POETRY.

TO MY WIFE.

Pillow my head upon this heart, My own, my cherished wife,

And let us fer one hour for get Our dreary path of life; Then let me kiss thy tears away And bid remembrance fice Back to the haleyon days of youth,

When all was hope and glee. Fair was the early promise love, Of our joy freighted bark-Sublime and lustrous, too, the skies, Now all so dim and Jark: Over a stormy sea, dear wife, We drove with shuttered sail,

But love sits smiring at the helm.

And mocks the threatening gate. Come let me part those clustering curls, And gaze upon thy brow-How many, many memories Sweep o'er my This now;

How much of harribess and grief-How mara of heat and lear. Breathe from such dear loved lineaments, Most eloquently here.

Thou gentle one, few joys remain To cheer our lonely lot-The storm has left our paradise With but one sunny spot; Hallow'd forever be that place,

To hearts like mine and thine-'Tis where our childish hands upreared Affection's earliest shrine.

Then nestle cleser to this breast, My fond and faithful dove; Where, if not here, should be the ark Of refuge for thy love ?

The man's blessing and his curse, Pertain alike to me, For shorn of worldly wealth, dear wife, Am I not rich in thee ?

A STATE OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR A Valentine Storp. HATE'S VALENTINE.

Kate, my sprightly niece, like most young matters and things currently transpiring .-She thinks independently, and generally speaks what she thinks. Of course, her knowledge of human nature is not very deep; nor is she as wise in all her conclusions as she is led to imagine. I do not say this disparagingly, for Kate has quite as good sense as nine in ten who have only numbered her years, which are about twen-

On one subject. Kate had, for a year or two, been particularly decided in her expressions. The Valentine epidemie, which has raged so violently, she considered a social disease emphatically. It was no healthy manifestation of right feelings, in her esti-

At last St. Valentine's day appropried, and the store windows and counters began to be filled with emblematic love missives of all kinds, from the most costly delicate, and refined, down to the cheapest, coarsest, and most vulgar. Kate exhibited more and more strongly her antipathy to the custom about "If any one were to send me a valeutine," said ehe, "I would take it as a direct insult to my common sense." "Oh, as for that," I replied, sportively, "lovers are not so silly as to address the common sense of those whose favor they de-

"Whoever wins me," was her prompt answer, "must appeal to that. At no other point will I be accessible."

" We shall see."

" And we will see." " I'll wager a new hat against a spring bonnet," said I, "that you receive a Valentine this year from a certain young man named --- Never mind ; den't blush so ; I won't name him."

"I would discard any one who insulted me with a Valentine," replied Kate, indignantly. "Don't say that, for fear you will have cause to repent the indiscretion." "Yes, I do say it. No man of good sense would stoop to such trifling."

"I don't know, Kate. A little trifling,

"That's rhyme, which does not always go hand in hand with reason." "You'll grow wiser, Kate, as you grow older." "If that is the kind of wisdom age brings, I'm sure I don't want it." I answered with a laugh, for to be grave on such a theme was not in me. As the fourteenth approached, Kate frequently repeated her expressions of disgust at the silly custom of sending Valentines that had become so popular, and declared, over and over again, that such a liberty with her, would be taken as a direct insult, and resented accord-Among the visiting acquaintances of Kate, was a young man named Loring, for whom, I could see, she had kinder feelings than for any other male friend; but, either in consequence of a natural reserve of character, or because he was in doubt as to Kate's sentiments regarding himself, he never seemed perfectly at case in her company, though he sought it on every proper occasion. I had him in my mind when I suggested the reception of a Valentine from a certain young man, and Kate understood me

Well, Valentine's day came round. At ued under the management of your well-known dinner time, I came home as usual, and aladvantages for manufacturing, will be able to meet most the first word my wife said to me was: "What do you think? Kate received a Valentine."

"Indeed !" "It's true. It came by the Dispatch Post. I received it at the door, and sent it up to her room."

" Have you seen her since ?" " No." " Of course, she's particularly is diguant." "I don't know any thing about that. It was a handsome one I infer, from the size and envelop; and had in it something hard, which I took for jewelry-a breastpin or a bracelet" wakness-that she prized it even more "Where do you think it came from?" said I. "I've guessed young Loring," answered my wife. "If he has sent it he has committed a great mistake," I replied.

"How so ?" "You know Kate's anticathy to Valen-1000 Flat Chestnut Rails; 200 Yellow LoRail fence; to be delivered on the bank of the river out really knowing what they say; and Kate apply the dominant saw, which without being the lat of January, or 29th of February. opposite Shannon Hill, for which a fair cash price in not altogether free from the fault," said turned in the edge, or injured in any rethe 1st of January, or 29th of February.—

The Northfield ladies are evidently in favor my wife.

When the bell rung for dinner, Kate came down from her room. Her face was rather more sober than usual, and she did not join in the conversation with her accustomed animation. She was first to retire from the ta-

"I don't think she is mortally offended," said I to my nife. " No, not if I am skilled in mental indications," was replied.

During the afternoon, two or three more love missives came; but not a word touching their reception, or the feelings produced thereby, was breathed by Kate. It was plain, however, to one with even half an eye, that she was pleased at the mark of attention or, it might be, token of love. Evening, instead of being passed as usual with the family, was spent by Kate in her room.

On the next morning, at the breakfast table, I mentioned the fact that a certain number of Valentines had passed through the post office on the day before. This was in order to introduce the subject, and call out some rowark from Kate; but she remained silent on the subject, though not without in-dicating, by han heightened color and restless eye, the her thoughts were busy enough.

"I rather think our young lady has changed her opinions," said I, smiling, after Kate had left the table.

"Circumstances alter cases, you know," replied my wife, smiling in turn. On the next evening, young Loring called in. Kate was longer than usual in making her appearance, and when she came into the parlor, was dressed with more than ordinary care. For the first time, I noticed on her wrist a new and beautiful bracelet. She blushed. slightly, as she met Loring; seemed a little embarrassed, but was soon conversing with him in an animated style. "Did you see that new bracelet?" asked my wife, when we were next alone. "I did "Where did it come from ?" " Didn't you say that in one of the Valentines she received there was something hard like a piece of jewelry?" " Yes."

"That bracelet, probably" " No doubt of it." "And, moreover," said I, "it is plain that she believes the Valentine came from Loring; for, at her first meeting with him, she wears it for the first time."

"Thus," remarked my wife, "notifying him that she receives the token kindly." I laughed sloud, for I could not help it. "Why de you laugh?" asked my wife. "She was going to discard any one who of every married couple to make their own

" A Valentine ?" I added. The blood mounted to her temples. "But it was not an ordinary Valentine. It did not come from a triffer, and was not received as an insult. I thought you were not the girl. Kate, to reject a sincere offer." Kate blushed still more deeply.

" This title love-token, dear Kate, is for thee: Accept it, and keep it, and wear it for me." As I repeated this couplet, the young girl started with surprise, and looked with inquiring carnestness in my face. "But I'm afraid, Kate," said I, with a meaning smile, and a voice half-regretful in its tone, "that you wore it less for the real

"Men should not marry," it is commonly said, "unless they can, not only maintain for themselves the social position to which they have been accustomed, but extend the benefits of that position to their wives and children. A woman who marries is entitled to be kept in the same rank and comfort in which she was reared." We entirely disavow these doctrines. It should be the aim fortune. This is the spirit that gives to your time of life and to your sex their sweetest charms. It constitutes the sum total of all the witcheraft of women. Let the world see that your first care is for yourself, and you will read the solitude of the Upas tree around you, in the same way, by the emanation of a poison which kills all the juice of affection in its neighborhood. The seed of love can never grow but under the warm and gentle influence of kind feelings and affectionate manners. Vivacity goes a great way in young persons. It calls attention found associated with a generous sensibility, its execution is irresistible. On the contrary, if it be found in alliance with a cold, haughty, selfish heart, it produces no further effect except an adverse one. Attend to this my daughter. PEBRUARY 12, 1852. EMIGRATION.

The New York Herald estimates that the number of emigrants from Europe during this year and the next will be but little short of a million a year, and among them there will be a large portion of regulationists, who may imbrue with their own technigs a large portion of our native as well as plosted citizens. The Herald thinks the success the attact peace of such men as Kossuth and Kinkel willigive a new the politicians will take them by the hand, in order to carry their point with the 'adopted citizens' of the old country population. Appeals will chiefly be reade to the Germans, and all sorts of promises | ple will be held out to them of deliverance of their fatherland by the strong arm of the United States, theraselves in power by means of the German vote. Under these pretensions, large sums of money will probably be folicated, and the people will be again German and Hungarian chiefs."

The following views of the Herald carry force with them in our opinion: "It is ungrateful of these politicians that the; do not address themselves to the Irish population, who deserve so well of the nation. They are the most metal and patriotic persion of the for righ population, and they so rapidly coalesce with the people they find be le before mem, that, in a short time, they becthe excellent American citizens, who admire our institutions, and are faithful and steadfast to the constitution and the laws. Why do the politit austreat them with neglect ? They aumber three times as many as the Germans, and the Presidential candidates, and the small newspaper may find themselves in an awkward dilemma next fall, with the vote of the Irish against them. The recent let ter of Bishop O'Conner is a very significant indication of what the Milesian will do. They are keeping very quiet just now. They are saying little and thinking much, and they are by no means inattentive observers of passing events. Hefore the year 1852 is brought to a close, they will make their weight felt in the political balance, by those who now seem to regard them with so much indifference It is to their good sense and patriotism we must look as a counterpoise to the exciting agilation of the headlong hotspurs from the continent of Europe, who, if they were allowed to have everything their own way, would soon involve this continent in trouble, and set she whole world on fire."

A Mr. Huertis, an American gentleman of fortune, and a Mr. Hammond of Canada, a civil engineer by profession having read in Steven's work on "Central America," that an old padre in Santa Cruz del Quiche informed Mr. Stevens that he had seen in his youth, from the top of the Cordilleras, " a large city in the distance, with turrets white and glittering in the sun," that had never yet been visited by a white man who had returned alive, were "All national medals hitherto struck in this | inflamed with an unconquerable desire to explore onatry have been commemorative of the triumphs that region, and, if possible, discover the city. I trust you will believe me, too, when I cell you that I entertain ever the liveliest sympathics in every struggle for liberty, in Hungary, and in every cour try. And in this, I believe, I express the universal sentiment of my countrymen. But, sir, for the sake of my country, you must allow me to protest against the policy you propose to her. Waiving the grave and momentous question of the right of one nation to assume the executive power among nations, for the enforcement of international law, or of the right of the United States to dictate to Russia the character of her relations with the nations around her, let us come at once to the practical consideration of the matter. "You tell us yourself, with great truth and propriety, that mere sympathy, or the expression of sympathy, cannot advance your purposes. You equire material aid. And indeed it is manifest that the mere declarations of the sympathy of Congress, or of the President, or of the public, would be of little avail, unless we are prepared to enforce those declarations by a resort to arms, and unless other nations could see that preparation and determination upon our part. Education and political information, he said, did not descend very deep into the masses of the French people; as an illustration of which fact he stated that hundreds of thousands, when voting for the first time to elevate Louis Napoleon to the Presidency, thought the old Emperor was still alive and imprisoned, and that the vote they then gave would effect his deliverance. DEAR SIR :- I am in receipt of your favor: of the 26th and 27th ult., together with ther accompanying petitions, soliciting the intercession of this Government with that of Great Britain, for the liberation of the Irish prisoners now in exile for political offences growing out of the revolt of 1848, and I have directed them to be filed in the Department

Although the early and long settled policy of this Government must necessarily preclude this matter from being made the ground for any official action on its part. yet I am happy to say that such measures have already been taken to accomplish the object sought by the petitioners, as it was thought were most likely to procure the desired result. Accordingly the Secretary of State has, with my approbation, addressed a private letter to our Minister in England requesting him to make every effort in the case that he could with propriety.

I shall continue to de what I can consistently with the honor and dignity of our country, and sincerely hope that the strong desires of their friends in this country may soon be gratified by their release. Very respectfully, and sincerely, yours.

DIGESTIVE FLUID OR, GASTRIC JUICE.

by J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa. This is a truly wonderful remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Corplaint, Constipation and Debility, Curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own Agent, in about two hours, out of the stom? in. PEPSIN is the chief element, or Great Digesting | be sold low by ciple of the Gastric Juice-the Solvent of the Food the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating Agent for the Stomach and Intestines. It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, thus forming an Artificial Digestive Fluid, precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its Chemical powers, the natural Gastric Juice in its Chemical powers, and furnishing a complete and perfect inst lute for it. By the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of Iadigestion and Dyspepsia are removed just as wonders for Dyspeptics, curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The Scientific Evidence upon which it is based, is in the highest degree curious and remarkable.

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE, BARON LIEBIG in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says: "An Artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastrie Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the Calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."

Dr. PEREIRA, in his famous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Flowers & Wells, New York, page 35, states the same great fact, and decribes the method of preparation. Professor Dungaison, of the Jefferson College Philadelphia, in his great work on Human Physiology, devotes more than fifty pages to an examination of this subject. His experiments with Dr. Beaumont, on the Gastric Juice obtained from the living human stomach, and from animals, are well known: "In all cases," he says, "digestion occur-

Dr. Houghton's Persin has produced the mos marvelious effects, in curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption. It is impossible to give the details of cases in the limits of this advertisement; but authenticated certificates have been given of more than two hundred remarkable cures, in Philadelphia, New York and Boston alone. These were nearly all desperate cases, and the cares were not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent. It is a great nervous antidote, and particularly useful for tendency to Bilions disorder, Liver Complaint, Fever and Ague, or badly treated Fever and Ague, and the evil effects of Quinine, Mercury, and other drugs upon the Digestive O gans, after a long sickness. Hampton's Vegetable Tincture. THE world cannot produce stronger evidence than this, kindly handed to us by J. Stockbridge, Esq., of the Fountain Hotel, Light street, a gendeman extensively and favorably known. The writer of the letter, Captain Canot, is the brother of the celebrated Physician to Louis Napoleon, President of the French Republic. Numbers of our most respectable citizens will give equally strong testimony in favor of Hampton's Vegetable Tineture. It is a certain cure for Dyspepsia, Scrofula, Live Complaint, &c., and all diseases from impure block.

BALTIMOKE, June 4th, 1851. Mr. Stockbridge, of the Fountsin Hotel, Light street, Balt. Dear Sir: Being on the point of leaving the city, I avail myself of a few idle moments to thank you kindly for the medicine you sent me, and which has restored me to the use of my limbs. I beg you to send me four bottles more to carry on my voyage. Since I had the fortune to use Dr. Hampton's Vegetable Tincture my confidence is so strong that, in gratitude to the propri-ctors of said medicine, I beg you to present my respects to them, and induce them to make it more public's known as a sure Rhuematic cure. Having called on the on the 19th of April last, and seen me purstrated on in bed, useless in all ray limbs, you can appreciate no. "as well as myself the prompt relief I received from the Hampton's Tincture, and I am positive had it not been than provided to the company of the property for your strong and forcible recommendations I should still have been in bed.

It is really a pity this specific should not be approved of by medical men, and like all patent drugs it should suffer the imputation the public generally give to such preparations. I myself, who was always opposed to a patented specific, took this medicine with reluctance, and without confidence in it, and it was only through your disinterested, friendly recommendations, and my critical situation, that induced me to try this really beneficial Vegetable Tincture.

After years of suffering, my physician pronounced my disease deeply seated and incurable. My pains at this juncture were so great that I had not one moment's relief from them, unless under the influence of an opiate. Many of my friends knowing my sufferings, and kindly sympathising with me, persuaded me to try the Thompsonian Swents; also, the Home pathic medicines, which I did without effect.
After this I also tried a large number of Panaceas and
