

AWFUL EVENT.

Never has it been our lot to record a more melancholy event, than that which at present shrouds our whole community in gloom, and swells every breast with sorrow...

When he had mounted his horse near the house gate of the farm occupied by Craven Trussell, the manager, Mr. Alquist reached down to take up his gun. It is supposed that the lock came in contact with the fence or some other object...

The heart-rending event was soon communicated to the brother, father-in-law and family of Mr. Alquist, in the Episcopal Church yard...

It is with feelings of profound regret that we announce the death of CHARLES W. ALQUIST, who, while on a hunting excursion, on Saturday last, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his gun.

DEDICATION

On Saturday last, agreeably to appointment, a large assemblage of people were congregated, to witness the dedication by the Old Fellows, of their new Hall at Shepherdstown, erected over the market house. The edifice is a neat one, and does honor to the craft.

The brethren assembled in the Presbyterian Church, and a procession was formed about 12 o'clock, under the direction of Mr. Catron, of Hagerstown, as Chief Marshal, and marched to the Hall, where the dedicatory exercises were performed, under the superintendence of Mr. J. H. KULLY, Deputy Grand Master of the Order for Virginia.

After the dedication, the procession was again formed, and retreated to the Church, through the principal streets of the town, attracting great attention by their order and the rich regalia worn on the occasion. At the Church, the services were preceded by excellent music from the Shepherdstown Band—and a most fervent prayer by the Rev. Mr. HARGRAVE.

An address, replete with many interesting facts and explanations relating to the origin of secret societies, and their antiquity, was delivered by Dr. JOHN W. GUYER, of Fredericktown, Md. He proved that secrecy was no modern invention, and that it in no way impaired the benevolent influences and acts of the Society—whose good was daily developed, and whose progress was daily advancing.

Indeed, Shepherdstown, in all that she does, (though her prosperity is not proportioned to her deserts,) performs her part well. She always serves as an example of hospitality and order, which never fails to impress most favorably those who visit her on any occasion.

THE FOREIGN NEWS.

The Great Western, arrived at New York, with dates to the 10th October, brought intelligence of an advance in the price of Flour in England—a decline of the price of Cotton—an improvement in the iron market—firmness in the produce market—a probable famine in Russia—the destruction of the French Army by the Arabs—and accounts of the continuance of the Railway mania. But the public mind is now directed to the news expected by the Massachusetts or California, which will bring dates to the 19th of October. The effect upon the Flour Market will be given in our regular columns, or in an extra, so that our readers shall at all times be on their guard.

The National Intelligencer has an excellent chapter on "Progressive Democracy," the chief phrase now—in which in reality is meant Local Focism that "has no limits, knows no bounds," and can be carried, by the arts of demagogues and politicians, for their own selfish purposes, to any extent compatible with those purposes. Most heartily and sincerely do we unite with our friends in opposition to the wild and restless spirit of change—"of progress"—with which the minds of so many are filled—"let who will encourage each other as fast as they will encourage political articles rather than any real popular war, it catches in any new quarter of the country, most ingenious and active to invent new laws and constitutions, and only careless afterwards about having them put in execution."

The Whigs of New York city had a grand meeting on Tuesday evening, preparatory to the election of next week. The following is one of the resolutions adopted:—Resolved, That in triumph or disaster, in glory or gloom, there is one American statesman whom we can never cease to regard with a confidence and love, allied to veneration; that the great calamity of last November, while our first thoughts were of our Country, our second were of him; and since then, whenever gladdened by tidings which assure us that the reign of shifting inconsistency and moribund mediocrity approached its end, our hearts instinctively prompt the exclamation—

"Here's to you HENRY CLAY!" The allusion to Henry Clay was received with loud, long, protracted shouts and cheers, equalling all which the announcement of that name has ever done at National Hall.

Resolved, That the State of Pennsylvania is deeply interested in the maintenance and preservation of a protective Tariff. Resolved, That the people of Pennsylvania are in favor of and pledged to the support of such a tariff as will afford adequate, efficient and permanent protection to the manufacturing interests of the country. Resolved, That the cotton planting interest of the South, which comes the demand for a change of policy, has largely been benefited by the protection of domestic manufactures, in the creation of a home market for about one sixth of the whole product of its great staple, resulting in a competition which has already compelled the British manufacturer to demand a reduction of his tariff, and to be admitted duty free into the British ports.

Resolved, That in a view of these facts, the repeal or modification of the existing Tariff, before any other measure of the system has been developed and the substitution in its stead of a chimera, under the deceptive and specious title of "Free Trade," which comes the demand for a change of policy, has largely been benefited by the protection of domestic manufactures, in the creation of a home market for about one sixth of the whole product of its great staple, resulting in a competition which has already compelled the British manufacturer to demand a reduction of his tariff, and to be admitted duty free into the British ports.

A proverb saith, "Labor will the day last, for the night cometh when no man can work." There were no printers when that was written!

"What makes you spend your time so freely Jack?" Because I have nothing else to spend.

Taking a negro by the head because he refused obedience, is "a seizure of wool in default of duties."

Why is the Tariff like a nigger's hat? Because both are put on for the protection of native wool.

Why is a lover like a knocker? Because he is bound to a door, (adore)

Reason for loving Ireland.—An aristocratic Irish absentee, speaking of his native country, said it was an execrable place;

"Didn't hurt My Fore-paw."—A down east chap, walking with a lady, accidentally stumbled and fell. The lady thinking to commiserate his mishap observed that "she regretted his unlucky fore-paw."

"Gentlemen of the jury," said a western lawyer, "would you set a rat trap to catch a bear? Would you make a fool of yourselves by endeavoring to spear a buffalo with a knitting needle? Or would you attempt to empty out the Mississippi with a gourd? No, gentlemen, I know you would not; then how can you be guilty of the absurdity of finding my client guilty of manslaughter for taking the life of a woman?"

An Expelled.—We heard a good story related a few days since. It ran thus:—A young man who had not seen much of the world, and was rather unsophisticated, took a notion to try for the heart and hand of a girl of his acquaintance.

In Mexico the custom is when a duel is fought, to erect a cross on the spot, and every one that passes by throws a stone at the cross. Some ingenious Yankees have taken advantage of this custom to clear stony land, by erecting crosses where to duel has been fought!

Smoking.—Physician.—Madam, I can no longer prescribe for you, unless you throw away that pipe.

Physician.—Why, I, doctor, I change the cob every day or two.

"I was naked, and ye took me in," as the Oyster said to the hungry man.

A Left-handed Compliment.—God bless your honor; you saved my life! I was a beggar to a captain, under whom he had served.

"Saved your life?" replied the officer. "Do you think I am a doctor?"

"No," answered the man; "but I served under you at the battle of Corunna; and when you ran away, I followed, or else I should have been killed."

A lady looking at a review was asked if she was partial to military training; to which she replied, she liked exceedingly the officers' salute.

Comic Grammar.—Class in grammar may come on the floor. Now, J. in, commence—"All the word in det." Parse world.

Incurable Perspiration.

THE preceding figure is given to represent the INSENSIBLE PERSPIRATION. It is the great EVACUATION for the impurities of the body.

It is a natural process, but thick clammy mists issues from all points of the surface, which indicates that the perspiration flows unintercepted when we are in health, but fails when we are sick. Life cannot be sustained without it; it is thrown off from the blood and other juices of the body, and disposes by its means, of nearly all the impurities within us.
