

VIRGINIA FREE PRESS.

CHARLESTOWN: THURSDAY MORNING, October 23, 1845.

THE SUB-TREASURY.

This measure, which is believed to be a favorite with the "Old Hunkers," generally, and the Van Buren men in particular, and which was recommended by the Baltimore Convention, is not thought to be in much favor with Mr. Secretary Walker. His present arrangements seem as though he had an eye to permanent, and not temporary or contingent arrangements.

TWO SYNODS OF VIRGINIA.

The Depositor.

A "Calm Observer," in the National Intelligencer, reviews at length, and with great ability, the whole history of the removal of the depository from the time of its inception till its consummation. From the review it would appear that a majority of the Cabinet were strongly averse to the removal, agreeing with whom was Mr. Van Buren.

THE DEPOSIT.

Mr. McLane, however, on sundry occasions, joined Mr. Van Buren in their removal, or the loss of the depository of Gen. Jackson was not "cast," as the popularity of Gen. Jackson was so strong, as to sustain him in any measure he adopted, however violent or lawless.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY.

These People, as we suppose every reader knows, (remarks the Whig,) are lessened for a long time of years, who have come at last to regard the property of others as their own.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY.

It was believed by many, so strong were they not only in number, but in social position, and in the countenance of men of consideration, that the Courts of New York would be intimidated from enforcing the laws against them.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY.

John Van Steenberg and Edward O'Connor had both been convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hung on the 29th of November. They were with the mob that fired on and killed Sheriff Steele, which officer was discharging his duty in getting property for rents.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY.

Four other prisoners—Daniel W. Squires, Moses Earle, Zera Preston, and David North—were sentenced to the State Prison in Clinton county, for the term of three years, to be commenced on the same party, from seven to ten years for different terms, from seven to ten years.

NEITHER GOD NOR BROTH LOUD.
Many a good one is told at the expense of the honest laborer, but the wage may be increased on being true.

A poor Irishman living in our country, and who had never known what it was to feel the good things of the land, and who had been used to drinking "ye coffee" all his life, was presented by a neighbor with a pound of real Java. The woman took it home, and put it in a tin, and she brought the tin home, and she put the coffee in, together with water, and commenced boiling it.

THE KNOWING CANDIDATE.
The following good one is told of a candidate who was on an election tour, and who, as a matter of course, knew every body, or else some relative, bearing a resemblance.

Evils in the journey of life, are like the hills which alarm travellers upon the road; but when we approach them, we find they are far less insurmountable than we had conceived.

A shrewd farmer in the Vermont legislature declined answering the speech of a member who was remarkable for nothing but his frothy and pugnaconic impudence and self-conceit.

A Cool Apology.—"Oh!" said a poor sufferer to a dentist, "that is the second root tooth you've pulled out!" "Very sorry, sir," said the blundering operator, "but there were only three when I began, I'm sure to be right next time."

The Playgoer tells the story of a snake that swallowed a mule twice. It kicked its way out each time, and finally killed the snake. The mule was bought from the Kickapoo tribe of Indians.
