In a little while most of the cellars on the main street were filled, whilst not only the celhars but the first stories of many of the houses on the town run were inundated. In some cases the inmater had parrow escapes, and many families lost their clothing and other articles.

Mr. William F. Lock had difficulty in saving his horses in the stable near the mill, and he lost a good deal of offall from the lower part of the mill. The water wept through the residences John Lock. of Messrs. O'Bannon, Morris, Davis, Starry, Morrow, Deaver, Ridenour, Johnson, Kelfison, Shrode, Dooley, and others. Mrs. Holl had to retreat to the second story of her house, and it was found impossible to reach her premises even with a horse.
