POETICAL.

THE COMING OF WINTER.

He comes! the Winter comes!
I hear his footsteps through the night!
I hear his vanguard on the heights
March thro' the pines with muffled drum!

His naked feet are on the road;
The grass blades wither in his path,
No leaf for him on earth he hath!
No pity for the tender seed!

The bare oak shudder at his breath!
A moment by the streams he stays—
His melody is mute. A glaze
Creeps o'er its dimples, as of death!

From fettered stream and blackened moor
The city walls he silent nears,
The mansions of the rich he seeks,
He storms the cabins of the poor!

The curtained couch, the glowing hearth,
The frost rimmed greybeard's power defies!
He curses as he hurries by,
And strikes the beggar dead to earth!

For every gleaming hall his slaves,
Their feet on carpets tread!
Hearts unsheltered, crisp with cold,
Watched by a hundred grim despair!

Here is your mission! Ye who feed
Your lavish fiefs! Not far
But at your doors your health are laid!
God's Poor—your creditors! Take heed!

The path is long to Pagan shores!
Their feet on carpets tread!
The winter's deadly harvest fall
Around you! Deal your Master's stores!

MISCELLANY.

OUR MOTHER.

At the gateway of one of our beautiful rural cemeteries, a large funeral was just entering, as our attention was called to a very remarkable sight. The bier was resting on the shoulders of four tall, noble-looking men in the prime of life. One of these bore on a judge on the bench of the Supreme Court of the nation. A second was one of the most eminent and accomplished lawyers whom this or any other country can boast. A third was a very distinguished divine, whose pen is a great power. And the fourth was the president of the Senate of his State. And these remarkable men were brothers! They stood strong in life; but were bowed and silent and solemn, as if the bier was too heavy for their strength. Very slowly and carefully they trod; as if the sleeper should feel the motion. And who was on the bier, so carefully and tenderly borne? It was their own mother! Never did I see a grief more real, or respect more profound. It seemed to me that the mother's old heart must also thro' in the coffin. A nobler sight, or a more beautiful tribute of love, I never saw. They were all, doubtless, going back in memory to their early childhood, and to the loving care of this best of all earthly friends. They well knew they, the sons of a poor village pastor, could never have been trained and educated and fitted to occupy their stations without a very extraordinary mother. They well knew they owed more to her than to all other human agencies. No soldiers but their mothers had one of these duties, but their mothers had hands but theirs must deposit it in its last resting place! That body had been inhabited by one of the sweetest, most cheerful and brilliant minds that ever inhabited an earthly tabernacle. It had long, too, been the temple of the Holy Ghost. What that lovely woman had done to make her husband's ministry useful and profitable; what she had done in training daughters that are ornaments to their sex; what she had done to make these distinguished men what they are—who can tell? What has not such a mother accomplished who has given such an influence to the world? We may see one of these duties, but their mothers had hands but theirs must deposit it in its last resting place! What has not such a mother accomplished who has given such an influence to the world? We may see one of these duties, but their mothers had hands but theirs must deposit it in its last resting place! That body had been inhabited by one of the sweetest, most cheerful and brilliant minds that ever inhabited an earthly tabernacle. It had long, too, been the temple of the Holy Ghost. What that lovely woman had done to make her husband's ministry useful and profitable; what she had done in training daughters that are ornaments to their sex; what she had done to make these distinguished men what they are—who can tell? What has not such a mother accomplished who has given such an influence to the world? We may see one of these duties, but their mothers had hands but theirs must deposit it in its last resting place!
