Some husbands never say a word indifference of a lord, and going out with a heartless disregard of those left behind. It is a fortunate thing for their wives that they can find apparently thinking that such a course will keep things straight in their absence. Then on returning—some husbands come home jolly and happy, unsoured by the world; some sulky and surly with its disappointments. Some husbands bring home a newspaper or a book and bury themselves for the evening in its contents.—Some husbands are called away every evening by business or social engagements; some doze in speechless stupidity on a sofa until bedtime. Some husbands are curious to learn of their wives what has transpired through the day; others are attracted by nothing short of achild's tumbling down stairs or the house taking fire. Truthfulness of a Hero.

It is related of Lord Nelson, that while w er with which she had been sent for m afraid she would be whipped when she returns home. Seeing that he sympathized with her, she held up the fragments and artlessly said, "Perhaps you can mend it, sir." " No. I cannot do that," replied he, "but I will give you a sixpence to buy another with." On looking in his purse, he found he had no change, and said in his purse, he found he had no change, and said, "I cannot give it to you now, but if you will be here at this sine to morrow. I will meet you and give you the money." She went home comforted, and told her mother the story with such confidence that she was excused from punishment, on condition that the gentleman kept his word. Before the time came, Lord Nelson received a letter asking him to go to a distant place to meet a person whom he greatly desired to see. He hesitated, and thought that such a trifle as giving a little girl a six pence ought not to keep him away, but then he had given his word and the little girl had implicitly relied mon its. the other day, after discovering the true state of things, that for a trifle he would undertake single-handed, to keep this people in order for next six months. And so he could. But you, General, could manage it far better. You have been among us before, and no one would be more welcome. So, in conclusion, I respectfully move the Governor, in case of any future difficulties in this outlying province of his Empire to send you on this friendly mission, rather than another truculent proclamation, backed by Horse, Foot and Dragoons. It will at least look far better, as the other mode of proceeding has too much the oppearance of a kick at the dead Lion, or Falstan stabling the falsen Percy.

Very truly yours.

BELL'S WORM SYRUP.

nedy in use. A remedy perfect in itslef.—
NO CASTOR OH. TO BE TAKEN.
In this Preparation we have included such remedies only, that have been tried for years and are known to possess powerful anthelmin-tic virtues, combined with mild aperients, pleas-ant, aromatics and sugar. Anthelmintics of themselves cannot perform their peculiar func-tions or have the desired effect, unless the bowels are kept moderately open. To produce this gentle purgatives are necessary, and such only ought to be used as cannot interfere with the anthelmintic employed. The advantages we claim for this Syrup, are: 1st. Its power of Destroying and Expelling Worms!

2dv its mild aperient effect upon the bowels.

3d. Its pleasant taste and odor are advantages possessed or claimed by very few Vermifu-

4. Its harmless influence upon the system, consequently no injurious effects will result from its use should the patient have no Worms, that an apparent disease, arising from some other unknown cause, which is frequently the case. The constituents of this Syrup and its effects are known to all our Physicians, who are now using it in their practice to a large extent.

This preparation which is original with us, will be found to be one of the nicest and at the samptime one of the most reliable applications extant. Having been employed very extensively since its introduction and feeling satisfied of its remedial properties, we recommend it with the utmost confidence, knowing that no one will be disappointed in its use.

It is, as its name implies, a White Liniment of the consistency of cream, containing nothing offensive but on the contrary will be found more pleasant than otherwise.
