high as ten or twelve feet, and appeared like hills to the even ground. I could hardly recover myself from the sight occasioned by the great and miserable outcry of the wounded. A noble Prussian officer, who had lost both his legs, cried out to me—'Sir, you are a priest, and pray mercy; pray show some compassion, and despatch me at once!'"

A Quare.—When a gifted genius looks out upon the sublimities of nature—measures the universe with his far reaching imagination—drinks in the beauties of earth and sky—and sighs for eagle pinions to soar above clouds and mountain peaks—how must he feel when he finds that his last shirt is an alio toro to shivers?

[Exchange paper.]

We don't know what the emotions of that individual would be at that particular time, but we would recommend to all prudent housewives, if they see such a genius in their neighborhood, to have an eye to their clothes line.—Phil. paper.

Affecting.—A character lady, in attempting to take a rose from her head to cast at the brave army on their return from the siege of Chephast, was so flattered with the action that she grasped her wig too tight and flung it away with the flower.

A Moderate Fortune.—It is stated that the Rothschilds of London have offered to compound their tax, under the new Income Tax Act of Sir Robert Peel, for the three years at £25,000. In other words they are willing to be let off with the payment to the tax collector of $40,000 a year. They admit therefore, if the report be true, that their annual income is at least one million three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Cold News.—The New York Commercial Advertiser states that the interest on the debt of the State of Alabama, due January 1st, 1843, in London, has been already repaid to the city.

More Good News.—The same paper also states that the total to the Old South and the other slaves, amounting to $1,000,000, have for many months past been in hand, and that the slaves are now in
