LADY, LEAVE THY SILKES THREAD. BY THE LATE THOMAS HOOD.

O! lady, leave thy silken thread And flowery tapestrie:
There's living roses on the bush And blossoms on the tree. Stoop where thou wilt, thy careless hand Some random bud will meet Thou eanst not tread, but thou wilt find

The daisy at thy feet. 'Tis like the birth day of the world, When earth was born in bloom; The light is made of many dyes, The air is all perfame ; There's crimson buds, and white and blue,

The very rainbow showers Have turned to blossoms where they fell, And sown the earth with flowers. There's fairy tulins in the East,
The Garden of the Sun;
The very streams reflect the hues
And blossoms as they run;
While morn opes, like a crimson rose,

Still wet with pearly showers; Then, lady, leave thy silken thread Thou twinest into flowers!

THE LIGHT OF OTHER DAYS. The light of other days has faded, And all their glories past, For grief with heavy wing bath shaded The hopes too bright to last ; The world, which morning's mantle clouded,

Shines forth with purer rays, But the heart ne'er feels, in sorrow shrouded,
The light of other days. The leaf, which autumn's tempests wither, The birds, which there take wing. When winter's winds are past, come hither

To welcome back the spring ; The very ivy on the ruin In gloom full life displays, But the heart slone sees no renewing
