HORRID DEATH.—We learn that a Ger-man named John Draph, came to his death in the following manner, on Tuesday night, in the town of Riga. According to the statement of his wife, he was intoxica-ted in the evening and quarreled with her. He finally went out to an ashery, and his wife to bed. On looking for him next morning, he was found to have fallen backwards into a large potash kettle, two thirds full of very strong lye, and completely caten up from his head to his thighs, scarcely a particle of the bones being left. During the last week the Senate has had under discussion a bill from the committee on Foreign Relations, authorizing the President to take temperary military occupation of Yucatan.

In the House, the Ten Regiment Bill was ta ken up. Upon this bill, parties in the House are nearly equally divided. It was not certain which would have the day. The result depended upon the question, whether there were more Whig than Locofoco absentees. No call of the House was made however.
